Commando L Raiders Hit Russian Ship

Leave Vessel Badly Damaged, Still Afloat

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Against strong United States opposition, another anti-Castro raiding party said it slipped into a Cuban port Tuesday night, attacked a Soviet freighter and left her in sinking condition.

The raiders, members of the anti-Castro action group Commando L, said the attack was carried out in the Cuban sugar port of Isabela de Sagua, on the north coast of Cuba 150 miles east of Havana.

"The freighter still is afloat, but badly in need of repair to keep it from sinking," said a Commando L spokesman.

After the sneak attack, he said, the raiders returned safely and without casualties to their base "somewhere in the Caribbean."

It was in this same Cuban port on March 17 that members of the anti-Castro organization, Alpha 66, shelled a Soviet ship and military camp.

Both Commando L and Alpha 66 are known to have operating bases on small isolated islands in the Caribbean, some near the north coast of Cuba.

Soviets Deny Penetration By Airplanes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union firmly rejected Wednesday U.S. claim that two Russian reconnaissance planes penetrated 30 miles into American air space March 15.

Authoritative sources in reporting this said the Soviets said that their planes had never come closer to Alaska than 350 kilometers (217 miles).

The U.S. note of protest was delivered to the Soviets March 16 by Foyd D. Kohler, U.S. ambassador to Moscow.

The U.S. note said that the two Russian aircraft violated U.S. air space over Alaska March 15 and the United States "expects that the Soviet government will take all necessary measures to prevent any repetition."

The Pentagon said earlier there was a radar intercept of the Soviet planes but no physical or visual contact by American fighters, which scrambled and went after the Soviet planes.

High-ranking U.S. authorities, commenting on the Soviet reply, said the United States insists that the Soviet planes violated American air-space, as spelled out in the U.S. note.

British Teachers Protest Pay Scale

LONDON (AP) — Thousands of angry schoolteachers streamed to Parliament with military precision Wednesday and protested new pay scales set by Education Minister Edward Boyle.

It was the second straight da. of protest at historic Westminster against the Conservative government's policies. About 3,000 unemployed workers from England, Scotland, and Northern Ireland clashed with police Tuesday.

An extra force of police was on duty before the Parliament building as about 5,000 teachers assembled, but stewards of the National Union of Teachers maintained order.

T.T.S. Cresswell, first in line at St. Stephen's entrance to the House of Commons, accused Boyle of using dictatorial methods.

Boyle called a news conference to justify his pay scales, which the teachers claimed had been worked out without sufficient advance consultation.

"I am not acting illegally," Boyle insisted. "Under the law I am required to be the last to move."

The teachers union was not placated. It set up headquarters at Church House, just behind Westminster Abbey, and sent teachers across Parliament Square at regular intervals.

Members of Parliament came out to meet their constituents of the teaching profession.

The teachers handed out pamphlets and spoke to the members, and then reported back to headquarters on their meetings.

As he is entitled to do under law, Boyle overruled the findings of a government-appointed committee which had recommended increases totaling the equivalent of about $58 million for teachers in England and Wales.

Sergeant York Enters Hospital

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — World War I hero Sgt. Alvin York —in good spirits and able to keep up a steady stream of chatter with stretcher attendants — was hospitalized Wednesday for observation and treatment of severe chest pains.

The 75-year-old York was brought to Nashville by ambulance from his mountain home at Pall Mall, Tenn. He was accompanied by his wife, who explained that York's chest pains started about a week ago when he rolled out of bed.

Dr. Jack Witherspoon, York's Nashville physician, said a preliminary examination showed York was suffering a contusion of the chest and "traumatic pleurisy"—which he described as a bruise of the inner chest wall.

Cape Canaveral Preparing For Doubleheader

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Pre-launch preparations progressed smoothy Wednesday for the scheduled doubleheader space spectacular Thursday.

If all goes well, the mighty Saturn super-booster will blast off at 1:30 p.m. EST on the fourth test flight for this booster which in later development will ferry American astronauts to the moon.

On another launching pad more than five miles away, a three-stage Delta rocket was being readied to hoist the Explorer 17 satellite into orbit to measure characteristics of the earth's atmosphere.

The Delta, seeking its 16th straight launching success, was scheduled to be fired at 9 p.m.

As on three previous Saturn flights, only the first stage will be tested. The major difference is that after 100 seconds of flight, one of the booster's eight engines will be shut off automatically to determine the vehicle's ability to carry out a mission with a dead engine.

The Saturn powerplant is built so that fuel will be diverted from a bad engine and distributed equally among the other seven.

The flight will be the last Saturn first-stage-only test. The second stage will be active on test No. 5, scheduled later this year.

Saturn, the world's largest known rocket, is to generate 1.3 million pounds of thrust. On blast-off it will stand 165 feet tall and weigh 470 tons.

Guerrillas Stage Successful Raids

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (UPI) — Communist guerrillas Wednesday staged their third successful raid this week against a government outpost, striking before dawn to wipe out the 19-man garrison at Cai Gai, 75 miles south of Saigon.

A U. S. military spokesman said the 19 men apparently were taken prisoner by the Communists, who then blew up the fort and slipped back into the mangrove swamps where they hav their hideouts.

The raiders captured 22 weapons and a radio. In Wednesday's attack and the two earlier this week, they have seized enough arms to equip a company of troops.

Oppose Pact By 191-111; Boo Leaders

Bar Stereotypers Union President From Meeting

NEW YORK (UPI) — Rebellious photoengravers Wednesday night unexpectedly overrode their leadership and turned down new contract terms, thus prolonging New York's newspaper blackout —already more than three and one-half months old.

The vote for rejection was 191 to 111.

The photoengravers booed and shouted catcalls at union leaders urging them to accept the peace terms proposed by Mayor Robert F. Wagner and get the papers back on the streets.

"We don't like this—but it is the best we can get," union chief Frank A. McGowan told the photoengravers in urging that they accept the new contract.

The members hooted and howled their displeasure.

Mayor Doesn't Comment

Mayor Wagner had no immediate comment on the photoengravers' action, which dashed hopes for a quick settlement of the marathon walkout—longest and costliest in the history of the nation's biggest city.

The union ratification meeting had been scheduled to get underway at 4 p.m., EST, but it took the leaders of the union more than two hours to get final language of the contract cleared and bring the terms to the meeting hall.

Then for more than two hours and 15 minutes, the leaders and members debated the new terms.

One of the union negotiators backed the hostile faction in the rank-and-file membership. He urged them to reject the terms because "we got nowhere with automation."

The newspapers had been geared to roll with their first edition since before Christmas. Presses were cleaned, oiled and inked and lead had been melted in pots in anticipation of a favorable vote.

Editorial Employes Wait

Crowds of editorial employes stood outside the newspapers, waiting for word that the picket lines were coming down. When word flashed that the photoengravers had turned thumbs down on new terms, the employes smiled bitterly and began to drift away silently.

The pact that the photoengravers turned down was a $12.63 package increase proposal over a two year period—the same general settlement accepted by the printers.

However, some photoengravers were unhappy that cash wage increases had to be reduced to get such fringe benefits as three days personal leave and a fourth week vacation.

It appeared that the rejection might cause a deep split in the Newspaper Unity Committee, composed of representatives of the other nine newspaper unions which had supported the photoengravers although they had come to terms themselves.

Barred From Meeting

James McMahon, president of the stereotypers union, which had been on strike but settled, tried to get into the photoengravers meeting but was barred at the door by a sergeant at arms.

After the vote, he strode to the stage of the meeting hall and shouted angrily at McGowan:

"Are you prepared to go before the unity committee? Are you prepared to go it alone?"

Other photoengravers officials ordered him to leave.

An affirmative vote by the photoengravers would have given a badly needed shot in the arm to New York business, including department stores, theaters, newsstand dealers, hotels, night clubs, real estate dealers, employment and advertising agencies and many other enterprieses that depend on newspapers.

President's Mother Visits In London

LONDON (UPI) — Mrs. Rose Kennedy, the President's mother, flew quietly into London from Paris Wednesday for a "very private" visit of two days.

She traveled alone.

GEORGES BIDAULT

Portugal To Expel Bidault

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — Portuguese authorities questioned Georges Bidault for hours Wednesday, then let it be known that the French anti-Gaullist leader will be expelled to a country of his choice.

The former French premier could become a man without a country in Europe unless he gives up the fight against President Charles de Gaulle.

"No time limit has been set for his departure, but of course the matter must be solved within the next few days," a government spokesman said.

He added that if Bidault encounters obstacles in finding a country to take him in, he will be sent back to West Germany.

The 63-year-old Bidault left West Germany Monday night after the Bavarian government told him he could not campaign from there for the overthrow of De Gaulle.

He and his secretary, Guy Ribeauld, flew to Lisbon under assumed names and turned up at security police headquarters on Wednesday after remaining in seclusion at a third-class boarding house. Police questioned them for hours.

An employe at the boarding house said "Bidault was coughing badly" on his arrival and "asked for brandy and some pills."

There was sepculation that Bidault might seek a haven in Latin America, although it was difficult to see what contribution he could make from across the Atlantic to his pledge to continue his fight against the French president.

The Portuguese government had announced even before Bidault flew here that he would not be allowed to use Portugal as a base for political activity.

GOP Makes Headway In Florida

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP)—Cashing in on Democratic apathy and staging a concerted campaign of its own, Florida's outnumbered but growing Republican party held Wednesday its greatest number of state legislative seats since Reconstruction days.

Republicans grabbed 12 of 34 seats they sought in special elections that were held Tuesday to give Florida's urban counties the additional representation to which a federal court said they were entitled.

The victories boosted Republican-heldseats to 16 of 125 in the Florida House and to 2 of 45 in the Senate — still a tiny minority, but big enough to hold the balance of power in close issues.

The Republicans broke into traditional Democratic strongholds in the special elections, sometimes taking all of the new seats in counties where the old ones were held by Democrats.

Up to now, Republican strength in the legislature has waxed and waned according to the election year. The gains come during presidential election years.

During the November election, an off-year, Republican membership fell from 8 to 6.

Red Technicians Develop Mineral Wealth In Cuba

EDITOR'S NOTE—The author of this article, a correspondent for the Nation, recently returned from Cuba with a report on Soviet mineral and oil explorations.

By JESSE GORDON
Written for The Associated Press

NEW YORK (AP) — There is no special reason why I should have been chosen as the only one of many newsmen in Cuba to be shown a Soviet technician's report on Cuba's mineral resources.

Suffice it to say that luck, a little adroit wire-pulling and the affability of Dr. Augusto Henriquez, director of the Cuban Institute of Mineral Resources, conspired in my favor.

The report is a massive document, replete with maps, tables and technical jargon. The portly, patient Dr. Henriquez — he works directly under Maj. Ernesto Guevara, Castro's right-hand man—took four hours off a busy day to go over it with me in his office in the Jesus Menendez building, located in downtown Havana.

"I am not an engineer," I said toward the close of the interview. "Yet, I see well enough that the Russians, in 18 months' time, have decided that they can get many times as much wealth out of your ground in a few years as American engineers have taken out of Cuba in half a century. How is that explained?"

Reds Dig Deeper

Dr. Henriquez smiled, even more affably than usual, and raised an admonitory pencil.

TFX Probers Get Surprise Visitation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy and Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara in a surprise move Wednesday gave Senate investigators a list of questions they want witnesses to answer in the TFX warplane contract inquiry.

Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., chairman of the Senate Investigations subcommittee conducting the inquiry, received the written list at an unannounced visit by the Cabinet officers on Capitol Hill.

He said the questions would be asked.

But after a two-hour subcommittee session with high-ranking military officers who made recommendations in the TFX contract award—that it go to the Boeing Co. of Seattle, Wash. rather than the General Dynamics Corp. of Fort Worth, Tex., that McNamara selected—McClellan said the questions were not asked.

"Not yet," he told reporters. "We haven't got to that point."

McNamara's contention that General Dynamics offered a better plane at lower eventual cost is being looked into by the committee. The officers questioned in closed session served on a "source selection board" that reportedly recommended Boeing's design as cheaper and better.

McClellan would not disclose the contents of the McNamara questions, saying only they were intended to bring out evidence McNamara and Kennedy wanted in the record.

Bank Studies Accidental Security Loss

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Negotiable securities worth $7.5 million vanished from tightly - guarded Federal Reserve Bank vaults here. They probably were burned by accident and no one is the loser, the bank's president said Wednesday.

"In our opinion, it was a million-to-one human error and nobody is being blamed or disciplined for it," Eliot Swan told newsmen at the massive, heavily policed Federal Reserve Building.

"Any possibility that the certificates—seven of them with a face value of $1 million each and five more worth $100,000 apiece—could have been stolen has been eliminated. We believe that somehow they were burned with trash or waste paper at the bank here."

On this basis, he said, the Treasury undoubtedly will reimburse the reserve bank in full, writing off the missing certificates as "unissued." The bank keeps a supply of unissued certificates in its vaults.

The loss was discovered last August and confirmed Wednesday after the San Francisco Examiner reported them missing. The newspaper speculated on the possibility that it could be the biggest theft in United States history.

But Swan said Wednesday that the Secret Service and other government investigators were convinced no theft was involved

No trace has been found of the 12 missing certificates. And apparently no one has tried to collect on the attached coupons, Swan said.

The certificates were held by the San Francisco bank as collateral on loans to member banks.

Swan said that at the time of an audit in May 1962 the certificates were in their proper envelope. In early August another audit was made and they were gone.

The loss was not disclosed earlier, Swan said, because "we thought it was good investigative procedure not to reveal it earlier."

Attack Comes Atop Protest From Russia

Soviet Blames U.S. For Hit-Run Raids On March 17

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union charged Wednesday the United States is violating the agreement that eased the Caribbean missile crisis by backing exiles making hit-and-run raids on Cuba.

A Soviet diplomatic note specifically protested an attack on the Soviet freighter Lgov, shot up by exiles March 17 at the sugar port of Isabela de Sagua, on Cuba's north coast. It declared the United States was responsible.

Another Soviet freighter was reported to have been attacked in Isabela de Sagua on Tuesday night.

A spokesman for a Cuban exile organization called Commando L told the Miami (Fla.) News a raiding party severely damaged the freighter and left it in need of repair to keep it from sinking. He said the raiders returned without casualties to their base "somewhere in the Caribbean."

Premier Khrushchev's government centered on the Lgov incident.

The note called on the U.S. government for "resolute measures to prevent similar provocative actions in the future."

The U.S. State Department denied the charge even before receiving the text from Moscow. Press officer Lincoln White referred Washington newsmen to earlier American condemnations of the March 17 raid.

"The U.S. Government is doing everything it possibly can to prevent such incidents from happening from U.S. territory," White said.

The U.S. government denied March 18 that the United States was involved in the Lgov incident. It declared it is "strongly opposed to hit-and-run attacks on Cuba by splinter refugee groups." President Kennedy said an official investigation indicated the attack was not staged from American territory.

The Soviet note charged, however, that the U.S. State Department has made statements which in fact "encourage such bandit-like actions."

It pointed out that spokesmen of the two exiled organizations involved in the Lgov operation — Alpha 66 and the Second National Front of Escambray—had told a Washington news conference that their men fired on the ship and that these groups planned to continue the attacks. It ignored their declaration that the raiders' base was outside the American sphere.

The note said the freighter was machine-gunned, but mentioned neither damage nor casualties.

Prime Minister Fidel Castro's government in Cuba said March 20 the raiding launch registered several hits on the Lgov's funnel and ventilator fan with 20mm cannon shells and sprayed the ship with bursts of .30 caliber machine-gun fire. Castro's regime also blamed the United States.

Spokesmen for the exiles said there were casualties both aboard ship and in a Soviet military camp nearby that was another target of the raiders.

Public Answers Army Dog Appeal

RICHMOND, Va. (UPI) — The U. S. Army Support Command said Wednesday that dog owners from throughout the United States and Europe had responded to a call for 1,000 German Shepherd watchdogs needed to patrol military bases around the world.

Col. Henry S. Kostanksi, commander of the Army group, said his office has processed more than 280 replies that followed a plea issued last month.

The dogs may be given or sold to the Army, must be purebred of any color, either male or unsexed female from one to three years old, weigh at least 60 pounds and stand at least 23 inches.

Chamber Commerce Elects New Prexy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Edwin P. Neilan, chairman of the Bank of Delaware at Wilmington, has been elected president of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, it was announced Wednesday.

Neilan succeeds Ladd Plumley, who becomes chairman of the board. Richard Wagner of Champlin Oil & Refining Co. becomes chairman of the executive committee.

Louis B. Lundborg was elected treasurer.

Cuba Deports 11 Missionaries

MIAMI (UPI)—Eleven deported missionaries of U.S. religious groups arrived from Cuba Wednesday and denied charges by Fidel Castro that they served as American agents.

They said one of their leaders was still being held in jail in Cuba on charges of being a top agent for the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency (CIA).

The missionaries, six of them Jehovah's Witnesses and five of them from the Assembly of God, arrived with their children aboard a Pan American World Airways DC6B which flew to Cuba Wednesday morning with more prisoner ransom supplies.

The plane returned with 74 passengers, including the missionaries, one Red Cross worker and a number of Cuban-American refugees and their dependents. More than 1,000 Cuban-Americans have been brought out of Cuba on such flights.

Another of the flights is scheduled Friday.

GEORGES BIDAULT

Portugal To Expel Bidault

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — Portuguese authorities questioned Georges Bidault for hours Wednesday, then let it be known that the French anti-Gaullist leader will be expelled to a country of his choice.

The former French premier could become a man without a country in Europe unless he gives up the fight against President Charles de Gaulle.

"No time limit has been set for his departure, but of course the matter must be solved within the next few days," a government spokesman said.

He added that if Bidault encounters obstacles in finding a country to take him in, he will be sent back to West Germany.

The 63-year-old Bidault left West Germany Monday night after the Bavarian government told him he could not campaign from there for the overthrow of De Gaulle.

He and his secretary, Guy Ribeauld, flew to Lisbon under assumed names and turned up at security police headquarters on Wednesday after remaining in seclusion at a third-class boarding house. Police questioned them for hours.

An employe at the boarding house said "Bidault was coughing badly" on his arrival and "asked for brandy and some pills."

There was sepculation that Bidault might seek a haven in Latin America, although it was difficult to see what contribution he could make from across the Atlantic to his pledge to continue his fight against the French president.

The Portuguese government had announced even before Bidault flew here that he would not be allowed to use Portugal as a base for political activity.

GOP Makes Headway In Florida

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP)—Cashing in on Democratic apathy and staging a concerted campaign of its own, Florida's outnumbered but growing Republican party held Wednesday its greatest number of state legislative seats since Reconstruction days.

Republicans grabbed 12 of 34 seats they sought in special elections that were held Tuesday to give Florida's urban counties the additional representation to which a federal court said they were entitled.

The victories boosted Republican-heldseats to 16 of 125 in the Florida House and to 2 of 45 in the Senate — still a tiny minority, but big enough to hold the balance of power in close issues.

The Republicans broke into traditional Democratic strongholds in the special elections, sometimes taking all of the new seats in counties where the old ones were held by Democrats.

Up to now, Republican strength in the legislature has waxed and waned according to the election year. The gains come during presidential election years.

Red Technicians Develop Mineral Wealth In Cuba

EDITOR'S NOTE—The author of this article, a correspondent for the Nation, recently returned from Cuba with a report on Soviet mineral and oil explorations.

By JESSE GORDON
Written for The Associated Press

NEW YORK (AP) — There is no special reason why I should have been chosen as the only one of many newsmen in Cuba to be shown a Soviet technician's report on Cuba's mineral resources.

Suffice it to say that luck, a little adroit wire-pulling and the affability of Dr. Augusto Henriquez, director of the Cuban Institute of Mineral Resources, conspired in my favor.

The report is a massive document, replete with maps, tables and technical jargon. The portly, patient Dr. Henriquez — he works directly under Maj. Ernesto Guevara, Castro's right-hand man—took four hours off a busy day to go over it with me in his office in the Jesus Menendez building, located in downtown Havana.

"I am not an engineer," I said toward the close of the interview. "Yet, I see well enough that the Russians, in 18 months' time, have decided that they can get many times as much wealth out of your ground in a few years as American engineers have taken out of Cuba in half a century. How is that explained?"

Reds Dig Deeper

Dr. Henriquez smiled, even more affably than usual, and raised an admonitory pencil.

TFX Probers Get Surprise Visitation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy and Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara in a surprise move Wednesday gave Senate investigators a list of questions they want witnesses to answer in the TFX warplane contract inquiry.

Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., chairman of the Senate Investigations subcommittee conducting the inquiry, received the written list at an unannounced visit by the Cabinet officers on Capitol Hill.

He said the questions would be asked.

But after a two-hour subcommittee session with high-ranking military officers who made recommendations in the TFX contract award—that it go to the Boeing Co. of Seattle, Wash. rather than the General Dynamics Corp. of Fort Worth, Tex., that McNamara selected—McClellan said the questions were not asked.

"Not yet," he told reporters. "We haven't got to that point."

McNamara's contention that General Dynamics offered a better plane at lower eventual cost is being looked into by the committee. The officers questioned in closed session served on a "source selection board" that reportedly recommended Boeing's design as cheaper and better.

McClellan would not disclose the contents of the McNamara questions, saying only they were intended to bring out evidence McNamara and Kennedy wanted in the record.

Bank Studies Accidental Security Loss

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Negotiable securities worth $7.5 million vanished from tightly - guarded Federal Reserve Bank vaults here. They probably were burned by accident and no one is the loser, the bank's president said Wednesday.

"In our opinion, it was a million-to-one human error and nobody is being blamed or disciplined for it," Eliot Swan told newsmen at the massive, heavily policed Federal Reserve Building.

"Any possibility that the certificates—seven of them with a face value of $1 million each and five more worth $100,000 apiece—could have been stolen has been eliminated. We believe that somehow they were burned with trash or waste paper at the bank here."

On this basis, he said, the Treasury undoubtedly will reimburse the reserve bank in full, writing off the missing certificates as "unissued." The bank keeps a supply of unissued certificates in its vaults.

The loss was discovered last August and confirmed Wednesday after the San Francisco Examiner reported them missing. The newspaper speculated on the possibility that it could be the biggest theft in United States history.

But Swan said Wednesday that the Secret Service and other government investigators were convinced no theft was involved.

No trace has been found of the 12 missing certificates. And apparently no one has tried to collect on the attached coupons, Swan said.

The certificates were held by the San Francisco bank as collateral on loans to member banks.

Swan said that at the time of an audit in May 1962 the certificates were in their proper envelope. In early August another audit was made and they were gone.

The loss was not disclosed earlier, Swan said, because "we thought it was good investigative procedure not to reveal it earlier."

Attack Comes Atop Protest From Russia

Soviet Blames U.S. For Hit-Run Raids On March 17

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union charged Wednesday the United States is violating the agreement that eased the Caribbean missile crisis by backing exiles making hit-and-run raids on Cuba.

A Soviet diplomatic note specifically protested an attack on the Soviet freighter Lgov, shot up by exiles March 17 at the sugar port of Isabela de Sagua, on Cuba's north coast. It declared the United States was responsible.

Another Soviet freighter was reported to have been attacked in Isabela de Sagua on Tuesday night.

A spokesman for a Cuban exile organization called Commando L told the Miami (Fla.) News a raiding party severely damaged the freighter and left it in need of repair to keep it from sinking. He said the raiders returned without casualties to their base "somewhere in the Caribbean."

Premier Khrushchev's government centered on the Lgov incident.

The note called on the U.S. government for "resolute measures to prevent similar provocative actions in the future."

The U.S. State Department denied the charge even before receiving the text from Moscow. Press officer Lincoln White referred Washington newsmen to earlier American condemnations of the March 17 raid.

"The U.S. Government is doing everything it possibly can to prevent such incidents from happening from U.S. territory," White said.

The U.S. government denied March 18 that the United States was involved in the Lgov incident. It declared it is "strongly opposed to hit-and-run attacks on Cuba by splinter refugee groups." President Kennedy said an official investigation indicated the attack was not staged from American territory.

The Soviet note charged, however, that the U.S. State Department has made statements which in fact "encourage such bandit-like actions."

It pointed out that spokesmen of the two exiled organizations involved in the Lgov operation — Alpha 66 and the Second National Front of Escambray—had told a Washington news conference that their men fired on the ship and that these groups planned to continue the attacks. It ignored their declaration that the raiders' base was outside the American sphere.

The note said the freighter was machine-gunned, but mentioned neither damage nor casualties.

Prime Minister Fidel Castro's government in Cuba said March 20 the raiding launch registered several hits on the Lgov's funnel and ventilator fan with 20mm cannon shells and sprayed the ship with bursts of .30 caliber machine-gun fire. Castro's regime also blamed the United States.

Spokesmen for the exiles said there were casualties both aboard ship and in a Soviet military camp nearby that was another target of the raiders.

Public Answers Army Dog Appeal

RICHMOND, Va. (UPI) — The U. S. Army Support Command said Wednesday that dog owners from throughout the United States and Europe had responded to a call for 1,000 German Shepherd watchdogs needed to patrol military bases around the world.

Col. Henry S. Kostanksi, commander of the Army group, said his office has processed more than 280 replies that followed a plea issued last month.

The dogs may be given or sold to the Army, must be purebred of any color, either male or unsexed female from one to three years old, weigh at least 60 pounds and stand at least 23 inches.

Chamber Commerce Elects New Prexy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Edwin P. Neilan, chairman of the Bank of Delaware at Wilmington, has been elected president of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, it was announced Wednesday.

Neilan succeeds Ladd Plumley, who becomes chairman of the board. Richard Wagner of Champlin Oil & Refining Co. becomes chairman of the executive committee.

Louis B. Lundborg was elected treasurer.

Cuba Deports 11 Missionaries

MIAMI (UPI)—Eleven deported missionaries of U.S. religious groups arrived from Cuba Wednesday and denied charges by Fidel Castro that they served as American agents.

They said one of their leaders was still being held in jail in Cuba on charges of being a top agent for the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency (CIA).

The missionaries, six of them Jehovah's Witnesses and five of them from the Assembly of God, arrived with their children aboard a Pan American World Airways DC6B which flew to Cuba Wednesday morning with more prisoner ransom supplies.

The plane returned with 74 passengers, including the missionaries, one Red Cross worker and a number of Cuban-American refugees and their dependents. More than 1,000 Cuban-Americans have been brought out of Cuba on such flights.

Another of the flights is scheduled Friday.

Billie Sol Estes Jury Fails To Reach Verdict

Court Orders Deliberations To Continue

EL PASO, Tex. (UPI) — The jury in the $24 million Billie Sol Estes mail fraud trial reported Wednesday it could not reach a decision in the case, but Federal Judge R. Ewing Thomason ordered them to continue deliberations.

The jury told Thomason that "by common consent, we have decided we can't reach a decision in the case."

But jury foreman E. L. Washington, in answer to a question from Thomason, said he thought "that with more time and more understanding," the jury might be able to reach a decision.

"There is so much of the law and interpretation of the law," Washington said. "We need to ask more questions."

Thomason asked Washington directly if the jury might reach a decision, given a few more hours.

"Given more time, more information, perhaps," Washington said. "It is a matter of digesting the law you gave to us. It is a very difficult task. That is the problem."

Another member of the jury disagreed, and said he believed the jury had done all that was possible.

But all members of the panel said they would be willing to continue to deliberate.

Estes sat solemnly with his family and heard the report. He had been fidgeting during the day as the deliberations proceeded at an agonizingly slow pace.

Defense attorney faces grew longer as the 10-man, 2-woman jury passed the 24-hour mark in obviously complex discussion, the jury sent out for a censored document that touched off a flurry of legal maneuvering. It also has asked for definitions of the words fraud and conspiracy.

The government had hoped for a quick verdict after Thomason gave the case of the bankrupt fertilizer tycoon to the jury Tuesday.

Estes, 38, was accused of swindling farmers and finance companies out of some $24 million in complicated deals involving mortgages and credit on anhydrous ammonia fertilizer tanks, most of which never existed.

Long Takes Issue On JFK Jobless Claim

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. Clarence D. Long, D-Md., challenged Wednesday President Kennedy's forecast of a major unemployment problem during the rest of this decade.

Long, an economic specialist in the field of unemployment, agreed with the President's assertion in a Chicago speech that some unemployment is caused by automation, a growing youth population and the technological revolution in agriculture.

But the 2nd District Democrat said these factors do not threaten any tidal wave of unemployment for the 1960s. Some of them, he declared, might even help relieve the unemployment problem.

About the youth population, Long said the entry of these young people in the labor market may generate more jobs through increased demand for housing, goods and services.

Similarly, the congressman said automation may help reduce unemployment instead of increase it.

"The huge amount of manpower needed to build the new structures and machines for automation may be a favorable factor in keeping unemployment down," he said.

Two Men Hurt In Plane Mishap

LAUREL, Md. (AP)—Two men were injured Tuesday when their light plane crashed on take off from nearby Suburban Airport.

The men were identified as Cecil Etheredge, 37, of Decatur, Ga., and Tolly Williamson, 30, of Towson, Md. Both were reported in fair condition at Prince Georges General Hospital.

Etheredge was to undergo plastic surgery for severe lacerations of his lip and Williamson suffered face cuts and a shoulder injury.

Officials at the small airport said they did not know the plane's destination and which man was the pilot. State police had not yet submitted their report on the crash.

Maryland Briefs

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—One of six prisoners who broke out of the Anne Arundel County Jail remained at large Wednesday. He is Stanley W. Bissett, 27, of Baltimore.

Two of the fugitives were arrested Tuesday. William W. Corson, 18, of Millersville, was apprehended less than a mile from his home, and Donald E. Bennett, 23, was taken into custody at a boarding house at Bridgeport, Ohio. Three were arrested earlier this week.

BALTIMORE (AP)—Seven boys and three girls will appear Thursday before juvenile authorities in connection with the beating of Frances Dixon, 11, last Friday.

Frances' father, William Dixon, has escorted his daughter to school since the attack. He said the beating was intended to prevent Frances from testifying against two girls accused of stealing her radio.

INDIAN HEAD, Md. (AP)-Rene Gough, his wife and four teen-age children will set sail this spring in a converted oyster boat on which they plan to live in the Virgin Islands.

Gough retires from the Navy next month and plans to spend the next two months working on the boat. The Goughs will depart in June after school closes and make the 1,600-mile trip to St. Croix.

Gough plans to work at an airport and the children will attend school in the islands.

BALTIMORE (AP)—The U. S. Labor Department has filed a complaint against the Hagerstown Dairy Co. and two of its officers on a charge of failing to pay the minimum wage and to keep overtime records.

The complaint named Sylvia G. Parks, president, and Raymond W. Parks, vice president. The government asked U.S. District Court to issue an order for the dairy to comply with minimum wage statute.

MARTINSBURG, W. Va. (AP)—The Berkeley County Board of Education has approved a record-breaking budget for operation of its high schools.

The board approved a $2 million budget, more than two-thirds of which is earmarked for salaries. The state legislature recently approved increases in teacher salaries.

MARTINSBURG, W. Va. (AP)—The Berkeley County Circuit Court jury has rejected pleas for $50,000 damages filed against two state troopers B.H. Swartz and C. C. Oliver.

David T. Franks charged in the suit that he had been unlawfully arrested, and mistreated by the state troopers. The officers said they found Franks lying along a road in an intoxicated condition.

Wicomico County Plans Continued Integration

SALISBURY (AP) — The Wicomico-Salisbury Commission on Interracial Problems announced Wednesday its support of a Board of Education plan to integrate three more schools and two additional grades in September.

"This action, coupled with steps taken last year, demonstrate the maturity and responsibility with which our county faces and resolves the critical problems," the commission said in a statement.

"With this action, our county now seems safe from outside legal interference with Wicomico school integration."

The School Board said earlier Wednesday that the Prince Street, Hebron and Delmar elementary schools would be integrated in the fall. Also to be integrated are grades 7 and 8 in Wicomico Junior High School and James M. Bennett School.

The board said an estimated 200 Negro children will be assigned to the formerly all-white schools. Not all are expected to shift from their present schools, however.

Last year, about 100 Negro students were assigned to North Salisbury, Beaver Run, East Salisbury, Pemberton and Pinehurst schools, but only 35 actually made the change. None is attending East Salisbury or Pinehurst.

At the time, the remark seemed to me one of those Marxist cliches that spring so readily to the lips of a Communist. It was not until several months later, in New York, when I was showing my notes on the Soviet report to American mining engineers who had worked in Cuba under previous regimes, that I realized Dr. Henriquez had not been talking through his Marxist hat.

Engineers Concur

The American engineer scanned the tables I had copied on the Soviet estimates of Cuba's nickel, manganese, chromite, iron and oil reserves.

"I'm prepared to accept these figures," he said. "They seem high, but not implausible. We've always known there was a lot of stuff down there."

"Then why didn't you take it out?"

"We took out only what we could sell at a profit," he answered. "That's what mining outfits are in business for. Generally speaking, the farther down you have to go for your ore, the more it costs you to bring it to the surface. Cuba wasn't our only source for these ores; what we could get of Cuba cheaper than elsewhere, we took out; when we could get the stuff cheaper elsewhere, we stopped producing in Cuba."

Long Range Plan

But socialist mining, when designed to achieve national security, or increased autonomy, takes little account of profits. The iron, manganese, chromite, oil, copper and so forth that American miners have been spurning, may prove the salvation of Castro's Communist regime in Cuba.

Granting that most of these materials are now in surplus supply in the world and that something expensive to produce has little leverage — even for socialists — in world markets where cheaper goods hold sway.

Still, these Cuban resources may — I don't say they will, but they may — enable Castro to solve the long range economic problems that, in truth, present more peril to him than invasions from the United States.

And — a final irony — they may turn Cuba from an economic fief of the United States — which Cuba has been called for many decades — into a fief of the Soviet Union.

For all available data indicate that the Soviet Union will one day demand a reckoning from Castro for the estimated $450 million in aid — industrial, military and financial — that the Soviet Union has already poured into that country.

Grandpa Saves Little Boy Who Fell Into Well

MARRIOTTSVILLE, Md. (AP)—A 2-year-old boy fell to the bottom of a 36-foot abandoned well Wednesday but his grandfather climbed down a pipe and held the youngster's head above water until help arrived.

Adam Jackson, 58, heard cries coming from the well after Danny Ashley fell through boards covering the well. The man and boy were in the well for half an hour but were uninjured.

Mrs. Jackson called police and a few minutes later stopped a Baltimore and Ohio Railroad employe, Misslin Pickett, who pulled the two from the well with a wire clothesline.

Reds Protest

TOKYO (AP)—Communist China said Wednesday a U.S. military plane "intruded" into its airspace over Yunghsing, Pei and Tung islands in Kwangtung Province of South China. Peking radio said the Foreign Ministry issued "the 236th serious warning" against American flights over Red China.

Confession Stumps Police At Winchester

Peoria, Ill., Man Says He Shot And Killed Area Resident

WINCHESTER, Va. (AP)—Area law enforcement officers were stumped Wednesday by the confession of a Peoria, Ill., man to Hannibal, Mo., officials that he had shot and killed a Virginia resident in the Winchester area.

Conflicting reports were received of where the crime was supposed to have occurred.

One report said Gary Leroy Humes told Hannibal officers he had slain Forrest Walker Hubbard 42, of Arlington, Va., nine days ago and dumped his body six miles east of Winchester along U.S. 50.

Another report said Humes was supposed to have indicated the distance was 10 miles east of Winchester.

Sgt. F.L. Woolf of Virginia State Police said a systematic search, begun by State Police Tuesday night, was called off early Wednesday because of the lack of concrete information about the slaying area.

Woolf said police are awaiting more information from the Missouri official following a requested re-interrogation of the 21-year-old Humes.

The School Board said earlier Wednesday that the Prince Street, Hebron and Delmar elementary schools would be integrated in the fall. Also to be integrated are grades 7 and 8 in Wicomico Junior High School and James M. Bennett School.

The board said an estimated 200 Negro children will be assigned to the formerly all-white schools. Not all are expected to shift from their present schools, however.

Last year, about 100 Negro students were assigned to North Salisbury, Beaver Run, East Salisbury, Pemberton and Pinehurst schools, but only 35 actually made the change. None is attending East Salisbury or Pinehurst.

At the time, the remark seemed to me one of those Marxist cliches that spring so readily to the lips of a Communist. It was not until several months later, in New York, when I was showing my notes on the Soviet report to American mining engineers who had worked in Cuba under previous regimes, that I realized Dr. Henriquez had not been talking through his Marxist hat.

Engineers Concur

The American engineer scanned the tables I had copied on the Soviet estimates of Cuba's nickel, manganese, chromite, iron and oil reserves.

"I'm prepared to accept these figures," he said. "They seem high, but not implausible. We've always known there was a lot of stuff down there."

"Then why didn't you take it out?"

"We took out only what we could sell at a profit," he answered. "That's what mining outfits are in business for. Generally speaking, the farther down you have to go for your ore, the more it costs you to bring it to the surface. Cuba wasn't our only source for these ores; what we could get of Cuba cheaper than elsewhere, we took out; when we could get the stuff cheaper elsewhere, we stopped producing in Cuba."

Long Range Plan

But socialist mining, when designed to achieve national security, or increased autonomy, takes little account of profits. The iron, manganese, chromite, oil, copper and so forth that American miners have been spurning, may prove the salvation of Castro's Communist regime in Cuba.

Granting that most of these materials are now in surplus supply in the world and that something expensive to produce has little leverage — even for socialists — in world markets where cheaper goods hold sway.

Still, these Cuban resources may — I don't say they will, but they may — enable Castro to solve the long range economic problems that, in truth, present more peril to him than invasions from the United States.

And — a final irony — they may turn Cuba from an economic fief of the United States — which Cuba has been called for many decades — into a fief of the Soviet Union.

For all available data indicate that the Soviet Union will one day demand a reckoning from Castro for the estimated $450 million in aid — industrial, military and financial — that the Soviet Union has already poured into that country.

Grandpa Saves Little Boy Who Fell Into Well

MARRIOTTSVILLE, Md. (AP)—A 2-year-old boy fell to the bottom of a 36-foot abandoned well Wednesday but his grandfather climbed down a pipe and held the youngster's head above water until help arrived.

Adam Jackson, 58, heard cries coming from the well after Danny Ashley fell through boards covering the well. The man and boy were in the well for half an hour but were uninjured.

Mrs. Jackson called police and a few minutes later stopped a Baltimore and Ohio Railroad employe, Misslin Pickett, who pulled the two from the well with a wire clothesline.

TOKYO (AP)—Communist China said Wednesday a U.S. military plane "intruded" into its airspace over Yunghsing, Pei and Tung islands in Kwangtung Province of South China. Peking radio said the Foreign Ministry issued "the 236th serious warning" against American flights over Red China.

Confession Stumps Police At Winchester

Peoria, Ill., Man Says He Shot And Killed Area Resident

WINCHESTER, Va. (AP)—Area law enforcement officers were stumped Wednesday by the confession of a Peoria, Ill., man to Hannibal, Mo., officials that he had shot and killed a Virginia resident in the Winchester area.

Conflicting reports were received of where the crime was supposed to have occurred.

One report said Gary Leroy Humes told Hannibal officers he had slain Forrest Walker Hubbard 42, of Arlington, Va., nine days ago and dumped his body six miles east of Winchester along U.S. 50.

Another report said Humes was supposed to have indicated the distance was 10 miles east of Winchester.

Sgt. F.L. Woolf of Virginia State Police said a systematic search, begun by State Police Tuesday night, was called off early Wednesday because of the lack of concrete information about the slaying area.

Woolf said police are awaiting more information from the Missouri official following a requested re-interrogation of the 21-year-old Humes.

Consol To Aid Government Coal Research Program

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Consolidation Coal Co. is expected to sign a contract with the federal Office of Coal Research to begin a project designed to develop a process for extracting gasoline from coal.

The details of the pilot project were announced this week during appropriation hearings being held by a House subcommittee.

S. G. Lasky, assistant director of the office, said Consolidation has a process for making gasoline out of coal "that appears to be competitive."

A pilot plant for the project will be built at Cresap, W. Va.

Lasky said the Interior Department wants to speed development of the process for commercial use. If the company works without federal assistance, he said, commercialization will take about 10 years.

But he added that with $10 million in federal funds, the process could be ready for commercial use in about three years.

Lasky said Consolidation already has spent about 12 years and $9.5 million on laboratory research, but the pilot plant was needed to determine how the process and equipment would work on a large scale.

He estimated the initial cost of the plant will be $3.5 million and it will use 25 tons of coal a day.

The federal government also wants to aid the project because if industry were to proceed alone, it would have patent ownership of the process, Lasky said.

He said if the government participates in the project, the process would be available to the rest of the nation.

Lasky also said that with industry alone, the process would be applicable only to one coal seam in the Appalachian field whereas with government participation, it would be tested on a nationwide basis.

Florence Snelson Heads Xi Nu Exemplar BSP

Officers of Xi Nu Exemplar, Beta Sigma Phi elected officers at a meeting at the home of Mrs. William Wood, Armstrong Avenue, Frostburg, after attending the "Showmobile" at State Teachers College Tuesday evening.

Using a circus motif backdrop, with three tents and striped curtains, a unit of the Second Army out of Fort Meade presented a program of songs, tumbling acts, an equestrian act and selections by a seven-piece band.

Mrs. Florence Snelson was elected president; Mrs. LaVonne Young, vice president; Mrs. Donna Lambert, recording secretary; Mrs. Mary Frances Martirano, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Sara Rank, treasurer; Miss Joan Hafer, City Council representative and Mrs. Dolly Green, alternate.

The brief business session was conducted by Mrs. Ora Mae Lewis, who gave the City Council report. Mrs. Rank gave a routine report. Mrs. Martirano announced that Mrs. Gladys Bolyard will be a pledge for the Exemplar Degree. She will take the degree at the Ritual dinner April 25 at the Ali Ghan Shrine Club, at 6:30. Reservations are to be made with Mrs. Martirano. The resignation of Mrs. Betty Green was accepted. The group discussed the Cruise Ball to be held April 20 to raise money to furnish a room in the new Sacred Heart Hospital. Mrs. Genevieve Twigg, ways and means chairman, distributed steak, carving and paring knives for sale. It was voted to cancel the April 23 meeting, due to the dinner on the 26th. The next meeting will be held April 9 in conjunction with a tour of the Celanese plant.

W. Va. House, Garden Tour April 27, 28

The ninth annual House and Garden Tour in the historic Eastern Panhandle section of West Virginia will emphasize the Mountain State's Centennial Celebration. The tour will be held April 27 and 28.

Mrs. Ira Eyler, chairman, said this year's tour will highlight placed faced in American history in Shepherdstown, Martinsburg, Charles Town, and Harpers Ferry, W. Va., houses and gardens new on the tour as well as old favorites.

The tour, which covers Jefferson and Berkeley counties, is sponsored by the Shenandoah-Potomac Garden Council. Proceeds will help refurnish the Robert Harper House, one of the main buildings being restored by the National Park Service in Harpers Ferry.

One of the houses added to this year's tour is Harewood, the oldest of the Washington homes in Jefferson County, and the only one still in the Washington family. It was built by Col. Samuel Washington, brother of George Washington, and it was here that Dolly Payne Todd married James Madison, who later became president. The house is being restored by its present owner, Dr. John A. Washington of Washington.

Nearby Charles Town is Piedmont, the original stone wing of which was built in the 1730s. Dr. John Briscoe in 1784 acquired the property and soon afterward built the main brick house, which has been described as a near-perfect example of Georgian architecture. It is still in the Briscoe family.

Always popular on the tour is The Rocks, the Shenandoah River home of Mrs. L. B. Dick, formerly of Philadelphia, with its fine collection of French furniture acquired by the Dicks when they lived 25 years in France. The house is pre-Revolutionary and the grounds are especially beautiful.

The Jefferson County Court House in Charles Town will be on the tour, and here on display will be many historical records and objects. Visitors can see the court room where John Brown was tried in 1859 and sentenced to hang for leading his raid on Harpers Ferry on the eve of the Civil War.

Visitors to 200-year-old Shepherdstown will be encouraged to go on a "walking tour" to better see this lovely old community that once was considered as a possible site for the National Capitol of the United States. The new Students' Union Building at Shepherds College, which dates back to 1871, will be open.

Between Shepherdstown and Martinsburg is another house new on this year's tour. It is the John B. Shepherd farm house, started just before the Civil War by the great grandson of Capt. Thomas Shepherd, founder of Shepherdstown. The house provides an attractive background for the early New England furniture with which its present owners, Mr. and Mrs. John E. Stewart, have furnished it.

East of Martinsburg is Altair, home of Commodore T. E. VanMetre, USN Ret., whose ancestors were among the original settlers in this section. History records that the wounded from the Civil War battle of Sharpsburg were cared for in the old log section to which brick additions were later added. The architecture is typical of a Shenandoah Valley farm home of 100 years ago.

Again on the tour will be Boydville, an imposing house, built in 1812 by General Elisha Boyd and now the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. Roderick Cheeseman. Ready in time for visitors will be a newly restored building on the grounds that was used as a law office by Boyd, his son-in-law, Charles James Faulkner, minister to France, 1860-61, and his son, Charles James Faulkner II, U. S. Senator, 1887-99.

New on the tour will be Huxley Hall, located on the banks of the Tuscarora Creek, outside Martinsburg. The original part of the house dates back to 1782. A brick addition, showing the influence of the Pennsylvania Dutch, was built in 1805 by David Killner who came from Berks County, Penn. The house now is owned by Dr. and Mrs. C. V. Townsend.

In Harpers Ferry, a spectacular view of the town, the Gap, the heights of Maryland, Virginia, and West Virginia, can be seen from the rear terrace at High Acres Farm, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bradley D. Nash, on Bolivar Heights overlooking the Potomac. The furnishings in the remodeled farm house and guest house include 18th Century family pieces, and on the grounds is

A long suit is frequently the most potent weapon in declarer's arsenal when playing a no trump contract. Even when there is a shortage of running tricks, he may, by cashing his winners, induce the opposition to make a fatal discard. In today's three no trump contract, South was able to save an apparently hopeless cause by applying the pressure of the dummy's long suit against his left hand opponent.

West opened the queen of hearts which his partner covered with the ace. The eight of hearts was returned and declarer was in with the king. There were eight running tricks available with more in sight as soon as the ace of diamonds was dislodged. There was a distinct danger that the defenders were in position to cash enough hearts to sink the contract as soon as they obtained the lead.

South might be tempted to sneak thru his ninth trick by leading toward the dummy's king of diamonds but, with the club suit clearly in view, and the hearts ready to run, there appeared to be no chance of declarer's pulling the wool over his opponents' eyes. He decided, instead, to run all of the clubs in the hope that someone would be confronted with an embarrassing discard problem.

West found himself in difficulties very shortly, for he had to make five discards. He could conveniently spare two spades, one diamond, and one heart, but on the final club the pinch became unbearable. If he threw another heart, South would now have time to drive out the ace of diamonds, and the defenders would be able to cash only three hearts and one diamond.

Unwilling to discard the potential setting trick, West threw the queen of spades in the hope that his partner held the jack and could guard the spade suit on his own. Declarer had anticipated his opponent's dilemma, however and, when a small spade was led from the dummy at trick nine, he went right up with the ace dropping West's king. The jack of spades produced the ninth and game fulfilling trick.

Florence Snelson Heads Xi Nu Exemplar BSP

Officers of Xi Nu Exemplar, Beta Sigma Phi elected officers at a meeting at the home of Mrs. William Wood, Armstrong Avenue, Frostburg, after attending the "Showmobile" at State Teachers College Tuesday evening.

Using a circus motif backdrop, with three tents and striped curtains, a unit of the Second Army out of Fort Meade presented a program of songs, tumbling acts, an equestrian act and selections by a seven-piece band.

Mrs. Florence Snelson was elected president; Mrs. LaVonne Young, vice president; Mrs. Donna Lambert, recording secretary; Mrs. Mary Frances Martirano, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Sara Rank, treasurer; Miss Joan Hafer, City Council representative and Mrs. Dolly Green, alternate.

The brief business session was conducted by Mrs. Ora Mae Lewis, who gave the City Council report. Mrs. Rank gave a routine report. Mrs. Martirano announced that Mrs. Gladys Bolyard will be a pledge for the Exemplar Degree. She will take the degree at the Ritual dinner April 25 at the Ali Ghan Shrine Club, at 6:30. Reservations are to be made with Mrs. Martirano. The resignation of Mrs. Betty Green was accepted. The group discussed the Cruise Ball to be held April 20 to raise money to furnish a room in the new Sacred Heart Hospital. Mrs. Genevieve Twigg, ways and means chairman, distributed steak, carving and paring knives for sale. It was voted to cancel the April 23 meeting, due to the dinner on the 26th. The next meeting will be held April 9 in conjunction with a tour of the Celanese plant.

W. Va. House, Garden Tour April 27, 28

The ninth annual House and Garden Tour in the historic Eastern Panhandle section of West Virginia will emphasize the Mountain State's Centennial Celebration. The tour will be held April 27 and 28.

Mrs. Ira Eyler, chairman, said this year's tour will highlight placed faced in American history in Shepherdstown, Martinsburg, Charles Town, and Harpers Ferry, W. Va., houses and gardens new on the tour as well as old favorites.

The tour, which covers Jefferson and Berkeley counties, is sponsored by the Shenandoah-Potomac Garden Council. Proceeds will help refurnish the Robert Harper House, one of the main buildings being restored by the National Park Service in Harpers Ferry.

One of the houses added to this year's tour is Harewood, the oldest of the Washington homes in Jefferson County, and the only one still in the Washington family. It was built by Col. Samuel Washington, brother of George Washington, and it was here that Dolly Payne Todd married James Madison, who later became president. The house is being restored by its present owner, Dr. John A. Washington of Washington.

Nearby Charles Town is Piedmont, the original stone wing of which was built in the 1730s. Dr. John Briscoe in 1784 acquired the property and soon afterward built the main brick house, which has been described as a near-perfect example of Georgian architecture. It is still in the Briscoe family.

Always popular on the tour is The Rocks, the Shenandoah River home of Mrs. L. B. Dick, formerly of Philadelphia, with its fine collection of French furniture acquired by the Dicks when they lived 25 years in France. The house is pre-Revolutionary and the grounds are especially beautiful.

The Jefferson County Court House in Charles Town will be on the tour, and here on display will be many historical records and objects. Visitors can see the court room where John Brown was tried in 1859 and sentenced to hang for leading his raid on Harpers Ferry on the eve of the Civil War.

Visitors to 200-year-old Shepherdstown will be encouraged to go on a "walking tour" to better see this lovely old community that once was considered as a possible site for the National Capitol of the United States. The new Students' Union Building at Shepherds College, which dates back to 1871, will be open.

Between Shepherdstown and Martinsburg is another house new on this year's tour. It is the John B. Shepherd farm house, started just before the Civil War by the great grandson of Capt. Thomas Shepherd, founder of Shepherdstown. The house provides an attractive background for the early New England furniture with which its present owners, Mr. and Mrs. John E. Stewart, have furnished it.

East of Martinsburg is Altair, home of Commodore T. E. VanMetre, USN Ret., whose ancestors were among the original settlers in this section. History records that the wounded from the Civil War battle of Sharpsburg were cared for in the old log section to which brick additions were later added. The architecture is typical of a Shenandoah Valley farm home of 100 years ago.

Again on the tour will be Boydville, an imposing house, built in 1812 by General Elisha Boyd and now the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. Roderick Cheeseman. Ready in time for visitors will be a newly restored building on the grounds that was used as a law office by Boyd, his son-in-law, Charles James Faulkner, minister to France, 1860-61, and his son, Charles James Faulkner II, U. S. Senator, 1887-99.

New on the tour will be Huxley Hall, located on the banks of the Tuscarora Creek, outside Martinsburg. The original part of the house dates back to 1782. A brick addition, showing the influence of the Pennsylvania Dutch, was built in 1805 by David Killner who came from Berks County, Penn. The house now is owned by Dr. and Mrs. C. V. Townsend.

In Harpers Ferry, a spectacular view of the town, the Gap, the heights of Maryland, Virginia, and West Virginia, can be seen from the rear terrace at High Acres Farm, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bradley D. Nash, on Bolivar Heights overlooking the Potomac. The furnishings in the remodeled farm house and guest house include 18th Century family pieces, and on the grounds is

A long suit is frequently the most potent weapon in declarer's arsenal when playing a no trump contract. Even when there is a shortage of running tricks, he may, by cashing his winners, induce the opposition to make a fatal discard. In today's three no trump contract, South was able to save an apparently hopeless cause by applying the pressure of the dummy's long suit against his left hand opponent.

West opened the queen of hearts which his partner covered with the ace. The eight of hearts was returned and declarer was in with the king. There were eight running tricks available with more in sight as soon as the ace of diamonds was dislodged. There was a distinct danger that the defenders were in position to cash enough hearts to sink the contract as soon as they obtained the lead.

South might be tempted to sneak thru his ninth trick by leading toward the dummy's king of diamonds but, with the club suit clearly in view, and the hearts ready to run, there appeared to be no chance of declarer's pulling the wool over his opponents' eyes. He decided, instead, to run all of the clubs in the hope that someone would be confronted with an embarrassing discard problem.

West found himself in difficulties very shortly, for he had to make five discards. He could conveniently spare two spades, one diamond, and one heart, but on the final club the pinch became unbearable. If he threw another heart, South would now have time to drive out the ace of diamonds, and the defenders would be able to cash only three hearts and one diamond.

Unwilling to discard the potential setting trick, West threw the queen of spades in the hope that his partner held the jack and could guard the spade suit on his own. Declarer had anticipated his opponent's dilemma, however and, when a small spade was led from the dummy at trick nine, he went right up with the ace dropping West's king. The jack of spades produced the ninth and game fulfilling trick.

Secrets Of Charm
by John Robert Powers

If Your Figure Changes, So Must Your Clothes

A recent newcomer to the Powers' school — a woman of mature years—resented being told by her styling class instructor that the princess dress she was wearing was not a truly becoming line. "But I've been wearing this style for years!" she exclaimed.

That was exactly her trouble. Her figure had filled out. The opposing curves of the princess silhouette made her appear dumpy, while the straighter lines (which she has since adopted) make her look taller and slimmer.

Your type—like hers—may have changed without your having realized it. Instead of shopping in the misses' department, you may find a better selection in the women's or half-size shops. Or, if you have lost weight, your transition may be the opposite. Size and age are not synonymous where fashion is concerned. It's your figure that counts!

If the waistlines of dresses you try on in one department are consistently too short or too long; if the jackets don't fit smoothly and the skirts of one size are skimpy, while the next size is loose; if the foundation garments you've been buying are no longer comfortable — it's time to make changes.

Clothes project your personality by their style and color. Those that fit project it most attractively. Instead of perpetuating in your wardrobe a type you like, without regard for its flattery to your current contours, enlarge your fashion outlook.

You don't have to apologize for your type, size or age—not even to yourself! That's a rule the Powers Girls learn when they first become models. To see a former Powers Girl long after her career before the cameras has ended, you know they continue to abide by it. They dress to the reality, not to the wish. Do likewise, to enhance your own appearance.

Along with the personally outmoded lines and colors, discard the hair style and cosmetics you chose years ago because then they were becoming and fashionable.

Xi Beta BSP Re-Elects Juanita Brinsmade Head

Mrs. Juanita Brinsmade was re-elected president of the Xi Beta Exemplar Chapter, Beta Sigma Phi at the meeting Tuesday evening.

Other officers are Mrs. Josephine Miltenberger, vice president; Mrs. Caroline Griffin, secretary and Mrs. Almeda Poole, treasurer.

Committee members will be appointed at the April meeting which will be held on the ninth at the home of Miss Ruth Lester, 1809 Bedford Street. At that time Mrs. Elizabeth Chaney will have charge of the program.

A letter was read from the international with a Founders Day message. Founders Day is celebrated at the close of February. Mrs. Poole and Mrs. Brinsmade reported on the Order of the Rose tea in Keyser Sunday. A BSP must have 15 years service to be eligible for the order. Members also discussed the spring Cruise Ball which will be held April 20 at the Ali Ghan Shrine Club.

Preceding the meeting, which was held at the Court House. Miss Eleanor Albright, who was hostess, spoke on the duties of the clerk of the court. She explained how various licenses are issued, such as marriage licenses, licenses for business firms, called traders licenses; and licenses for construction, etc. She also said the clerk is responsible for keeping land records, which includes recording deeds and mortgages. She also explained records of divorce actions are filed and anything that pertains to real estate is recorded there. Some of the oldest records go back to George Washington's time and an interesting note is that some of the deeds show that land frequently was exchanged for tobacco.

The clerk's office, she said, also takes care of such things as adoption records and change of name, along with all court trials. The clerk is required to keep records and minutes of court cases, and a permanent record is maintained of all civil, criminal and equity cases, as well as any other matter which is tried in an open court. He also assists at sessions of the court, calls the cases, swears the witness and records the proceedings. He is responsible to both the state and the county for the collection of various fees and charges required by law, and at regular intervals forwards this money to the state comptroller or county treasurer.

Others present were Mrs. Virginia Ward, Miss Catherine Coleman, Mrs. Miltenberger, Miss Ruth Lester, Mrs. Griffin and Miss Martha Lee Heron.

a new rose garden sponsored by the Colonial District of the American Rose Society.

During the past year, considerable progress has been made by the National Park Service in re-creating Harpers Ferry as it was on the eve of the John Brown Raid. One of the key structures undergoing restoration is the Robert Harper House which dates back to the American Revolutionary period. Sections of this house will be opened, and visitors also can see work being done on the old Stagecoach Inn. Eventually the Inn, originally built as a commercial establishment and residence in 1826, will be an Information Center.

Members of the Garden Clubs will help as hostesses at the various homes, at Harpers Ferry, and at Tour Headquarters in the Jefferson County Court House in Charles Town and at the Public Library in Shepherdstown.

LaVale Century Club Choral Group has been invited to present a program at the General Federation of Women's Clubs convention in Baltimore the latter part of April. Mrs. Alan Macy, music chairman, requested all attend three rehearsals, which will be at 7 p.m. April 2, 8, and 15. Those who will sing at the May meeting, besides the 15 going to Baltimore, are asked to attend the practices. The group is to sing several selections at the May 28 dinner-meeting at the Cumberland Country Club, at which time officers will be installed.

Mrs. Raymond Twaites Jr. will continue as chairman of the Christmas Caravan, until the new board is appointed. She announced that since articles at the bazaar were sold out last year, work will begin immediately on making items for the bazaar. She had a display of various ideas, suggesting members make anything during the summer.

It also was announced that Robert Garner needs volunteers for the neighborhood cancer fund drive. Anyone interested in collecting is asked to call him.

The nominating committee report was given by Mrs. Richard Heacox. The slate of officers recommended for election at the April meeting includes Mrs. William Hoover, for president; Mrs. Twaites, first vice president; Mrs. Stanley Sliviak, second vice president; Mrs. Edwin Miller, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Glenn Martin, recording secretary; and Mrs. Harold Francis, treasurer. Other nominations may be made from the floor. Election will be April 30. A program is to be announced.

Mrs. Sliviak, library chairman, announced National Library Week will be April 21 through 27, and that plans are being made to have reading sessions at Parkside and LaVale schools. Routine reports were given. Mrs. William Hoover welcomed three new members. They are Mrs. Charles Kahl, Mrs. Troy Campbell and Mrs. W. Donald Long. Guests for the evening were Mrs. Robert J. Merchant and Mrs. James Hansen.

The program chairman, Mrs. William F. Baker, introduced James S. Getty, state's attorney for Allegany County, who spoke on "Law Enforcement Problems." A question session followed.

A social hour followed and refreshments were served. The table was centered with an arrangement of tall coral colored gladioli surrounded with pale pink caranations and green sprays. Three-tier candelabra with pale pink tapers were at either side. Approximately 76 members and guests attended. Hostesses were Mrs. David G. Drewry, Mrs. Robert Dezen, Mrs. William A. Douglas, Mrs. John G. Lucas Jr., Mrs. Donald E. Marang and Mrs. David G. Whitworth.

Mrs. Juanita Brinsmade was re-elected president of the Xi Beta Exemplar Chapter, Beta Sigma Phi at the meeting Tuesday evening.

Other officers are Mrs. Josephine Miltenberger, vice president; Mrs. Caroline Griffin, secretary and Mrs. Almeda Poole, treasurer.

Committee members will be appointed at the April meeting which will be held on the ninth at the home of Miss Ruth Lester, 1809 Bedford Street. At that time Mrs. Elizabeth Chaney will have charge of the program.

A letter was read from the international with a Founders Day message. Founders Day is celebrated at the close of February. Mrs. Poole and Mrs. Brinsmade reported on the Order of the Rose tea in Keyser Sunday. A BSP must have 15 years service to be eligible for the order. Members also discussed the spring Cruise Ball which will be held April 20 at the Ali Ghan Shrine Club.

Preceding the meeting, which was held at the Court House, Miss Eleanor Albright, who was hostess, spoke on the duties of the clerk of the court. She explained how various licenses are issued, such as marriage licenses, licenses for business firms, called traders licenses; and licenses for construction, etc. She also said the clerk is responsible for keeping land records, which includes recording deeds and mortgages. She also explained records of divorce actions are filed and anything that pertains to real estate is recorded there. Some of the oldest records go back to George Washington's time and an interesting note is that some of the deeds show that land frequently was exchanged for tobacco.

The clerk's office, she said, also takes care of such things as adoption records and change of name, along with all court trials. Sales Outlook Good

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The President's chief economic adviser Walter Heller, said that the chances are good that total retail sales volume this month will expand by 2 per cent "or even better" from February's record level. In a talk before the Magazine Publishers Association, Heller noted that the February figure was $20.291 billion after adjustment for seasonal factors.

Letter Of The Law

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — A woman was taking her drivers license exam in Tucson when the state highway patrolman said the eye test indicated she should drive only with glasses.

"But I have contacts," the woman said.

Reds Dismiss High Official

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Kremlin launched an apparent new economic housecleaning drive in the central Asian republic of Turkmenia this week by personally supervising the ouster of a high Turkmenian party official.

The government newspaper Izvestia said Communist Party Secretary Frol Kozlov, who ranks second only to Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev in the party hierarchy, participated in a Turkmenian Communist Party central committee meeting Monday.

It resulted in the dismissal of M.A. Pimenov from the post of Turkmenian party presidium member and second secretary.

No reasons for the dismissal were given nor was any new post for Pimenov announced. He was replaced by V. N. Rykov.

Kozlov, whose appearance in Turkmenia appeared to be the latest in a series of top-level efforts to crack down on waste, mismanagement and dishonesty in the Soviet economy, made "a big speech," Izvestia said.

Soaked For Water

POMPANO BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The city is trying to find out what happened to 955,000 gallons of water the city pool didn't use, but was charged with.

Since the pool wasn't drained during the month and has a recirculating system anyway, officials are stumped for an answer to where the wet went.

"There's either a whale of a leak somewhere or a lot of kids are going home with soggy sneakers," said city commissioners.

Hourani Seeks Asylum

Sales Outlook Good

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The President's chief economic adviser Walter Heller, said that the chances are good that total retail sales volume this month will expand by 2 per cent "or even better" from February's record level. In a talk before the Magazine Publishers Association, Heller noted that the February figure was $20.291 billion after adjustment for seasonal factors.

Letter Of The Law

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — A woman was taking her drivers license exam in Tucson when the state highway patrolman said the eye test indicated she should drive only with glasses.

"But I have contacts," the woman said.

Reds Dismiss High Official

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Kremlin launched an apparent new economic housecleaning drive in the central Asian republic of Turkmenia this week by personally supervising the ouster of a high Turkmenian party official.

The government newspaper Izvestia said Communist Party Secretary Frol Kozlov, who ranks second only to Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev in the party hierarchy, participated in a Turkmenian Communist Party central committee meeting Monday.

It resulted in the dismissal of M.A. Pimenov from the post of Turkmenian party presidium member and second secretary.

No reasons for the dismissal were given nor was any new post for Pimenov announced. He was replaced by V. N. Rykov.

Kozlov, whose appearance in Turkmenia appeared to be the latest in a series of top-level efforts to crack down on waste, mismanagement and dishonesty in the Soviet economy, made "a big speech," Izvestia said.

Soaked For Water

POMPANO BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The city is trying to find out what happened to 955,000 gallons of water the city pool didn't use, but was charged with.

Since the pool wasn't drained during the month and has a recirculating system anyway, officials are stumped for an answer to where the wet went.

Hourani Seeks Asylum

Animal Society Criticizes Hughes Over 'Peep Bill'

The Animal Welfare Society of Allegany County, in a letter to Sen. George R. Hughes Jr., said that it fails to "fathom your solidarity stand" in opposing Senate Bill 328, "The Peep Bill."

Louis B. Young, a member of the board of directors of the society, said to the Allegany County senator that "since you turned down our bill, we have been contacted by letter and wire by many groups, such as the National Catholic Society for Animal Welfare, the Maryland Humane Association, and the Society for Animal Protection."

"All of these groups like our selves fail to fathom your solitary stand," the society said.

Sen. Hughes drew criticism from the society when he exempted Allegany County from Senate Bill 328 that would prohibit the sale of colored peeps and ducks for presents.

Sen. Hughes, in a letter to the society dated March 21, told the society that he did not believe it is wrong to sell, barter or give away baby birds or rabbits, and also did not see how the bill can effectively be administered

"Our answers to these are: It is wrong to place any living creature into the hands of persons unacquainted with their proper care. Children are not in any sense desirable custodians of baby animals. Their interest soon wanes; and if improper handling has not killed the birds or rabbits, neglect soon does. Easter is a particularly desirable time for these abuses."

Secondly, the society answered Sen. Hughes that "The administration of this law is a county matter and does not directly concern you. Trained personnel in the counties are available for this purpose, as well as many animal protection groups."

"As for the dyeing of these animals," the letter explained, "vegetable dyes as used today do not harm any living thing and are extensively used by conservation for marking wildlife, etc. The only reason we object to dyeing animals is because it makes them attractive to children who are unversed in their handling."

The society concluded its letter by stating:

"We again urge you to withdraw your opposition before it is too late. We will continue to work for and publicize the 'Peep Law'. Perhaps if we approach the Allegany County Commissioners as we did the Cumberland City Council, we can have it passed regardless of your position."

Cumberland, by a city ordinance, has outlawed the sale of the colored peeps and ducks in the city limits.

Fike Returned To Institution

Chief Judge Morgan C. Harris yesterday denied a petition of a Keyser area man and ordered him returned to the Patuxent Institute as a defective delinquent.

Emory Taylor Fike, 24, who was represented by Miller Bowen, court-appointed counsel, was described by Dr. Harold M. Boslow, director of the Institute, as being unfit to be returned to society. Dr. Boslow told the court that "it is hoped that with several years training and treatment Fike could be released."

Dr. Richard W. Trevaskis Jr., local psychiatrist, told the court of his examination of the young man both in 1959 on the occasion of his arrest and conviction of arson in setting the Elda Inn on Braddock Road on fire and also his examination of the man Tuesday.

Dr. Trevaskis was of the same opinion as Dr. Boslow, that Fike should not be released.

Fike was sentenced to the State Reformatory for Males in 1959 and was released in May of 1961. On March 30, 1962 he was found guilty of attempted robbery of the Allegany Finance Company on South Liberty Street and was given a year in the Reformatory.

Fike was later transferred to Patuxent Institute for treatment.

Third Member Of Family Dies Of Accident Injuries

Terry Dove, seven-year-old Mathias, W. Va., youth died yesterday in Rockingham Memorial Hospital, Harrisonburg, Va., the third victim in his family of a truck-car crash Monday near Broadway, Va.

The youth was critically injured in a crash on Virginia Route 259 that claimed the lives of his mother, Mrs. Vertie Dove Mongold, 31, and sister, Sandra Dove, 10.

Virginia authorities said a car driven by Mrs. Mongold rammed into the back of a truck that had stopped preparatory to turning off Route 259.

Triple funeral services will be conducted today at 2 p. m. at the Mathias Church of the Brethren by Rev. Wendell Mathias and Rev. Dr. Floyd Fulk. Interment will be in Cedar Hill Cemetery, Mathias.

The bodies are at the Lindsey Funeral Home, Broadway.

Hardy County, W. Va., officials said Mrs. Mongold was married Saturday to Delmar Mongold after having been widowed since last July when her first husband, Owen Dove, was killed in a highway accident near Mathias.

MIAMI (AP) — The Miami River is the boundary between two elementary school districts.

School authorities said one family resides in a houseboat on the river. If any of their four children become disenchanted in any way, the family simply slips mooring lines, chugs to the other bank of the river and enrolls the children in the other school.

Authorities said it had happened several times.

Practice Teaching Record For Year Is Reviewed

Charles W. Stansberry, a member of the Frostburg State Teachers College faculty whose primary responsibility is concerned with student practice teaching in elementary schools, met Tuesday with County Superintendent of Schools Ralph R. Webster.

Mr. Webster said the purpose of the meeting was to review the work of practice teachers who served in elementary schools of Allegany County this year and to discuss those who seemed to have the best qualifications to make successful teachers in the county school system in September.

Meeting with Mr. Stansberry and Mr. Webster were the two supervisors of elementary education in the county, Miss Margaret E. Doak and Miss Elizabeth I. Flake.

Suit For Damages Docketed In Court

A suit docketed in the name of Robert S. Hopkins, Beecher Avenue, Eckhart, for his own use and use of the United Security Insurance Company of New Jersey, was filed Tuesday against Orville William Crowe Jr., Linden Street, Frostburg, in Allegany County Circuit Court.

Mr. Hopkins was stopped at a traffic light at Main and Grant streets, Frostburg, about 3:30 p.m. February 15 while traveling west on Main Street. He said his stopped car was struck in the rear by the defendant's automobile causing $995 damage.

Mr. Hopkins paid $100 of the cost of repairing the damages and the other $895 was paid by United Security Insurance Company, the equitable plaintiff.

Ali Ghan Shrine Temple will hold its annual Potentate's Ball Saturday with a young comedian and a popular songstress having been booked for the Ali Ghan Shrine Club social event of the year.

Reservations have been limited to 300 couples and the deadline is today.

Winfield H. Adam and Charles F. Dick, co-chairmen of Ali Ghan Temple's activities committee and in charge of arrangements for the ball, said "very few reservations" remain for Temple members. Shrine members planning to attend should call Temple Recorder Byron Kight, they said.

A dinner at 7 p. m. will precede the ball which is scheduled to begin at 9 p. m.

Mr. Adam will be master of ceremonies. Music will be provided by the "Gentlemen of Note," tri-state area dance orchestra, which will feature vocalist Susan Knieriem.

Booked for the ball have been two television-experienced entertainers. Gene Brenner has been described by columnist Walter Winchell as "one of the most refreshing young comics to come along in a long while."

Also signed to perform here will be Suzanne Nicole, credited by show business' "Variety newspaper as a "terrific songstress with a wallop—a real star."

Theme for the ball, according to Mr. Adam, is "An Evening to Remember."

Also serving on the Ali Ghan activities and dance committee are Past Potentate J. Wallace Close, John Purucker, Roscoe McElfish, Allen Staggers, Jack Towler and Droze Zembower.

County May Get $455,000 State Funds

Gov. J. Millard Tawes' capital improvements budget presented to the General Assembly for fiscal year 1963-64 would provide Allegany County with over $455,000 in state funds.

Of the total, $150,000 is earmarked for land acquisition for the proposed Rocky Gap State Park located east of Cumberland.

Last year, the capital improvements budget provided $100,000 for land acquisition at the park, but it was reported by an informed source that this amount has not been spent by the Department of Forests and Parks.

This would make $250,000 on hand for pushing progress for what is to be one of the state's better parks.

Frostburg State Teachers College is set down for $155,000, also for the purchase of land.

This is to provide expansion of the college and its facilities in keeping with the recommendations of the Curlett Commission on Higher Education.

R. Bowen Hardesty, president, said the money will allow the purchase of land west and southwest and adjacent to the college property.

Another $5,000 is allocated for the college for advanced planning of an arts and sciences building.

The third $150,000 would go toward the construction of a new building here for the Maryland Workshop for the Blind. The present facilities are located on Milton Place in a converted manufacturing building.

The expenditures proposed by Gov. Tawes were studied Tuesday by a joint committee of five members of the House of Delegates Ways and Means Committee and five members of the Senate Finance Committee.

The bill providing for the allocations of capital improvements funds was to be introduced in the Senate.

Third Member Of Family Dies Of Accident Injuries

Terry Dove, seven-year-old Mathias, W. Va., youth died yesterday in Rockingham Memorial Hospital, Harrisonburg, Va., the third victim in his family of a truck-car crash Monday near Broadway, Va.

The youth was critically injured in a crash on Virginia Route 259 that claimed the lives of his mother, Mrs. Vertie Dove Mongold, 31, and sister, Sandra Dove, 10.

Virginia authorities said a car driven by Mrs. Mongold rammed into the back of a truck that had stopped preparatory to turning off Route 259.

Triple funeral services will be conducted today at 2 p. m. at the Mathias Church of the Brethren by Rev. Wendell Mathias and Rev. Dr. Floyd Fulk. Interment will be in Cedar Hill Cemetery, Mathias.

The bodies are at the Lindsey Funeral Home, Broadway.

Hardy County, W. Va., officials said Mrs. Mongold was married Saturday to Delmar Mongold after having been widowed since last July when her first husband, Owen Dove, was killed in a highway accident near Mathias.

MIAMI (AP) — The Miami River is the boundary between two elementary school districts.

School authorities said one family resides in a houseboat on the river. If any of their four children become disenchanted in any way, the family simply slips mooring lines, chugs to the other bank of the river and enrolls the children in the other school.

Authorities said it had happened several times.

NEW YORK (AP) — American Airlines Pilot Capt. R. C. Hobson not only transports his passengers to Idlewood Airport by jet — he invites any who live in the New Canaan, Conn., area to ride home with him in his car.

The invitation is issued, via the intercom, just as the plane begins its descent and almost every flight has at least one person aboard who is pleased to continue his trip with Captain Hobson—this time on the ground.

Practice Teaching Record For Year Is Reviewed

Charles W. Stansberry, a member of the Frostburg State Teachers College faculty whose primary responsibility is concerned with student practice teaching in elementary schools, met Tuesday with County Superintendent of Schools Ralph R. Webster.

Mr. Webster said the purpose of the meeting was to review the work of practice teachers who served in elementary schools of Allegany County this year and to discuss those who seemed to have the best qualifications to make successful teachers in the county school system in September.

Meeting with Mr. Stansberry and Mr. Webster were the two supervisors of elementary education in the county, Miss Margaret E. Doak and Miss Elizabeth I. Flake.

Suit For Damages Docketed In Court

A suit docketed in the name of Robert S. Hopkins, Beecher Avenue, Eckhart, for his own use and use of the United Security Insurance Company of New Jersey, was filed Tuesday against Orville William Crowe Jr., Linden Street, Frostburg, in Allegany County Circuit Court.

Mr. Hopkins was stopped at a traffic light at Main and Grant streets, Frostburg, about 3:30 p.m. February 15 while traveling west on Main Street. He said his stopped car was struck in the rear by the defendant's automobile causing $995 damage.

Mr. Hopkins paid $100 of the cost of repairing the damages and the other $895 was paid by United Security Insurance Company, the equitable plaintiff.

Local College To Take Part In Testing Program

Allegany Community College will participate in the National Guidance Testing Program, it was announced by Dr. Robert S. Zimmer, president.

"Sophomore Testing," as the program is popularly known, is designed to enhance the usefulness of test results to individual students and to reduce the costs of school testing through low cost scoring service, Dr. Zimmer explained.

Students who are prospective graduates will take a series of achievement tests — the Sequential Tests of Educational Progress (STEP).

William H. Smerling, director of student personnel, explained, "The STEP tests evaluate the student's skills in reading, writing and listening and his ability to apply what he has learned to the solution of new problems in mathematics, science and social studies."

"The primary advantage is that interpretations of the test scores are provided on special forms which enable each student to compare his performance with that of other students at his college level throughout the country.

"In like manner, it will permit the college to compare its product with other colleges and universities."

Students mark a single answer sheet which accommodates responses to as many as seven different tests, thus contributing to the economy and efficiency of test administration. Answer sheets are forwarded to Educational Testing Service, Princeton, N. J., for scoring on specially-designed electronic data processing equipment.

"Electronic scoring eliminates the slower task of hand-scoring," Smerling said, "and the variety of test reports helps us to get an objective picture of each student's strengths and weaknesses. These reports obviously greatly increase the usefulness of test results to our faculty and advisory staff in their continued evaluation of the program at A.C.C."

Testing at Allegany Community College will be held on April 1-2. The school will receive results approximately three weeks after the answer sheets have reached Princeton for scoring.

During this school year, over 750,000 students in all parts of the United States will participate in NGTP, Mr. Smerling stated.

Local Police In U.S. Study

The Cumberland Police Department is participating in a nationwide study of police functions in juvenile crime.

Chief B. Frank Gaffney said the study is being made in cooperation with the International Association of Chiefs of Police, Inc.

The study, Chief Gaffney said, is being financed by the President's Committee on Juvenile Delinquency and Youth Crime. Local officers are being asked to express their views about pertinent aspects of the juvenile crime problem based upon their first-hand experience.

Chief Gaffney said the study will be analyzed at the Washington (D. C.) Headquarters of the IACP.

The local police chief said preliminary examination of returns indicates that bad home conditions and incompetent or neglectful parents are more often than not at the root of the difficulty where repeating juvenile criminals are involved. A firm, "no nonsense" attitude on the part of police, coupled with proper discipline by responsible parents has been found effective in straightening out youngsters who run afoul of the law. Chief Gaffney noted that police have no desire to punish children. "The police job is to prevent crime and to protect the lives and property of all citizens," Gaffney said.

The chief also observed: "Close cooperation between the police, the courts, the schools and other community agencies, and especially parents, is the key to effective action."

Damage Suit Filed In Accident

Suit was docketed in Circuit Court yesterday by a Baltimore couple against a Flintstone man as the result of a highway accident April 7, 1961 on U. S. Route 40 about 15 miles east of Cumberland.

James E. Jones and Mary Louise Jones, his wife, docketed the suit through their attorney Edwin M. Horchler, against Donald Dolly.

The declaration states that Mrs. Jones was driving a car on the highway and as she was passing a tractor-trailer operated by Dolly the rig turned left. The Jones' car left the roadway and hit a utility pole. The machine was badly damaged and the couple and their children suffered injuries.

McGinn, Buckel Wills Probated

Wills of two Lonaconing women who died earlier this month were probated Tuesday in Allegany County Orphans Court.

One was the last testament of Miss Agnes M. McGinn, who was a 90-year-old retired teacher at the time of her death March 20 at the County Infirmary. Her brother, Griffin A. McGinn, South Ozone Park, N. Y., qualified as executor under a $1,000 bond. He was the sole beneficiary under terms of the will dated June 21, 1956.

Also probated yesterday was the will of Mrs. Janet Buckel, who was 85 at the time of her death March 8. Her nephew, George B. Cooper, Lonaconing, qualified as executor under a $500 bond.

Her estate will be shared by her two sisters, Mrs. Maude Ralston, Monessen, Pa., and Mrs. Helen Reiber, Lonaconing; a brother, Clarence Crichton, Cleveland, and her nephew, Mr. Cooper. This will was dated February 27, 1959.

Lights For Lives

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—The new beacon flashing over the Atlanta skyline is a life-and-death matter.

The "life light" atop a bank building sends out a green light to show no one has been killed in a traffic accident in Atlanta within the preceding 24 hours.

When a death occurs, the beacon flashes red for 24 hours as a grim reminder of the tragedy.

Now He Tells Them

MANILA (AP)—Alfredo Reyes, unable to post bond, spent five months in jail waiting to be tried for car theft.

Finally the trial was held. The complainant, seeing Reyes for the first time, said the police had gotten the right name but the wrong man.

Confront Congress

WASHINGTON — Oilmen told congress Tuesday that it would be against the "public interest" to impose the heavier taxes on oil and gas profits proposed by President Kennedy.

They said the industry's taxes could not be hiked without subjecting the nation to the risk of future shortages of the crude oil and natural gas needed for economic growth and military strength. The administration has proposed tax revisions that would net an additional $280 million in taxes on profits from production of oil and gas.

King Saud's Downed Plane Still Missing

SANTANNA DI VALDIERI, Italy (UPI) —All clues in the search for King Saud's missing jetliner were called fruitless Tuesday.

It is believed the plane crashed in the mountains near here last Wednesday, killing the 18 persons aboard.

The weather was slowly worsening Tuesday night with French and Italian helicopters and planes still flying among the fog-shrouded peaks.

Lights For Lives

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—The new beacon flashing over the Atlanta skyline is a life-and-death matter.

The "life light" atop a bank building sends out a green light to show no one has been killed in a traffic accident in Atlanta within the preceding 24 hours.

When a death occurs, the beacon flashes red for 24 hours as a grim reminder of the tragedy.

Falconry Has Revival In Ozarks

THAYER, Mo. (UPI)—Falconry an historic sport that pits bird against bird, has experienced a revival in this Ozark Mountains region.

Lumberman Daniel A. Cover said the grace and skill of the hunt with the powerful birds has attracted many "gun hunters."

Cover hunts quail, crows and starlings with his falcons here and travels to Canada to hunt Hungarian partridges and sharptail grouse.

"The birds are so swift, so graceful to watch in flight, that hunting with falcons is a thrill," he said. "In fact, a near miss of a game bird with a falcon can be as spectacular as success."

Cover was a longtime gun hunter but was lured to falconry by its history, which dates back to Kubla Khan, and by the ease and lack of challenge with which game is killed with firearms.

"If the average gun hunter took home as little game (as a falconer), he probably would give up hunting," Cover said.

He said although the percentage of kill is low, the swirl, dive and play of nature against nature is "very exciting."

"It is just as important to have a good bird dog when you hunt with falcons as when you hunt with guns," he said. "When the dog points game, you release the falcon from your wrist and he is trained to fly 200 to 300 feet above you.

"When the falcon is in good position, you flush the birds and the falcon swoops."

He said the kill is accomplished when the falcon seizes the victim with its powerful talons.

Cover said falconry is an inexpensive sport, but requires great patience and much work.

The wild bird, he said, must be worked by tedious steps from learning to sit on the glove to making high dives.

"When the bird learns that falconry is a partnership between the bird and man," he said, "you have become a falconer."

Housewives Should Check Packages For Best Buys

By WILLIAM T. PLUNKETT

NEW YORK (UPI)—If housewives juggling family food funds want to get their money's worth, they should read—and heed— the labels on canned and packaged groceries.

Of the 8,000 items found in today's supermarkets, most are packaged or processed in some degree.

Since labels are a clue to the contents, shoppers should read them "to make better use of the food dollar," advised Judith Siegel, a home economist in marketing with the New York State Extension Service.

Food packages offer many useful features, such as convenience, protection from handling and contamination, and often as a saving in cost.

Labels of the 1890s and 1900s had little information to guide the shopper. Early labels merely told the name of the product and often had pictures, and phrases of glamorous appeal, but contained few specific facts.

Today, federal law governs and regulates food labels. Under the Food, Drug and Cosmetics Act, all foods sold, or shipped across state lines, must list specific information. They must show the common or usual name of the product; name and address of the manufacturer, packer or shipper; an accurate statement of quantity contents in terms of weight, measure or numeral count. Also, a list of ingredients when two or more food go into a product that is NOT standardized.

Specific regulations also govern information on ingredients. Use of artificial coloring, flavoring and preservatives must be stated exactly. Also, the dietary properties, if the product is for special dietary purposes.

Mrs. Siegel said that sometimes the information required by law is on the label, but in such small print, or in such a position or color, as to be difficult to read.

A few guide lines suggested for saving on the food bill include:

Examine food packages carefully, checking net weight and degree of fill; buy brand names that give the product accurate and useful label information; do not be influenced unduly by adjectives or colorful pictures on the package; know the cost of the food purchases; compare the cost per unit; and register complaints with the store manager, write the manufacturer, or the Food and Drug Administration.

BROTHER MIXUP IN CONGRESS—Sen. Thruston B. Morton of Kentucky almost has a double since his brother, Rep. Rogers C. B. Morton (right), has been in Washington as a freshman Congressman from Maryland. Because the brothers are both middle-of-the-road Republicans, they don't mind occasional mixups. The Senator is six feet, six inches tall, which is only two inches shorter than the height of the Representative.

The Four Keys To Cancer Control

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the third of a series of articles on "The Four Keys To Cancer Control." This article tells of the quest for cancer drugs.)

By PAT McGRADY
Science Editor
American Cancer Society

About 30 drugs now are being used in various American medical centers against approximately 40 kinds of human cancer.

They represent a last stand against inexorably advancing disease. They are used usually when the cancer has spread beyond the surgeon's ability to remove it and when the cancer becomes resistant to X-rays. Surgery and radiation are recognized as the only means of curing cancer.

An adage in medicine is: Drugs never have cured a human cancer.

The adage seems almost due for revision.

One kind of human cancer has been kept under such complete control by drugs — in some cases now for more than six years — that they meet the technical definition of a cancer cure. The definition requires that the patient be well and without evidence of the disease five years after treatment.

The cancer which seems at long last to have yielded to drugs is a rare one called choriocarcinoma It arises from a bit of placenta which remains in the womb following delivery, and, except for a few cases in which it disappears spontaneously, its lethal cells seed the lungs, brain and other vital organs.

About seven years ago scientists at the National Cancer Institute began treating choriocarcinoma with a counterfeit B-vitamin called methotrexate. In eight out of ten patients, the uterine tumor withered away, and X-rays showed that its colonies in other body sites cleared up.

As time passed, choriocarcinoma returned and killed some of its victims. Today, however, it appears that the drug clears up the condition "permanently" in about 30 per cent of the patients.

Other Drugs To The Rescue

As nothing succeeds like success, other drugs now are helping rescue choriocarcinoma patients who eventually become resistent to methotrexate. Among the preparations which now help are two extracts of the pretty flowering plant, periwinkle; the drugs are called vinca leukoblastine and leurocristine.

Methotrexate first was used in 1948 against leukemia in children on the theory that if the antivitamin interfered with growth, it might block the uncontrolled growth of leukemic cells.

In some of the dying children, the drug wrought a miracle; it kept them alive and reasonably well for periods ranging from several weeks to as much as six years, before it finally lost its ability to postpone the inevitable.

Leukemia is still incurable. A growing number of agents, including X-rays, cortisone, the periwinkle extracts, three nitrogen mustard derivates and two or three other drugs of less definite value, have lengthened the short lifespan of leukemic children. And recently a brilliantly conceived drug called, for short, MeGAG, has shown promise in helping adult leukemics.

Gradually, the list of drugs which attack one or more kinds of cancer is increasing. All of the effective ones are toxic to a small degree. But, one by one, the many types of cancer are coming under arrest for varying periods, and the distressing symptoms of the disease, including pain, are being alleviated.

At the present rate, by this time next year perhaps a half-dozen new preparations of proved value from the 1960 now under clinical trials in 150 hospitals will be used regularly against cancers in humans, possibly against cancers which can not be helped by drugs available now. And scores of still newer drugs will be showing promise in animal experiments; some of them may be ready for human trails the year after next.

How Drugs Are Developed

Anti-cancer drugs are discovered or conceived in many ways.

The highly useful nitrogen mustard was a World War II poison gas prepared by Germany. The allies found that a captured sample shrank lymphatic tissue and destroyed white blood cells and bone marrow. It was tried and found destructive of the sick cells, lymphatic tissue and marrow of leukemics.

An antibiotic, actinomycin D, which is a good treatment for a group of cancers, came out of the massive program under which many thousands of chemicals are tested each year against experimental cancers in animals.

A great many new drugs are coming off the biochemists' molecular assembly lines. They are designed as counterfeits of natural cell chemicals — false segments of nucleic acids which comprise genes and protein factories, bogus protein components and fraudulent vitamins. Some of them bring disaster to cancer cells; but they also damage fast-growing normal cells.

To a degree, the primitive remedies of primitive people are being reviewed, samples of folklore medicine from the distant past and far places are being tested, and new plant extracts are under study.

Natural hormones, known to play a role in some cancers, are being administered, or hormone-producing glands are removed to palliate some cancers of the breast, prostate and, occasionally, uterus.

Combinations of drugs, tried concurrently or in sequence, are being tested.

The "magic bullet" for cancer has not been found as yet. But armies of scientists in thousands of laboratories throughout the world are avidly seeking it.

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — Casey Jones of ballad fame was born John Luther Jones at Jordan, Ky., in 1864.

At 17 he got a railroad job at Cayce, Ky., and later always boasted he would get his train through on time.

His final and fatal test came April 30, 1900, when he drove Old 382, the Cannon Ball, through a thick fog near Vaughn, Miss., and collided with a freight train.

Casey ordered his fireman to jump and stuck to his throttle, saving the passengers and losing his own life.

BROTHER MIXUP IN CONGRESS—Sen. Thruston B. Morton of Kentucky almost has a double since his brother, Rep. Rogers C. B. Morton (right), has been in Washington as a freshman Congressman from Maryland. Because the brothers are both middle-of-the-road Republicans, they don't mind occasional mixups. The Senator is six feet, six inches tall, which is only two inches shorter than the height of the Representative.

The Four Keys To Cancer Control

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the third of a series of articles on "The Four Keys To Cancer Control." This article tells of the quest for cancer drugs.)

By PAT McGRADY
Science Editor
American Cancer Society

About 30 drugs now are being used in various American medical centers against approximately 40 kinds of human cancer.

They represent a last stand against inexorably advancing disease. They are used usually when the cancer has spread beyond the surgeon's ability to remove it and when the cancer becomes resistant to X-rays. Surgery and radiation are recognized as the only means of curing cancer.

An adage in medicine is: Drugs never have cured a human cancer.

The adage seems almost due for revision.

One kind of human cancer has been kept under such complete control by drugs — in some cases now for more than six years — that they meet the technical definition of a cancer cure. The definition requires that the patient be well and without evidence of the disease five years after treatment.

The cancer which seems at long last to have yielded to drugs is a rare one called choriocarcinoma It arises from a bit of placenta which remains in the womb following delivery, and, except for a few cases in which it disappears spontaneously, its lethal cells seed the lungs, brain and other vital organs.

And scores of still newer drugs will be showing promise in animal experiments; some of them may be ready for human trails the year after next.

Israel Visitor Should Tour Jerusalem

By MURRAY J. BROWN

JERUSALEM, Israel (UPI)--The climax of any tour of the young modern state of Israel has to be the visit to Jerusalem, the age-old Holy City of Christians and Jews in the rock-ribbed Judean hills.

For here the Bible and history come alive. Here is where King David and Jesus Christ walked. This was the prize for which Jews, Arabs, Turks, Saracens, Crusaders, Romans, Greeks, Babylonians and others clashed.

Jerusalem's history goes back about 3,000 years. King David made the Jebusite fortress his capital around 1000 B.C. after the Israelites had conquered the land of Canaan. It was razed and sacked but built again. The tribes of Israel were scattered but Jerusalem remained their religious and spiritual home.

After the crucifixion of Christ, Jerusalem became a holy city for the Christians. And it is second only to Mecca as a shrine for Moslems.

The third largest city after Tel Aviv and Haifa, Jerusalem, with a population of 156,000, again is the capital of Israel.

It lies nearly 2,500 feet high at the very tip of the Israeli finger poking deep into the Jordanian bulge.

Wrecks Remain

The traveler reaches Jerusalem these days over a paved two-lane road which winds up the rock-studded, nearly-bare Judean hills. The route takes one past "Burma Road," built by the Jews during the 1948 Palestine War to supply besieged Jerusalem. On the side of the road are wrecked remains of improvised armored vehicles which didn't get through.

The road from Tel Aviv on the coast goes through Ein Karem where St. John the Baptist was born. Farther on is the Arab village of Abu Ghosh, where the Holy Ark rested for 20 years after it was recovered from the Philistines until David brought it into Jerusalem.

From the highway, which climbs rather steepily in some places, one can look down at the 6th century Russian Orthodox monastery in the Valley of the Cross.

An incongruous landmark amid the ruins of the Roman, Crusader and other eras is a squat European-type windmill atop the heights. The Anglo-Jewish philanthropist Sir Moses Montefiore had the windmill built in the early 1800s to grind flour for a small community of Jews.

Jerusalem has been divided between Israel and Jordan since the 1948 war. The New City is in Israel. Jordan holds the Old City, which also has many sites sacred to Christian and Jew.

The border divides Mt. Zion—the foothills are in Jordan and the heights are in Israel. On the summit is the tomb of King David, a place of pilgrimage for devout Jews. A red velvet cloth, decorated with gold - thread Hebrew inscriptions, covers the resting place of the Great Psalmist.

The Cenacle

Climb a flight of stairs in the same building and directly over the tomb is the Cenacle, the Room of the Last Supper. It is a large, bare, well-lighted room. Special services are held here during Easter Week.

Across a narrow alleyway is the Dormition Church, built over the traditional site where the Virgin Mary fell into eternal sleep. A bearded monk opens the door and silently points the way into a circular domed apse where ancient mosaics, paintings and statuary depict the Mother of Jesus.

The tourist to Israel generally is barred from crossing into Jordan. But one can stand on the Heights of Rachel at the southernmost point of the New City and on a clear day see Bethlehem, where Jesus was born, five miles away. From other vantage points, holy sites in the Old City are clearly visible—the Church of the Holy Sepulcher, the Mount of Olives, the Wailing Wall and the Mosque of the Dome of the Rock.

But the New City of Jerusalem, while proud of its history, does not live in the past. High-rise government buildings have been erected or are under construction. A new Hebrew University has been built and here one can view the famed Dead Sea Scrolls.

New Hospital

There also is a new Hadassah hospital. And modern homes and buildings tower over old red tile-roofed square houses built of rugged stones. Modern shops and stores line busy boulevards.

Resisting the changes, however, are the residents of the Mea Shearim section. Ultra - orthodox Jews, they cling to the customs and traditions of the East European ghettos, speaking Yiddish in public and reserving Hebrew for religious rites.

Jerusalem has numerous hotels and pensions available for the visitor, including the famous King David. Many hotels include breakfast in rates which start as low as $2 per person double occupancy. Meals are surprisingly reasonable.

Most of the hotel dining rooms, restaurants and cafes are kosher. But non-kosher meals are available.

Tourist agencies offer group package tours to Israel from New York, including round trip via El Al Israel airlines, for as low as around $650. There also is regular ship service to Haifa.

Israel Visitor Should Tour Jerusalem

By MURRAY J. BROWN

JERUSALEM, Israel (UPI)--The climax of any tour of the young modern state of Israel has to be the visit to Jerusalem, the age-old Holy City of Christians and Jews in the rock-ribbed Judean hills.

For here the Bible and history come alive. Here is where King David and Jesus Christ walked. This was the prize for which Jews, Arabs, Turks, Saracens, Crusaders, Romans, Greeks, Babylonians and others clashed.

Jerusalem's history goes back about 3,000 years. King David made the Jebusite fortress his capital around 1000 B.C. after the Israelites had conquered the land of Canaan. It was razed and sacked but built again. The tribes of Israel were scattered but Jerusalem remained their religious and spiritual home.

After the crucifixion of Christ, Jerusalem became a holy city for the Christians. And it is second only to Mecca as a shrine for Moslems.

The third largest city after Tel Aviv and Haifa, Jerusalem, with a population of 156,000, again is the capital of Israel.

Wrecks Remain

The traveler reaches Jerusalem these days over a paved two-lane road which winds up the rock-studded, nearly-bare Judean hills. The route takes one past "Burma Road," built by the Jews during the 1948 Palestine War to supply besieged Jerusalem. On the side of the road are wrecked remains of improvised armored vehicles which didn't get through.

The road from Tel Aviv on the coast goes through Ein Karem where St. John the Baptist was born. Farther on is the Arab village of Abu Ghosh, where the Holy Ark rested for 20 years after it was recovered from the Philistines until David brought it into Jerusalem.

From the highway, which climbs rather steepily in some places, one can look down at the 6th century Russian Orthodox monastery in the Valley of the Cross.

An incongruous landmark amid the ruins of the Roman, Crusader and other eras is a squat European-type windmill atop the heights. The Anglo-Jewish philanthropist Sir Moses Montefiore had the windmill built in the early 1800s to grind flour for a small community of Jews.

Jerusalem has been divided between Israel and Jordan since the 1948 war. The New City is in Israel. Jordan holds the Old City, which also has many sites sacred to Christian and Jew.

The border divides Mt. Zion—the foothills are in Jordan and the heights in Israel. On the summit is the tomb of King David, a place of pilgrimage for devout Jews. A red velvet cloth, decorated with gold - thread Hebrew inscriptions, covers the resting place of the Great Psalmist.

The Cenacle

Climb a flight of stairs in the same building and directly over the tomb is the Cenacle, the Room of the Last Supper. It is a large, bare, well-lighted room. Special services are held here during Easter Week.

Across a narrow alleyway is the Dormition Church, built over the traditional site where the Virgin Mary fell into eternal sleep. A bearded monk opens the door and silently points the way into a circular domed apse where ancient mosaics, paintings and statuary depict the Mother of Jesus.

The tourist to Israel generally is barred from crossing into Jordan. But one can stand on the Heights of Rachel at the southernmost point of the New City and on a clear day see Bethlehem, where Jesus was born, five miles away. From other vantage points, holy sites in the Old City are clearly visible—the Church of the Holy Sepulcher, the Mount of Olives, the Wailing Wall and the Mosque of the Dome of the Rock.

But the New City of Jerusalem, while proud of its history, does not live in the past. High-rise government buildings have been erected or are under construction. A new Hebrew University has been built and here one can view the famed Dead Sea Scrolls.

New Hospital

There also is a new Hadassah hospital. And modern homes and buildings tower over old red tile-roofed square houses built of rugged stones. Modern shops and stores line busy boulevards.

Resisting the changes, however, are the residents of the Mea Shearim section. Ultra - orthodox Jews, they cling to the customs and traditions of the East European ghettos, speaking Yiddish in public and reserving Hebrew for religious rites.

Jerusalem has numerous hotels and pensions available for the visitor, including the famous King David. Many hotels include breakfast in rates which start as low as $2 per person double occupancy. Meals are surprisingly reasonable.

Most of the hotel dining rooms, restaurants and cafes are kosher. But non-kosher meals are available.

Tourist agencies offer group package tours to Israel from New York, including round trip via El Al Israel airlines, for as low as around $650. There also is regular ship service to Haifa.

Bossa Nova Dance Craze May Be Followed By Polka

By BRENDA W. ROTZOLL

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — If the dance craze that follows the bossa nova is the polka—don't be surprised.

Polka writer Bob Kames of Milwaukee would call it a logical development because, to his way of thinking, the bossa nova is a "takeoff on a polka, with an accentuated beat."

In fact, he'll carry that theory even farther and say that a number of Latin American rhythms are "like the polka beat."

Today the polka is in eclipse in most of the nation, although it has strongholds in a belt from upstate New York along the Great Lakes to the Dakotas, he said.

To the surprise of record companies, there's been a sudden show of interest in polkaing in California, he said. Hal Neely, general manager of King Records, Cincinnati, said two big polka bands have played in the San Francisco Bay area lately, Kames reported.

Hoping to see their music win back its post-war popularity, leaders of polka bands assembled here recently to cut the first "all-star" polka record album.

Abandoning regional dress, the polka stars blossomed out in white ties and tophats to record "Ambassadors of Polkaland U.S.A."

Kames said when he first thought up the all-star band, "I thought I'd have trouble, with these fellows recording for different labels. But all the companies must have thought it was worthwhile to give these people a chance to play together."

The "ambassadors" include such favorites as Frankie Yankovic, Cleveland; Valentine Kujawa, a Milwaukee star of the 1920s; Kames, Kujawa's son; Gene Heier Manitowoc, Wis.; Joe Potzner, Milwaukee, Romy Gosz, Manitowoc; Louie Bashell, Milwaukee and Georgie Cook, Cleveland.

The album consists of songs made famous by individual band leaders. It includes Blue Skirt Waltz and Rosalinda Waltz, Yankovic hots; Sugar Loaf Waltz, Heier; Red Handkerchief Waltz, Gosz; Silk Umbrella Polka, Beshell, and such standards as the Lichtensteiner Polka and Beer Barrel Polka.

Kames, who thought up the album, is an organist—but he rose to popularity by playing polkas on the organ—something most organists just didn't do. He sold a half million records of his own song, "You Are My One True Love," in 1949.

The musicians agreed it has been hard to find one polka style.

"You get 40 miles away from Milwaukee and the dance style changes," said Yankovic.

But with all of them working together, they hope they'll move closer to one major polka style and help bring back the Polish-German favorite.

Most Accidents Involving Eyes Are Preventable

CHICAGO (UPI)—The American Medical Association (AMA) says most of the half a million eye accidents suffered by Americans every year are preventable.

Eye accidents are a particular threat to youngsters, said the AMA, and careful training in the dangers of pointed sticks, BB-guns, bows and arrows and fireworks are a must in every family.

The AMA said visual care should begin in the pre-school years, when many eye defects still can be corrected. Regular eye examinations are essential since a childs' vision changes.

The AMA said some warning signs of eye trouble in children are: excessive blinking, frequent rubbing of eyes, squinting, excessive frowning, stumbling over small objects, undue sensitivity to light, red or swollen lids, sties and inflamed or watery eyes.

Electronic Frisker

TOKYO (AP) — In their campaign to stop people from carrying knives and pistols, Tokyo police are utilizing a new gadget that works like a mine detector.

Called a knife detector, the device looks like a small transistor radio. When passed over a person's clothing, it sets off a squeaking sound if it detects chunks of metal.

Nebraskan Invades Italian Opera

NAPLES, Italy (UPI)—A one-time Nebraska farmer, who gave up corn for "Carmen," is the latest of a growing list of Americans to invade the world of Italian opera.

Glynn Ross, formerly of Omaha, was chosen recently by the San Carlo Opera House here as stage director for three performances of "Lucia di Lammermoor."

"It is pretty unusual," said Ross, speaking of his role as an American working in the land where opera was born. "The Italians have an unlimited superiority complex about their operas. For example, the highest compliment they can pay a singer is to say he sings like an Italian."

But his wasn't Ross' first experience in Italian opera. He was here in 1945 with the U. S. army, when Italian opera was at a low state because of World War II.

Italian authorities asked him to help revitalize it and he directed several productions at San Carlo in 1945-46.

"Surprisingly, the Italians accepted me quite cheerfully," Ross said. "I guess it was because I was a novelty. I also had quite a repertoire for non-Italian opera. So they appreciated me for that."

Ross, 49, married to an Italian and the father of four children, might still be following a plough in Nebraska if it weren't for the depression, a drought and a grasshopper plague.

He quit farming to work in Omaha packing houses and at other odd jobs to pay off a mortgage on his family's farm.

Then, riding the caboose of a cattle train, he left the corn country to start a new career at the age of 23.

"I had been interested in opera since my high school days," he said. "I weighed only 95 pounds in my senior year, and wasn't big enough for athletics, so I concentrated on dramatics and the Glee Club."

Ross learned Italian, German and French in the course of studying operas.

He made his American debut in 1948 with the San Francisco Opera company in 1948. He remained stage director for the San Francisco Opera for 13 years and said he now travels "almost constantly" between assignments in Europe and America.

He has worked with opera companies in New Orleans, Los Angeles, Seattle, Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, Shreveport, Santa Barbara and other cities.

The Pacific Ocean covers one-third of the earth's surface. All continents could fit easily into its 63,800,000-square-mile area.

Tourists Looking For Unusual Should Plan Visit To Israel

By MURRAY J. BROWN

TEL AVIV, Israel (UPI) — American tourists looking for the unusual may well consider a visit to Israel. For probably nowhere else can one find such a rare blending of the cultures of East and West and of Biblical history and atomic-age progress.

Almost from the moment of arrival by plane at Lydda airport or by ship at Haifa, the tourist is constantly made aware of the sharp contrasts in the "Land of the Living Bible."

A tiny shaggy donkey tethered alongside a sleek 1963 American limousine. The chant of ancient Hebrew prayers from a synagogue and the latest rock n'roll song blaring from a transistor radio.

Modern, air-conditioned glassed buildings and centuries-old ruins held sacred by the faithful of three of the world's great religions— Christians, Jews and Moslems. Prefabricated dwellings with terraces and square flat-roofed homes solidly built ages ago of the rugged native stone.

Young girls and boys doing the twist in fashionable night spots to the near-frenzied musical beat of American-style bands. Bespangled belly-dancers gyrating sensuously to the muted wail of flutes and pipes in dimly lit cafes in the old native quarters.

Lumbering camels in the southern Negev desert, ridden or driven by the nomadic Bedoin, and huge 10-wheeled trucks roaring along paved roads. In the lush northern Galilee, oxen-or-mule drawn primitive plows and giant tractors and other mechanical farming monsters.

Israel lies on the eastern shores of the Mediterranean Sea. It has an area of about 8,000 square miles—roughly the size of New Jersey. It is about 260 miles long and from 6 to 70 miles wide.

Born 15 years ago, Israel has a population of around 2.3 million, including about 250,000 Arabs. Less than 40 per cent are native-born.

Hebrew is the official language but Americans should have no difficulty since most Israelis they will come in contact with speak English. In fact, English is a favorite subject in schools here. Virtually all road, street and other signs are in Hebrew, English and Arabic.

Israel has four seas, four different geographic regions and four climatic zones. The narrow sandy coastal plain along the Mediterranean is dry and sub-tropical except during the brief winter rainy season; the lush central highlands are cool and dry in summer, cold and rainy in winter; the low-lying Jordan Valley is hot and dry in the summer, mild and dry in the winter; the Negev is hot and dry in the summer, cold and dry in the winter.

The winter runs from November to March. But you can swim in the Red Sea or the Sea of Galilee as often as not in mid-December and in the Mediterranean on all but the coldest days of winter.

Tel Aviv, Israel's largest city with a population of 500,000, is the favorite seaside resort for tourists on the Mediterranean. Rates at Class A hotels run from around $7.25 to $9.50 per person daily, two in a room, during the peak season (March 1-May 31). Other hotels and pensions include breakfast in rates which run as low as $3 a person daily, double occupancy. Rates are reduced in the summer season (June 1-Oct. 31).

'Killer' Plane Story Is Told In New Novel

By SAM FOGG

WASHINGTON (UPI) — To transform a mass of highly technical data into an engrossing detective story for the average layman takes an expert's knowledge and a writer's skill.

Robert J. Serling, Aviation Editor of United Press International, has shown he has both in his book, "The Electra Story," published by Doubleday Co., Inc.

It is a fast-moving but painstaking account of how the Electra, the pride of an aircraft company, killed 97 persons in inexplicable crashes over Buffalo, Texas, and Tell City, Ind., and how an army of dedicated detectives from government and industry found out why.

Still further, Serling recounts how the maker of the plane, Lockheed Aircraft Co., set to work to eradicate the deadly principle of physics that made the Electra a killer and, with the help of industry rivals, even restored public confidence in its safety.

There are heroes in the Electra story. One of them is Elwood R. Quesada who, as head of the federal aviation administration, stood fast against congressional demands that he ground the plane.

There are the accident investigators of the Civil Aeronautics Board who tried and failed to solve the mystery of the Buffalo, Texas, crash on Sept. 29, 1959, but came up with the answer after the Tell City tragedy on March 17, 1960.

Then there are pilots and crewmen who fly the nation's planes. Serling recounts a gripping moment when a group of Lockheed test pilots are asked to fly the revised craft in a deliberately weakened condition into the "Sierra Wave"—a windswept area of turbulence in southern California. They all raised their hands. The Electra passed its post-crash test.

In quieter but just as heroic vein, Lockheed officials and airline executives with millions of dollars at stake are portrayed dealing with a grim crisis with only the safety of the flying public their main concern.

Emerging from Serling's 154-page book is a salient fact: in every segment of the aviation industry—from the mechanic on the runway to the executive in his walnut-paneled office—is a fanatical dedication to air safety and a haunting sense of personal tragedy when it fails.

In a forward to the book, FAA administrator Najeeb E. Halaby writes: "Our goal is swift, safe passage for all who fly anywhere, any time, year in, year out. We are indebted to Mr. Serling for helping us all to understand the perils as well as the great progress and prospects of aviation."

Halaby also writes: "Mr. Serling's sense of the dramatic and his ability to translate the most technical subjects into the King's English should assure this book wide readership outside the aviation community as well as in."

I'll go along with that.

Ancient Tablet Reveals Rites Of Extreme Unction

By ERNEST SAKLER

VATICAN CITY (UPI)—A first century silver tablet has revealed how the sacrament of extreme unction, or the last rites, was administered in the early days of the Christian Church in Palestine.

Details of the discovery, which throws much light of the rites and beliefs of the early church, were reported recently in the Vatican City newspaper Osservatore Romano.

The two and one-half by one-inch tablet was bought in January by a museum director in Jerusalem from Bedouins of the Ta'Amari tribe. The tribesmen said they found the tablet together with a number of clay vessels of a type known to archaeologists as "Herodian lamps," and known to date back to the first century A.D.

The tiny tablet bore a 17-line inscription in Aramaic, the language spoken in Palestine at the time of Jesus. The writing allowed scientists to date it between 70 and 130 A.D., presumably closer to the former.

A translation, Osservatore said, showed the text was the ritual for the anointing of the sick, or extreme unction, as practiced in the original Christian - Jewish community, the first followers of Christ in Palestine.

The most interesting point, Osservatore said, was the close correspondence of the text to a passage of the Epistle of St. James and with early Christian rituals in the West. This confirmed the early use of extreme unction—one of the seven sacraments of the Catholic Church—and the common source of the rite.

The passage in St. James which had been the earliest testimony about extreme unction reads (James 5, 14:15):

"Is there among you anyone who is sick? Let him send for the presbysters of the church, that they pray over him, anointing him with oil in the name of the Lord: and the prayer of faith will save the sick, and the Lord will raise him up; and if he is in sin, it will be forgiven him."

The first line of the inscription on the silver tablet identifies the author as one Datenazan and describes him as a Kohen, the Hebrew word for "priest," thus confirming James' reference to the presbyters of the church. The fact that only his name is mentioned seems to indicate extreme unction was administered by one priest, as is still done in the Latin rite, rather than by several, as among the Greek rite Christians.

NATURAL GAS HELPS MAKE YOUR SPRING NICER

Spring is, as a poet said, "the boyhood of the year." And like a boy, it is unpredictable. Most every Spring, cold weather returns for a brief, unwanted encore. In other days, this brought back the tenseness of winter. Worry about the fuel supply in the basement. A house in morning as "cold as an icebox."

Now, these relapses of Spring pass almost unnoticed. Reliable natural gas service provides a steady flow of pleasant warmth in your home . . . with no worries of supply or of changes in outside temperature.

Yes, Spring is a grand time of the year. And, if we may say so, natural gas makes it a little bit nicer . . . at a cost, in this area, less than any other source of energy.

HUNTINGTON, W. Va. (UPI)—Forty-two houses and 120 buildings were destroyed by recent floods in 15 southern West Virginia communities, the Red Cross said yesterday. Major damage was sustained by a total of 542 other houses, 16 farm buildings and 157 other structures, the agency said.

NATURAL GAS HELPS MAKE YOUR SPRING NICER

Spring is, as a poet said, "the boyhood of the year." And like a boy, it is unpredictable. Most every Spring, cold weather returns for a brief, unwanted encore. In other days, this brought back the tenseness of winter. Worry about the fuel supply in the basement. A house in morning as "cold as an icebox."

Now, these relapses of Spring pass almost unnoticed. Reliable natural gas service provides a steady flow of pleasant warmth in your home . . . with no worries of supply or of changes in outside temperature.

Yes, Spring is a grand time of the year. And, if we may say so, natural gas makes it a little bit nicer . . . at a cost, in this area, less than any other source of energy.

Ann Landers . . .

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband has just handed me the most cutting insult of all time. He brought home a safety deposit box with a lock bigger than my head.

When he got ready for bed this evening, he took everything out of his pockets, billfold, checkbook, identification cards, etc., put them in the box and made a great show of locking it. He then put the key in the pocket of his pajama and PINNED the pocket together with a big safety pin.

In all my life I have never taken a thing that didn't belong to me. I wouldn't dream of going into his pockets or snooping in his belongings. Our home has never been burglarized and nothing has ever been missing.

He is 53 years old has a good job. He has always been moody and sort of a sourpuss but this behavior is the worst yet. What does it mean?—INSULTED

DEAR INSULTED: The man sounds more sick than ornery. If he continues this locking up ritual insist that he see a doctor for a physical checkup.

Phone the doctor for an appointment and inform him of your husband's odd behavior. He will take it from there.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our 18-year-old daughter graduated from high school last spring and didn't want to go to college. She took a business course and is now working in an office.

At Christmas time she informed us that she and a young man who works in the accounting department are officially engaged to be engaged. Don't ask me what that means. We don't know either. She is wearing his fraternity pin and he eats here every night.

The boy's parents live in Fort Worth and he is planning on driving down to see them next month. He wants our daughter to drive with him so she can meet his folks.

This is a 700-mile trip and would mean two nights on the road. My husband is against it. I am undecided. Our daughter says we are living in the dark ages. Your opinion? — QUEEN VICTORIA

DEAR VIC: It would be neither wise nor proper to O.K. a 700-mile trip. It's too long—even in Texas.

Your daughter can fly down, and meet his folks and then fly home. But these two should not be traveling together.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You must be a sadist. What do you mean by saying it's okay for a teenager who got a failing mark to be grounded for six weeks? A drunk driver gets 30 days. Is this worse?

I'm a 17-year-old boy and I think you should look at it from our side. Contrary to what parents think, ALL students can't make straight A's. Besides, too much emphasis is put on grades anyway.

Teachers can make a big difference, too. Certain teachers are tough graders.

Kids would do better if their parents rewarded them for good grades instead of punishing them for bad grades. Or at least in this case they should have given "Prisoner" a break and waited to see if she could bring up her flunk next time. Be on our side once, will you?—GLAD TO BE GRADUATING IN JUNE

Dear Glad: "Prisoner" was grounded because she flunked a subject, not because she didn't make all A's. Remember?

A student who can't eke out a D should not be allowed a full social life. Sorry, Bub. The advice stands.

44 County Farmers Sign Up For 1963 Feed Grain Program

At the close of the signup period Friday, a total of 44 farms in Allegany had signed up to participate in the 1963 Feed Grain Program.

Feed grain acreage signed up for diversion through the program totals 653 acres, including 577 acres of corn and 76 acres of barley. Feed grain base acreages of these participating farms amount to 969 acres.

Based upon farmers' intentions, as recorded at the ASCS County Office, these producers will earn an estimated $15,700 for diverting acreage from the production of corn and barley and putting that acreage to a conservation use for 1963.

Yellow orchids usually are the most fragrant.

Bills Affecting This Section Are Enacted

A number of bills affecting Western Maryland were adopted by the General Asembly over the weekend. They include:

Senate Bill 256 is of interest to this area's drive for new industries. It authorizes cities and counties to issue bonds to help build industrial buildings for lease or rent.

Senate Bill 512 provides fees for expenses incurred in tax sales in Allegany County.

House Bill 370 authorizes the serving of summons by registered or certified mail in cases involving magistrates in Allegany County.

Senate Bill 333, which received an unfavorable report has been reconsidered and given a favorable report. It would provide that non-resident property owners in Garrett County may get resident fishing licenses for the Youghiogheny Reservoir and the Savage River Dam.

Ann Landers . . .

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband has just handed me the most cutting insult of all time. He brought home a safety deposit box with a lock bigger than my head.

When he got ready for bed this evening, he took everything out of his pockets, billfold, checkbook, identification cards, etc., put them in the box and made a great show of locking it. He then put the key in the pocket of his pajama and PINNED the pocket together with a big safety pin.

In all my life I have never taken a thing that didn't belong to me. I wouldn't dream of going into his pockets or snooping in his belongings. Our home has never been burglarized and nothing has ever been missing.

He is 53 years old has a good job. He has always been moody and sort of a sourpuss but this behavior is the worst yet. What does it mean?—INSULTED

DEAR INSULTED: The man sounds more sick than ornery. If he continues this locking up ritual insist that he see a doctor for a physical checkup.

Phone the doctor for an appointment and inform him of your husband's odd behavior. He will take it from there.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our 18-year-old daughter graduated from high school last spring and didn't want to go to college. She took a business course and is now working in an office.

At Christmas time she informed us that she and a young man who works in the accounting department are officially engaged to be engaged. Don't ask me what that means. We don't know either. She is wearing his fraternity pin and he eats here every night.

The boy's parents live in Fort Worth and he is planning on driving down to see them next month. He wants our daughter to drive with him so she can meet his folks.

This is a 700-mile trip and would mean two nights on the road. My husband is against it. I am undecided. Our daughter says we are living in the dark ages. Your opinion? — QUEEN VICTORIA

DEAR VIC: It would be neither wise nor proper to O.K. a 700-mile trip. It's too long—even in Texas.

Your daughter can fly down, and meet his folks and then fly home. But these two should not be traveling together.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You must be a sadist. What do you mean by saying it's okay for a teenager who got a failing mark to be grounded for six weeks? A drunk driver gets 30 days. Is this worse?

I'm a 17-year-old boy and I think you should look at it from our side. Contrary to what parents think, ALL students can't make straight A's. Besides, too much emphasis is put on grades anyway.

Teachers can make a big difference, too. Certain teachers are tough graders.

Kids would do better if their parents rewarded them for good grades instead of punishing them for bad grades. Or at least in this case they should have given "Prisoner" a break and waited to see if she could bring up her flunk next time. Be on our side once, will you?—GLAD TO BE GRADUATING IN JUNE

Dear Glad: "Prisoner" was grounded because she flunked a subject, not because she didn't make all A's. Remember?

44 County Farmers Sign Up For 1963 Feed Grain Program

At the close of the signup period Friday, a total of 44 farms in Allegany had signed up to participate in the 1963 Feed Grain Program.

Feed grain acreage signed up for diversion through the program totals 653 acres, including 577 acres of corn and 76 acres of barley. Feed grain base acreages of these participating farms amount to 969 acres.

Based upon farmers' intentions, as recorded at the ASCS County Office, these producers will earn an estimated $15,700 for diverting acreage from the production of corn and barley and putting that acreage to a conservation use for 1963.

Yellow orchids usually are the most fragrant.

Bills Affecting This Section Are Enacted

A number of bills affecting Western Maryland were adopted by the General Asembly over the weekend. They include:

House Bill 405, by the Allegany and Garrett delegations, to change the mink and muskrat seasons in seven western and central counties from December 15—March 1 to November 15—February 15.

Senate Bill 256 is of interest to this area's drive for new industries. It authorizes cities and counties to issue bonds to help build industrial buildings for lease or rent.

Senate Bill 510 authorizes the Garrett County Commissioners to carry out and maintain certain conservation and flood prevention projects.

Senate Bill 553, provides a $400 expense allowance for the Allegany County treasurer.

Senate Bill 512 provides fees for expenses incurred in tax sales in Allegany County.

House Bill 370 authorizes the serving of summons by registered or certified mail in cases involving magistrates in Allegany County.

Senate Bill 333, which received an unfavorable report has been reconsidered and given a favorable report. It would provide that non-resident property owners in Garrett County may get resident fishing licenses for the Youghiogheny Reservoir and the Savage River Dam.

Chevy Sales Rise

DETROIT (UPI) — General Motors Corp. said Chevrolet dealer selling rate in mid-March rose 5.5 per cent over a year earlier after adjustment for the one additional day in this year's March 11-20 period. The rate was also 21 per cent ahead of the March 1-10 pace. Since the first of the year a total of 557,080 cars and trucks were sold, a record for the period and up 10 per cent from a year earlier.

Steel Production Up

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Nation's steel production last week rose by 4.7 per cent from the previous week to the highest level since April 7, 1962, the American Iron and Steel institute reported Monday.

Raw steel tonnage last week, totaled 2,330,000 compared with 2,225,000 the week before. The previous weekly high was 2,361,000 tons.

A date palm will bear fruit for about two centuries.

'What's Yours Is Mine, Too'

Berlin discussions are being resumed in an atmosphere so pessimistic it all but excludes hope of tangible result. Those who naively hoped last October for a Cuban settlement extending to other outstanding East-West issues now see nothing but Soviet failure to fulfill its pledges.

Cuba, under Moscow's direction, continues to be the wellspring of Communist revolution in the hemisphere.

Among this country's allies who share a stake in Berlin, only Britain is cordial to negotiation. General de Gaulle wants no part of it.

Moscow's reasons for wanting to reopen the talks are of course suspect. They could complicate the West's efforts to reach agreement on a nuclear force for NATO. Further abrasions could prove ruinous.

What then is Moscow offering? The last publicized proposals by Khrushchev and Gromyko mentioned replacing Western troops in Berlin with a UN force. East Germans would join in supervising the city's lifelines to the West. No mention of independence for East Berlin. No talk of self-determination for Germany.

Khrushchev obviously still wants to keep what doesn't belong to Russia—and negotiate the rest.

These Days

By John Chamberlain

The Truth, By Slow Freight

A blue-ribbon jury headed by General Lucius D. Clay has given its verdict on the uses and abuses (oh, lots of abuses) of U.S. foreign aid, and President Kennedy has solemnly thanked the General for his committee's "important service." Well, better late—better even ten years late—than never. General Clay, the hero of the Berlin airlift, is a selfless patriot, always ready and willing to stick his neck out for the salvation of his nation's security and self-respect, and it is pleasant to record that the recommendations of his committee make sense.

But now that the General, supported by such unexceptionable citizens as former Secretary of Defense Robert A. Lovett, former Secretary of the Treasury Robert B. Anderson, former World Bank President Eugene Black, and Harvard economist Edward S. Mason, has given us the word that we are wasting at least a half a billion a year in useless or maladroit overseas spending, it is time that justice should be done his predecessors among the critics of foreign aid.

There is Representative Otto Passman, Chairman of the House subcommittee on foreign aid, for example. Recently I happened to be a member of a panel chosen to discuss foreign aid on television. Nobody among the convocation of supposed experts paid the slightest attention to Passman's recommendation that $1.5 billion be cut from our $4 billion annual foreign aid commitments, and amid the give-and-take of exceedingly high-level discourse I was not sufficiently quick-witted to bring it up. After the TV session, however, the name of Passman was mentioned by a couple of the experts with extreme contempt. Yet Passman's criticism of foreign aid wastefulness had been based on a personal on-the-spot study of our overseas operations, and the Clay Committee's report makes it obvious that the Louisiana Congressman knew whereof he spoke.

Long before Passman struck out against waste in our foreign aid expenditures there were others. I remember Henry Hazlitt, the economist, wearily fending off attacks for being hard-hearted when he insisted that American dollars would not save the world. That was some fifteen years ago. Hazlitt stubbornly stuck to his contention, and now he is being justified. Lots of American dollars went to Yugoslavia, for example, but this did not keep Tito, in the skip-about of politics, from returning to the Kremlin's fold. Millions in direct aid and in bankloans went to Sukarno's Indonesia when it was in course of freeing itself from the Netherlands. This aid was accepted to the tune of shrieks from Sukarno's sycophants that America was trying to bribe the new nation. The more we "bribed," the more it seemed to provoke Sukarno into making common cause with the "neutralist" nations who were "neutral" in favor of the Communists. Some "bribery"!

Then there was Eugene Castle, a businessman who had made his money distributing news films throughout the world. As a traveler Mr. Castle became appalled at the sheer waste that accompanied the spending of America's billions abroad. Enlisting the help of a first-rate New York journalist, Victor Lasky, Mr. Castle sought to tell his story. The resulting book, "Billions, Blunders and Baloney," came out in the mid-Fifties, when it was considered "rightist extremism" to criticize foreign aid. Yet all that Mr. Castle did was to anticipate some of the criticisms made by General Clay's Committee.

An expert on "non-theatrical" films, Mr. Castle made a special investigation of the films made available—at the U.S. taxpayers' expense—to Germany. They included such titles as "Window Washing in the Empire State Building," "Camping for Girl Scouts," and "Children's Zoo at Bronx Park." Another film exported at the taxpayers' expense purported to teach French farmers how to make their soil more productive. Mr. Castle's dry comment was that only a U.S. propagandist could be unaware that the French know more about keeping soil in a fertile condition than any other race on earth.

This is stirring up some old embers. But I am a writing man, and it makes me both angry and sad to realize that it practically always takes a decade for reportorial sagacity to become recognized as truth by a blue-ribbon committee appointed by the President of the United States.

Plain Talk About The French Question Mark

PARIS

By Joseph Alsop

During Gen. de Gaulle's triumphant visit to Germany last summer, there was a solitary moment of plain talk. All the other Germans were understandably too pleased with the Franco-German reconciliation to get down to hard cases. But this was not true of President Luebke.

The small, genial President of West Germany thought it his duty to warn the towering, glacial President of France against being misled by the warmth of his German welcome. Germany, said Luebke, was first of all loyal to its alliance with the U. S. And in addition, he continued, German policy was squarely based on NATO and was aimed towards an outward-looking Europe including Great Britain.

The German official named to act as Gen. de Gaulle's escort on his tour received the full impact of Luebke's warning to de Gaulle. In the motor leaving the German President's house, de Gaulle did not trouble to mince his words.

What he had heard from President Luebke was very "shocking," de Gaulle said. If this should prove to be true, he went on, he would be "forced to re-examine the whole basis of his policy." Everything, in fact, would be called into question.

But a little later, de Gaulle recalled the comforting fact that the German constitution gives the President almost no power. And a little later still, he was receiving the plaudits of a gigantic crowd; and Luebke's warning was all but forgotten.

This episode from the past is relevant at present, because the time when Gen. de Gaulle may be "forced to re-examine the whole basis of his policy" is coming nearer and nearer. The odds are very heavy indeed, in fact, that the General's European policy is based on a misconception about Germany.

Frenchmen who ought to know are quite forthright about this. Gen. de Gaulle apparently believes that in the final crunch he can always persuade the Germans to follow him—or at least prevent the Germans from opposing him too forcefully, as was the case when he vetoed British entry into the European Common Market. This belief is based on his special relationship to Chancellor Adenauer, plus the warmth of the welcome he received in Germany.

But although contrary hopes are still cherished in Paris, Chancellor Adenauer is all but certain to be replaced by the end of the summer. Furthermore, those loud German cheers for de Gaulle were not cheers for Gaullism. They were cheers for Franco-German reconcilation, which is quite a different thing.

The great mass of Germans, of all three leading parties, want precisely the kind of German policy that President Luebke outlined, with such sharp though temporary effects on de Gaulle. In fact, both of Chancellor Adenauer's most likely successors, Foreign Minister Schroeder and Economics Minister Erhardt, have let it be known that almost immediately on taking office, they will say to de Gaulle all the same things that President Luebke said last summer.

These facts are crucially significant in turn, for two obvious reasons. As Gen. de Gaulle himself admitted, he will then have to take another look at the basis of his policy. This will be unavoidable in turn, because Gen. de Gaulle's power to bend the Europe of the Common Market to his will entirely depends on his power to bend the Germans to his will. Without them, he will be too isolated.

Even now, with Chancellor Adenauer still in office, the French are experiencing rather sharp disappointments in Bonn. They have an overriding interest in the completion of the Common Market's common agricultural policy, which will favor French agriculture at the expense of non-European agricultural exporters to the Common Market, such as the United States.

Yet the Germans have already balked at the proposed arrangements which are intended to lead, by slow steps, to an eventual common cereal price for Europe. The question of the common agricultural policy has already been put off, in consequence, for at least two months. The German delaying tactics, which this reporter forecase from Bonn, have in fact begun already.

Thus the question already has to be asked: what will de Gaulle do when his misconception of the position in Europe becomes inescapably clear, and he is forced to make the re-examination he talked about after seeing President Luebke?

The chances are that he will do nothing much beyond "retiring into his chagrin," as one French official put it. In other words, having failed to transform the Europe of the Six into a personal political instrument, he will downgrade the Common Market once more to a "petty commercial treaty"—which was how he once described it to the French representative at Brussels, Robert de Marjolin.

In this case, there may be a period of deadlock. The French will hardly consent to go forward with preparations for the "Kennedy round" of external trade negotiations, while the completion of the common agricultural policy is blocked. The way out of the deadlock may then be a package deal, already being discussed at Brussels, combining progress on the agricultural front with arrangements for freer external trade. All this can happen within the "petty commercial treatry" framework.

It has to be admitted, however, that this is the forecast of an optimist. A much more pessimistic analysis has too much chance of being right to be ignored, and it will be offered in a further report.

Letters To The Editor

Dear Sir:

With reference to your editorial of March 1, "About that UNESCO Report," it is indeed deplorable that the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO) saw fit to publish last year a book by two Soviet nationals on "Equality of Rights Between Races and Nationalities in the USSR" which is so obviously a vehicle for Soviet propaganda. Your readers might be interested to note, however, that the Department of State vigorously protested publication of this booklet last April and has since then, with the advice of the U. S. National Commission for UNESCO, submitted comprehensive criteria which, if adopted, would prevent the use of UNESCO publications for Soviet propaganda purposes.

In this connection, you may want to note the strongly-worded statement by George V. Allen, Chairman of the U. S. National Commission for UNESCO.

It should be noted that of the 5,400 books and periodicals which UNESCO has published or helped publish in the last 16 years, only a dozen have given rise to protests by either the United tates or other countries.

One booklet, however objectionable, should not detract from the scholarly and valuable publications which UNESCO puts out every year in the fields of education, natural sciences, social sciences, and the arts, nor from its overall work which serves the interests of the United States, such as scientific cooperation in oceanography and water resources, and major programs of educational development in Latin America, Asia, and Africa. By helping raise standards of living in many developing countries, UNESCO contributes measurably to the efforts of our government in combatting Communism.

In conclusion, while we cannot have our way all the time, as is the case in any "family" of 113 members, the fact that we have had our way much of the time and on all substantial issues and programs confronting UNESCO is clear indication of the continued need for United States leadership in that organization.

TB Patients Should Have Periodic Chest X-Rays

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

A positive tuberculin reaction in cattle is a death sentence; the animal is slaughtered to protect humans. The law is more lenient when a child or an adult develops a positive tuberculin skin test. The reason is obvious, but there ought to be rules and regulations making it imperative that they have a careful followup, including periodic chest X-rays.

An individual usually harbors live tubercle bacilli when this skin test becomes positive. These bacteria may not cause illness but the possibility always exists, especially when resistance is lowered through poor nutrition or living conditions. The entire problem of the control of tuberculosis rests with these positive reactors who harbor the causative micro-organisms. And there are plenty of them because a high percentage of adults have a positive test.

Most adult cases of tuberculosis develop in persons who have had a positive reaction for several years, together with evidence of a healed infection somewhere in the body. Some are aware of this lesion because they had treatment for active tuberculosis and the disease became inactive.

Others developed the infection during childhood but it was so mild it escaped detection. The bacilli were caught from someone else, usually an adult who may or may not have known he had active tuberculosis. At any rate, the skin test changed from negative to positive even though they were not necessarily ill.

But this childhood type of tuberculosis is not always so innocent. It can be serious and this explains why every child whose tuberculin test becomes positive is treated with drugs, even though the X-rays are normal.

Tuberculosis never will be eradicated until the tuberculin positive person who had definite evidence of the disease in the past is watched carefully. An evidence of reactivation of an infection that is smoldering somewhere in the body, usually in the lungs, may be reactivated. The dormant infection comes to light through many stress factors such as alcoholism, aging, and other illnesses. In many instances, the individual is not aware of this reactivation because there are no symptoms during the early stage. Yet he is contagious and is likely to pass along the organisms to an unprotected child. Most of these youngsters survive and become tuberculin positive adults, to complete the cycle.

VISION AND HYPERTENSION

R. H. writes: Does high blood pressure injure the eyes?

REPLY

Yes. Most of the damage occurs when the blood vessels in the eyes become narrowed and hardened. This in turn affects circulation to the retina. Vision also may be disturbed as a result of stroke.

SORE BREASTS

Mrs. G. writes: Could painful breasts mean cancer?

REPLY

Not as a rule. Inflammation and congestion are frequent causes of this symptom.

TOMORROW: The uses of oxygen.

To the limit of space questions pertaining to the prevention of diseases will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

Try And Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

Happy memories: When Ed Wynn played a waiter in "Manhattan Mary" and a customer demanded lamb chops au gratin, Wynn shouted to the kitchen, "Cheese it, the chops" . . . When Eddie Cantor told a pair of worn-out acrobats, who invariably closed the show in the old vaudeville houses, "Boys, if you ever expect to get anywhere in this profession, you'll have to dream up a new finish for your act." "New finish!" echoed one of the acrobats indignantly. "Nobody's ever waited to see the old one yet." . . . And when a druggist stopped Bobby Clark to ask, "Did that mudpack I suggested improve your wife's appearance?" Bobby's answer was, "It did for a couple of days, but then it wore off."

George Burns recalled the story of the man who swallowed his glass eye and rushed to a stomach specialist. The latter peered down the fellow's throat and exclaimed, "I've looked into a lot of stomachs in my day, but I must say this is the first one that ever looked back at me!"

Kohler Warns Russia Will Attack If West Germans Get A-Weapons

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON—U. S. Ambassador Foy Kohler in Moscow has cabled an extremely important report to the State Department warning that if the West German Army receives or develops nuclear weapons, the Red Army will probably attack.

So great is the fear of German rearmament, and so vivid is the memory of the Nazi penetration into Russia as far as Stalingrad in the last war, that the marshals of the Red Army are not going to wait for another German arms buildup, this time with nuclear weapons.

In fact the Russian policy toward German armament can best be compared to the American policy toward offensive weapons in Cuba as follows: President Kennedy was willing to risk war over nuclear missiles in Cuba, and the Russians are equally willing to risk war over nuclear weapons in Germany.

They figure that nuclear weapons in German hands would constitute a blackmail weapon against them, just as Kennedy advisers argued during the Cuban crisis that Russian missiles in Cuba were a blackmail weapon against the United States.

The significance of the Kohler report is twofold:

1.—It puts the United States on notice that it faces the alternative of war or of backing away from its ally West Germany in case of German nuclear armament.

2.—This is a reversal of what Kohler reported shortly after the Cuban crisis. At that time he cabled that Red Army leaders were furious over the removal of Russian missiles from Cuba, that Minister of Defense Malinowsky was bitter, and that Khrushchev had relegated them to the background, getting them out of positions of power inside the Kremlin.

Khrushchev also went to East Berlin, and in a historic conference of Communist leaders, denounced the Red Chinese position that war is inevitable and induced Walter Ulbricht, chief rabble-rouser of East Germany to pipe down. Ulbricht even made a statement that he was willing to accept "negotiation" over Berlin.

However, none of these overtures were accepted by Kennedy. He was torn between his hard-nose advisers who told him not to budge an inch with Khrushchev and his moderate advisers who told him that if he didn't make some gestures toward Khrushchev, the Red Army would return to power in the Kremlin.

It now looks as if their prediction had been correct.

Note—Ambassador Kohler also reported that at first Khrushchev had been inclined to flirt with de Gaulle following his split with Britain over the Common Market; but that Red Army leaders apparently had overruled him. They regarded the prospect of French-German partnership and the build-of their own nuclear weapons as far too serious. Hence Khrushchev was overruled and a stiff note sent to Paris condemning the Franco-German partnership.

Springtime Steel Strike?

There are two developments in the steel industry affecting the prospect of a spring strike:

1.—The big steel executives are sore because Kennedy has accepted honorary membership in Local 1211, United Steel Workers of America at Aliquippa, Pa.

2.—Dave MacDonald, head of the steel workers, has been talking to executives about means of avoiding a strike, says he's more interested in reducing unemployment than increasing steel wages. He's chiefly talking about pensions and welfare benefits.

There is every indication that MacDonald means what he says.

JFK's membership in the Steel Workers came about when his private secretary, Miss Evelyn Lincoln, replied in a routine way to Aliquippa Local 1211 accepting honorary life membership on behalf of the President.

Steel executives blew their tops, said this was taking sides just as wage price talks were about to come up again.

When Eric Leinsdorf, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, was feted by Vice President Lyndon Johnson in Washington the other day, a silent, absent figure watched over the ceremonies. He was Charlie Marsh, publisher of the Marsh newspapers, now ill in Virginia.

Marsh had gone to bat for young Leinsdorf twenty-five years ago, when the latter was a refugee from Hitler in Austria. Leinsdorf had no visa for permanent residence in the United States, but Marsh appealed to a young Congressman from Texas named Johnson, who helped arrange the visa.

Marsh lived in Washington during the New Deal and was a picker of young men. He picked young Congressman Johnson as a comer; also picked a young man from Iowa named Henry Wallace. Both became Vice President of the United States. Finally, Marsh picked Eric Leinsdorf, who became conductor of the Boston Symphony.

CONAKRY, Guinea

The black teenage girls with the flashing white teeth in their gay orange and blue print dresses danced to the driving and vaguely Trinidadian rhythms of the drums right on the edge of the Atlantic Ocean lapping a few feet away with all the exuberance and sheer pleasure of the thing with which teenagers dance everywhere.

After it was all over and after a burst of polite applause from the diplomats and businessmen watching, William Attwood, American Ambassador to Guinea, said, "Well, let's be diplomatic." He pushed down to the seashore, pumped hands with the dancers, the director, the musicians, asked them the history of the dances, how old they were, where they were from, and then told them all how marvelous they were (and they were) in his accentless French.

Attwood is a New Frontier diplomat, which is a whole new breed not only in American diplomacy but in anyone's diplomacy. They're young, intensely gregarious, affable, pragmatic, and capable, and all over the world you find them teaching people how to stand on their own feet, which was never before considered the province of diplomacy.

"Somebody's got to mingle and nobody does," said Attwood on the way home. The Russian Ambassador never does. One of the reasons the Russians are losing out here is that they don't mingle, leading to the suspicion that they're racist. And they don't talk French. The Russians even sent a teacher here who didn't talk French and he had to teach through an interpreter.

Attwood was once the youngest American Ambassador (he's 43 and looks 36) and has got a lot of what I consider misplaced sympathy for taking the Guinea assignment. (Among other things he caught polio and almost died from it — a cruel break.)

Guinea is considered a hardship post. The climate is steamy and enervating in a country where even the simplest thing like making a telephone call is immensely complicated. But these are the obvious things. In a deeper sense Guinea is an immensely stimulating, fulfilling, and enriching experience. For a young diplomat it's truly virgin territory.

In the vast West African area the U. S. now has 15 embassies where it once had one consulate. The lack of information about this area and its people is almost total. There's another aspect much deeper, much more important. Americans once dealt with the British and French colonial powers, which meant they talked about British and French problems. Of Africans and African problems they remained blissfully unaware. An ambassador wouldn't go talk to the African dancers because they were entertainers, nothing more.

Today Attwood is dealing directly with Africans about their own problems, which are immense but not insoluble. For all its backwardness, Guinea is in many ways the most interesting country in Africa, the only one fully run by black Africans. In the air there's a feeling here that this is the dawn of a new day rather than the end of an old one. There's the feeling of growth and accomplishment, not death and decay, and that makes up for a lot of climate and frustration.

"Today most African leaders have overcome their suspicions of us and are beginning to realize that what we want for them is what they want for themselves, political independence and economic progress in freedom," says Attwood.

In the whole history of diplomacy, never have the interests of a rich highly developed nation and a poor emerging nation coincided so exactly. As for the pragmatism of the New Frontier diplomacy there's the story of Diallo Alpha, Director-General of Information here.

Diallo was so passionately anti-American that he told people he did not want to visit the United States for fear of changing his mind about the country. But he did visit it. At the White House Pierre Salinger took him in to see President Kennedy who spoke to him about Guinean problems and then took him to meet Mrs. Kennedy who spoke French to him. In half-an-hour the anti-Americanism of one important African leader largely evaporated.

It's the kind of story that gets not only all over Guinea but all over Africa almost immediately. In short, New Frontier diplomacy is in many ways the oldest kind of diplomacy of all, which is simply good manners.

'What's Yours Is Mine, Too'

Berlin discussions are being resumed in an atmosphere so pessimistic it all but excludes hope of tangible result. Those who naively hoped last October for a Cuban settlement extending to other outstanding East-West issues now see nothing but Soviet failure to fulfill its pledges.

Cuba, under Moscow's direction, continues to be the wellspring of Communist revolution in the hemisphere.

Among this country's allies who share a stake in Berlin, only Britain is cordial to negotiation. General de Gaulle wants no part of it.

Moscow's reasons for wanting to reopen the talks are of course suspect. They could complicate the West's efforts to reach agreement on a nuclear force for NATO. Further abrasions could prove ruinous.

What then is Moscow offering? The last publicized proposals by Khrushchev and Gromyko mentioned replacing Western troops in Berlin with a UN force. East Germans would join in supervising the city's lifelines to the West. No mention of independence for East Berlin. No talk of self-determination for Germany.

Khrushchev obviously still wants to keep what doesn't belong to Russia—and negotiate the rest.

These Days

By John Chamberlain

The Truth, By Slow Freight

A blue-ribbon jury headed by General Lucius D. Clay has given its verdict on the uses and abuses (oh, lots of abuses) of U.S. foreign aid, and President Kennedy has solemnly thanked the General for his committee's "important service." Well, better late—better even ten years late—than never. General Clay, the hero of the Berlin airlift, is a selfless patriot, always ready and willing to stick his neck out for the salvation of his nation's security and self-respect, and it is pleasant to record that the recommendations of his committee make sense.

But now that the General, supported by such unexceptionable citizens as former Secretary of Defense Robert A. Lovett, former Secretary of the Treasury Robert B. Anderson, former World Bank President Eugene Black, and Harvard economist Edward S. Mason, has given us the word that we are wasting at least a half a billion a year in useless or maladroit overseas spending, it is time that justice should be done his predecessors among the critics of foreign aid.

There is Representative Otto Passman, Chairman of the House subcommittee on foreign aid, for example. Recently I happened to be a member of a panel chosen to discuss foreign aid on television. Nobody among the convocation of supposed experts paid the slightest attention to Passman's recommendation that $1.5 billion be cut from our $4 billion annual foreign aid commitments, and amid the give-and-take of exceedingly high-level discourse I was not sufficiently quick-witted to bring it up. After the TV session, however, the name of Passman was mentioned by a couple of the experts with extreme contempt. Yet Passman's criticism of foreign aid wastefulness had been based on a personal on-the-spot study of our overseas operations, and the Clay Committee's report makes it obvious that the Louisiana Congressman knew whereof he spoke.

Long before Passman struck out against waste in our foreign aid expenditures there were others. I remember Henry Hazlitt, the economist, wearily fending off attacks for being hard-hearted when he insisted that American dollars would not save the world. That was some fifteen years ago. Hazlitt stubbornly stuck to his contention, and now he is being justified. Lots of American dollars went to Yugoslavia, for example, but this did not keep Tito, in the skip-about of politics, from returning to the Kremlin's fold. Millions in direct aid and in bankloans went to Sukarno's Indonesia when it was in course of freeing itself from the Netherlands. This aid was accepted to the tune of shrieks from Sukarno's sycophants that America was trying to bribe the new nation. The more we "bribed," the more it seemed to provoke Sukarno into making common cause with the "neutralist" nations who were "neutral" in favor of the Communists. Some "bribery"!

Then there was Eugene Castle, a businessman who had made his money distributing news films throughout the world. As a traveler Mr. Castle became appalled at the sheer waste that accompanied the spending of America's billions abroad. Enlisting the help of a first-rate New York journalist, Victor Lasky, Mr. Castle sought to tell his story. The resulting book, "Billions, Blunders and Baloney," came out in the mid-Fifties, when it was considered "rightist extremism" to criticize foreign aid. Yet all that Mr. Castle did was to anticipate some of the criticisms made by General Clay's Committee.

An expert on "non-theatrical" films, Mr. Castle made a special investigation of the films made available—at the U.S. taxpayers' expense—to Germany. They included such titles as "Window Washing in the Empire State Building," "Camping for Girl Scouts," and "Children's Zoo at Bronx Park." Another film exported at the taxpayers' expense purported to teach French farmers how to make their soil more productive. Mr. Castle's dry comment was that only a U.S. propagandist could be unaware that the French know more about keeping soil in a fertile condition than any other race on earth.

This is stirring up some old embers. But I am a writing man, and it makes me both angry and sad to realize that it practically always takes a decade for reportorial sagacity to become recognized as truth by a blue-ribbon committee appointed by the President of the United States.

Kohler Warns Russia Will Attack If West Germans Get A-Weapons

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON—U. S. Ambassador Foy Kohler in Moscow has cabled an extremenly important report to the State Department warning that if the West German Army receives or develops nuclear weapons, the Red Army will probably attack.

So great is the fear of German rearmament, and so vivid is the memory of the Nazi penetration into Russia as far as Stalingrad in the last war, that the marshals of the Red Army are not going to wait for another German arms buildup, this time with nuclear weapons.

In fact the Russian policy toward German armament can best be compared to the American policy toward offensive weapons in Cuba as follows: President Kennedy was willing to risk war over nuclear missiles in Cuba, and the Russians are equally willing to risk war over nuclear weapons in Germany.

They figure that nuclear weapons in German hands would constitute a blackmail weapon against them, just as Kennedy advisers argued during the Cuban crisis that Russian missiles in Cuba were a blackmail weapon against the United States.

The significance of the Kohler report is twofold:

1.—It puts the United States on notice that it faces the alternative of war or of backing away from its ally West Germany in case of German nuclear armament.

2.—This is a reversal of what Kohler reported shortly after the Cuban crisis. At that time he cabled that Red Army leaders were furious over the removal of Russian missiles from Cuba, that Minister of Defense Malinowsky was bitter, and that Khrushchev had relegated them to the background, getting them out of positions of power inside the Kremlin.

Khrushchev also went to East Berlin, and in a historic conference of Communist leaders, denounced the Red Chinese position that war is inevitable and induced Walter Ulbricht, chief rabble-rouser of East Germany to pipe down. Ulbricht even made a statement that he was willing to accept "negotiation" over Berlin.

However, none of these overtures were accepted by Kennedy. He was torn between his hard-nose advisers who told him not to budge an inch with Khrushchev and his moderate advisers who told him that if he didn't make some gestures toward Khrushchev, the Red Army would return to power in the Kremlin.

It now looks as if their prediction had been correct.

Note—Ambassador Kohler also reported that at first Khrushchev had been inclined to flirt with de Gaulle following his split with Britain over the Common Market; but that Red Army leaders apparently had overruled him. They regarded the prospect of French-German partnership and the build-of their own nuclear weapons as far too serious. Hence Khrushchev was overruled and a stiff note sent to Paris condemning the Franco-German partnership.

Springtime Steel Strike?

There are two developments in the steel industry affecting the prospect of a spring strike:

1.—The big steel executives are sore because Kennedy has accepted honorary membership in Local 1211, United Steel Workers of America at Aliquippa, Pa.

2.—Dave MacDonald, head of the steel workers, has been talking to executives about means of avoiding a strike, says he's more interested in reducing unemployment than increasing steel wages. He's chiefly talking about pensions and welfare benefits.

There is every indication that MacDonald means what he says.

JFK's membership in the Steel Workers came about when his private secretary, Miss Evelyn Lincoln, replied in a routine way to Aliquippa Local 1211 accepting honorary life membership on behalf of the President.

Plain Talk About The French Question Mark

By Joseph Alsop

PARIS

During Gen. de Gaulle's triumphant visit to Germany last summer, there was a solitary moment of plain talk. All the other Germans were understandably too pleased with the Franco-German reconciliation to get down to hard cases. But this was not true of President Luebke.

The small, genial President of West Germany thought it his duty to warn the towering, glacial President of France against being misled by the warmth of his German welcome. Germany, said Luebke, was first of all loyal to its alliance with the U. S. And in addition, he continued, German policy was squarely based on NATO and was aimed towards an outward-looking Europe including Great Britain.

The German official named to act as Gen. de Gaulle's escort on his tour received the full impact of Luebke's warning to de Gaulle. In the motor leaving the German President's house, de Gaulle did not trouble to mince his words.

What he had heard from President Luebke was very "shocking," de Gaulle said. If this should prove to be true, he went on, he would be "forced to re-examine the whole basis of his policy." Everything, in fact, would be called into question.

But a little later, de Gaulle recalled the comforting fact that the German constitution gives the President almost no power. And a little later still, he was receiving the plaudits of a gigantic crowd; and Luebke's warning was all but forgotten.

This episode from the past is relevant at present, because the time when Gen. de Gaulle may be "forced to re-examine the whole basis of his policy" is coming nearer and nearer. The odds are very heavy indeed, in fact, that the General's European policy is based on a misconception about Germany.

Frenchmen who ought to know are quite forthright about this. Gen. de Gaulle apparently believes that in the final crunch he can always persuade the Germans to follow him—or at least prevent the Germans from opposing him too forcefully, as was the case when he vetoed British entry into the European Common Market. This belief is based on his special relationship to Chancellor Adenauer, plus the warmth of the welcome he received in Germany.

But although contrary hopes are still cherished in Paris, Chancellor Adenauer is all but certain to be replaced by the end of the summer. Furthermore, those loud German cheers for de Gaulle were not cheers for Gaullism. They were cheers for Franco-German reconcilation, which is quite a different thing.

The great mass of Germans, of all three leading parties, want precisely the kind of German policy that President Luebke outlined, with such sharp though temporary effects on de Gaulle. In fact, both of Chancellor Adenauer's most likely successors, Foreign Minister Schroeder and Economics Minister Erhardt, have let it be known that almost immediately on taking office, they will say to de Gaulle all the same things that President Luebke said last summer.

These facts are crucially significant in turn, for two obvious reasons. As Gen. de Gaulle himself admitted, he will then have to take another look at the basis of his policy. This will be unavoidable in turn, because Gen. de Gaulle's power to bend the Europe of the Common Market to his will entirely depends on his power to bend the Germans to his will. Without them, he will be too isolated.

Even now, with Chancellor Adenauer still in office, the French are experiencing rather sharp disappointments in Bonn. They have an overriding interest in the completion of the Common Market's common agricultural policy, which will favor French agriculture at the expense of non-European agricultural exporters to the Common Market, such as the United States.

Yet the Germans have already balked at the proposed arrangements which are intended to lead, by slow steps, to an eventual common cereal price for Europe. The question of the common agricultural policy has already been put off, in consequence, for at least two months. The German delaying tactics, which this reporter forecase from Bonn, have in fact begun already.

Thus the question already has to be asked: what will de Gaulle do when his misconception of the position in Europe becomes inescapably clear, and he is forced to make the re-examination he talked about after seeing President Luebke?

The chances are that he will do nothing much beyond "retiring into his chagrin," as one French official put it. In other words, having failed to transform the Europe of the Six into a personal political instrument, he will downgrade the Common Market once more to a "petty commercial treaty"—which was how he once described it to the French representative at Brussels, Robert de Marjolin.

In this case, there may be a period of deadlock. The French will hardly consent to go forward with preparations for the "Kennedy round" of external trade negotiations, while the completion of the common agricultural policy is blocked. The way out of the deadlock may then be a package deal, already being discussed at Brussels, combining progress on the agricultural front with arrangements for freer external trade. All this can happen within the "petty commercial treatry" framework.

It has to be admitted, however, that this is the forecast of an optimist. A much more pessimistic analysis has too much chance of being right to be ignored, and it will be offered in a further report.

Letters To The Editor

Dear Sir:

With reference to your editorial of March 1, "About that UNESCO Report," it is indeed deplorable that the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO) saw fit to publish last year a book by two Soviet nationals on "Equality of Rights Between Races and Nationalities in the USSR" which is so obviously a vehicle for Soviet propaganda. Your readers might be interested to note, however, that the Department of State vigorously protested publication of this booklet last April and has since then, with the advice of the U. S. National Commission for UNESCO, submitted comprehensive criteria which, if adopted, would prevent the use of UNESCO publications for Soviet propaganda purposes.

In this connection, you may want to note the strongly-worded statement by George V. Allen, Chairman of the U. S. National Commission for UNESCO.

It should be noted that of the 5,400 books and periodicals which UNESCO has published or helped publish in the last 16 years, only a dozen have given rise to protests by either the United tates or other countries.

One booklet, however objectionable, should not detract from the scholarly and valuable publications which UNESCO puts out every year in the fields of education, natural sciences, social sciences, and the arts, nor from its overall work which serves the interests of the United States, such as scientific cooperation in oceanography and water resources, and major programs of educational development in Latin America, Asia, and Africa. By helping raise standards of living in many developing countries, UNESCO contributes measurably to the efforts of our government in combatting Communism.

In conclusion, while we cannot have our way all the time, as is the case in any "family" of 113 members, the fact that we have had our way much of the time and on all substantial issues and programs confronting UNESCO is clear indication of the continued need for United States leadership in that organization.

TB Patients Should Have Periodic Chest X-Rays

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

A positive tuberculin reaction in cattle is a death sentence; the animal is slaughtered to protect humans. The law is more lenient when a child or an adult develops a positive tuberculin skin test. The reason is obvious, but there ought to be rules and regulations making it imperative that they have a careful followup, including periodic chest X-rays.

An individual usually harbors live tubercle bacilli when this skin test becomes positive. These bacteria may not cause illness but the possibility always exists, especially when resistance is lowered through poor nutrition or living conditions. The entire problem of the control of tuberculosis rests with these positive reactors who harbor the causative micro-organisms. And there are plenty of them because a high percentage of adults have a positive test.

Most adult cases of tuberculosis develop in persons who have had a positive reaction for several years, together with evidence of a healed infection somewhere in the body. Some are aware of this lesion because they had treatment for active tuberculosis and the disease became inactive.

Others developed the infection during childhood but it was so mild it escaped detection. The bacilli were caught from someone else, usually an adult who may or may not have known he had active tuberculosis. At any rate, the skin test changed from negative to positive even though they were not necessarily ill.

But this childhood type of tuberculosis is not always so innocent. It can be serious and this explains why every child whose tuberculin test becomes positive is treated with drugs, even though the X-rays are normal.

Tuberculosis never will be eradicated until the tuberculin positive person who had definite evidence of the disease in the past is watched carefully. An evidence of reactivation of an infection that is smoldering somewhere in the body, usually in the lungs, may be reactivated. The dormant infection comes to light through many stress factors such as alcoholism, aging, and other illnesses. In many instances, the individual is not aware of this reactivation because there are no symptoms during the early stage. Yet he is contagious and is likely to pass along the organisms to an unprotected child. Most of these youngsters survive and become tuberculin positive adults, to complete the cycle.

VISION AND HYPERTENSION

R. H. writes: Does high blood pressure injure the eyes?

REPLY

Yes. Most of the damage occurs when the blood vessels in the eyes become narrowed and hardened. This in turn affects circulation to the retina. Vision also may be disturbed as a result of stroke.

SORE BREASTS

Mrs. G. writes: Could painful breasts mean cancer?

REPLY

Not as a rule. Inflammation and congestion are frequent causes of this symptom.

TOMORROW: The uses of oxygen.

To the limit of space questions pertaining to the prevention of diseases will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

Happy memories: When Ed Wynn played a waiter in "Manhattan Mary" and a customer demanded lamb chops au gratin, Wynn shouted to the kitchen, "Cheese it, the chops" . . . When Eddie Cantor told a pair of worn-out acrobats, who invariably closed the show in the old vaudeville houses, "Boys, if you ever expect to get anywhere in this profession, you'll have to dream up a new finish for your act." "New finish!" echoed one of the acrobats indignantly. "Nobody's ever waited to see the old one yet." . . . And when a druggist stopped Bobby Clark to ask, "Did that mudpack I suggested improve your wife's appearance?" Bobby's answer was, "It did for a couple of days, but then it wore off."

George Burns recalled the story of the man who swallowed his glass eye and rushed to a stomach specialist. The latter peered down the fellow's throat and exclaimed, "I've looked into a lot of stomachs in my day, but I must say this is the first one that ever looked back at me!"

TV Notes

NEW YORK (UPI)—Earl Hollman, star of NBC's "Wide Country" series, wrote the script that will be the final show of the season. It is called "First Touch of Evil," and is the first teleplay the star has written.

May 15 is the date when the Hollywood cameras will roll on the new MGM one-hour dramatic series entitled "The Lieutenant," which has been sold on the basis of 26 episodes to NBC for next season. Gary Lockwood, Robert Elstin and Stephen Franken are regulars on the series.

Red Skelton is all set for his 13th season on video, starting next fall, with his long-time sponsor signing again on the dotted line. Red will continue the one-hour format he adopted last fall, but CBS will start the program at 8 p.m. Tuesdays, half an hour earlier.

Bud Collyer, veteran radio and television host and master of ceremonies, will be especially honored for his work with the organization when the Bedside Network of Veterans Hospital Radio and Television Guild celebrates its 15th anniversary April 26 with a ball at the Plaza Hotel. Collyer has been a mainstay of the organization since it began.

That variety show that folksinger Jimmy Dean hoped would get on the ABC network this season will, instead, get started next fall. It will be a one-hour affair starring the lanky Texan and using guest stars, Bob Banner, who does such successful programs as "The Garry Moore Show," "Candid Camera" and Carol Burnett's CBS specials, will produce Dean's show.

Police Chief Gets $5 For Job Of Raising Flag

PETERSHAM, Mass. (UPI) — Every time this town raises the flag on its Common, it costs $5.

Here's why:

The flagpole consists of two 30-foot sections. To fly the flag, somebody must climb up steel spokes to a platform atop the lower section.

From there he must raise the second section by pulleys and lash it to the bottom part. Then by means of another pulley he raises the flag to the top of the staff.

Nobody wanted the job. So Police Chief William W. Ellsworth agreed to do it—at $5 per flag-raising, which occurs on every legal holiday.

Boats In State Need Mufflers

The Department of Tidewater Fisheries has announced all boats must be effectively muffled as of April 1.

The department said the regulation is not to be construed as a deterrent to racing or boating in general, and that only a few boaters with improper mufflers will be affected.

It was appointed out that if 50 citizens in the state oppose the regulation a public hearing may be held no later than April 1.

Brazilians call hummingbirds "flower kissers." Some 80 known species of the tiny birds live in the giant South American nation.

TV Notes

NEW YORK (UPI)—Earl Hollimman, star of NBC's "Wide Country" series, wrote the script that will be the final show of the season. It is called "First Touch of Evil," and is the first teleplay the star has written.

May 15 is the date when the Hollywood cameras will roll on the new MGM one-hour dramatic series entitled "The Lieutenant," which has been sold on the basis of 26 episodes to NBC for next season. Gary Lockwood, Robert Elstin and Stephen Franken are regulars on the series.

Red Skelton is all set for his 13th season on video, starting next fall, with his long-time sponsor signing again on the dotted line. Red will continue the one-hour format he adopted last fall, but CBS will start the program at 8 p.m. Tuesdays, half an hour earlier.

Bud Collyer, veteran radio and television host and master of ceremonies, will be especially honored for his work with the organization when the Bedside Network of Veterans Hospital Radio and Television Guild celebrates its 15th anniversary April 26 with a ball at the Plaza Hotel. Collyer has been a mainstay of the organization since it began.

That variety show that folksinger Jimmy Dean hoped would get on the ABC network this season will, instead, get started next fall. It will be a one-hour affair starring the lanky Texan and using guest stars, Bob Banner, who does such successful programs as "The Garry Moore Show," "Candid Camera" and Carol Burnett's CBS specials, will produce Dean's show.

Senate Cloakroom

by Sen. J. Glenn Beall

"I have deep convictions that if our people will use the same courage and common sense that motivated the men who sat at Philadelphia and under divine inspiration gave us first our Declaration of Independence and later our Constitution, there are none of our domestic problems which we as a free people cannot solve and there is no foreign foe we need ever fear."—Former Senator William F. Knowland, Editor, Oakland Tribune.

The Administration's Omnibus School Bill, a $6,000,000,000 piece of legislation which would inject the central government in Washington into virtually all phases of education and into the public schools of villages throughout the nation, would provide Federal subsidies which are not really needed.

First, let me remind you that the bill probably will be rewritten in the House of Representatives before it comes to the Senate. In the Senate, it will be referred to committee, where again it may be rewritten, and further changes may be made in the bill when it reaches the Floor of the Senate. When, and if, it passes, the Senate, it will go to Conference, where specially appointed conferees of the two Houses of Congress will attempt to iron out differences. The conference report will then be taken up by the two Houses separately. If a measure should emerge from this mill, it may not be what the Administration wants. Should the President veto the finally passed measure, his veto might be overridden by a two-thirds vote in both Houses. The final measure, if any, could be wholly different from the original Administration bill. In the case of the Omnibus School Bill, it is conceivable that it could be changed to the extent that I would want to support it. We'll have to wait and see.

I hold that the States and local communities are doing a good job of maintaining school systems that best meet the industrial and civic and human needs of their respective areas. Evidence presented to a Congressional committee last week indicates that 60% of all classrooms now in use were built since World War II, 25% in the last 5 years, that the number of teachers has increased faster than enrollments, and that both the pay and quality of teachers have risen. These achievements were made by the States and local communities without Federal subsidies.

After all, so-called Federal "aid" comes from the people who get the "aid," who get part of their own money back. It's the old Federal-aid transfusion story: drawing blood from the right arm and returning it to the left, after spilling a big part of it on the way across.

Both in the Senate Armed Services Committee and on the Floor of the Senate I supported the renewal of the military service draft law. With world conditions as they are today, I feel that this legislation is vital. The measure provides for extension of authority to induct individuals into military service through June, 1967. In my opinion, to be adequately prepared is the best way to maintain peace in this troubled world.

Former Senator Burton K. Wheeler, Democrat, of Montana, once Nominee for Vice President of the Progressive Party ticket, and one of the great fighting liberals of this era, recently said:

"The fight of the true liberals has been to take power from the Executive and give it to the Legislative Branch; now the so-called 'liberals' want to give more power to the Executive." Without question, today's so-called 'liberals' do not uphold the basic government philosophy of such recognized liberals as Thomas Jefferson, Woodrow Wilson and Burton Wheeler. The true liberal is the private citizen or public official who advocates the maintaining of individual liberties free from the encroachments of either economic or political monoply. Those who today are inaccurately labeled "liberal" advocate policies and programs promoting authoritarian government, Big Brother centralized control, the very antithesis of Jefferson - authoritarian government, Big Brother centralized control, the very antithesis of Jefferson liberalism. My colleague, Senator Karl E. Mundt, of South Dakota, describes these so-called "liberals" as "20th-Century Tories". In an article in last week's U. S. News & World Report, Senator Mundt wrote:

"Somewhere along the line these tories have lost confidence in the American people and have by some curious form of self-delusionment, convinced themselves that only the Federal politicians are motivated by a high sense of ethics, only the Federal politician can be trusted to do what is right, and only the Federal politician can understand and provide what the people need and want. Thus, these misnamed and misdirected 'liberals' continue to chip away at the power, the rights and the free choice of the people while transferring to big-time politicians in Washington the authority to determine the people's destiny . . . . Their growing influence has made an important but unfortunate impact upon our national destiny. We have been following a global drift toward overcentralization of government and glorification of the central politician over the rights and privileges of the individual . . . . Our basic American concepts of private ownership, reward or merit, self-determination, and effective control of the politicians by the people are being threatened."

The light of human liberty burns brightest when the will of man is given free rein — uncontrolled by the politicians of his time and place. This is the concept of the true liberal — but not that of those who today call themselves 'liberals'.

A letter to future Americans:
Dear Great-Grandchildren:

I want to leave you this note of appreciation. You see, it was during my lifetime that leaders in the U. S. Government decided to spend more money than we had. "Deficit Financing", we called it, and we excused ourselves on the grounds that we had a war to win, a war we called World War II. After the war, we had a long period of prosperity, and I must admit that during that time we should have paid something on the debt, but we had grown accustomed to spending more money than we liked to pay in taxes. So, instead of paying off what we had borrowed, we decided to let you do it. We even decided to go on a spending spree, handing out borrowed cash for all kinds of purposes to people with their hands out, and doing things for people which they should have done for themselves. You see, we pretend to believe some immature, inexperienced college professors who came up with the convenient idea that deficit spending was good for the country. So, the debt mounted.

I hope you will not hate the memory of my generation. I like to think of us as darn fine people. We meant well. We would have liked to leave you the same rich, debt-free heritage that we received, but in the name of "Progress and Vigor" we had to get the money from someone. We took it from you. Thanks.

Your Great-Grandpa.

Economy Steak

Thrifty meat cuts can come to your aid. This doesn't mean drab meals either. Because many enomony meats are braised, exciting flavor blends can result.

Spanish Steak is an example. Budget beef arm or blade steak slowly cooks with tomatoes and onion slices to yield a zesty dish adapted from the cookery of Spain.

Arm and blade steaks, like arm and blade pot-roasts, are braised to be deliciously tender when served.

Spanish Steak

- 1 arm or blade steak, cut 1½ inches thick
- 2 tablespoons flour
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon pepper
- 3 tablespoons lard or drippings
- 1 large onion, sliced
- 1 can (16 ounces) tomatoes
- Flour for gravy

Combine flour, salt and pepper. Dredge meat with seasoned flour and brown in lard or drippings. Pour off drippings. Add onion and tomatoes. Cover tightly and cook slowly about 2 hours or until tender. Thicken cooking liquid for gravy. Additional seasoning may be added, if desired. 4 to 6 servings.

Week's Food Economies

Total supplies of both fruits and vegetables are still below normal for this time of the year. Gradual improvements is seen each week in increased supplies of some produce or lower prices, says Virginia L. McLuckie, food economist in the Baltimore Office of the University of Maryland Department of Markets.

At the vegetable counter there are definite signs of spring in early season asparagus and salad bowl vegetables. California asparagus is lower in cost.

The salad bowl greens available are increasing in recipts. Endive or chicory, escarole and romaine will add nice variety and varied green color to salads. Other salad bowl vegetables in increasing supply are green peppers, spring onions and radishes.

Florida tomatoes are lower in price and supply is good. The tube package with three to five tomatoes that are ripened off the vine are less costly and one of the best buys for salads.

Cabbage continues as one of the best buys. Prices are low in cost per serving. Serve it raw or cooked with different dressings or sauces for variety.

Canned corn supplies are heavy and a recommended good buy. Both whole kernel or cream style corn are available at attractive prices. There is much you can do with a can of corn.

Sale of bananas will attract shoppers. This imported fruit is available the year around with low price tags it does represent modern marketing efficiency that helps put bananas on the best buy list.

Grapefruit is the best fresh citrus buy. March and April are peak months for fresh pineapple. Most East Coast pineapple comes from Puerto Rico and Mexico.

Egg prices are lower making them one of the bset buys and a bargain in high quality protein. Grade A eggs are recommended for quality.

Pork sales represent the heavy marketings for this time of the year. Shad is becoming more plentiful from the Chesapeake and a real springtime treat from the fish counter.

Senate Cloakroom

by Sen. J. Glenn Beall

"I have deep convictions that if our people will use the same courage and common sense that motivated the men who sat at Philadelphia and under divine inspiration gave us first our Declaration of Independence and later our Constitution, there are none of our domestic problems which we as a free people cannot solve and there is no foreign foe we need ever fear."—Former Senator William F. Beef Birds Appeal To Appetites

On cold days when appetites are keen, hearty foods are in order. Take a tip from Midwestern-style cookery for dishes certain to appeal to the men of the house.

This one is a savory, full-flavored beef dish with a hidden corn stuffing. Round steak is cut into serving pieces, pounded with seasoned flour, and rolled with the corn mixture inside to form "birds."

Round steak should always be cooked by moist heat. This gives an opportunity to make a wonderful gravy to pour over the top.

Corn Stuffed Beef Birds

- 1 beef round steak, cut ½ inch thick
- ¼ cup flour
- 1½ teaspoons salt
- ¼ teaspoon pepper
- 1 can (10½ ounces) whole kernel corn
- ¾ cup cracker crumbs
- 2 tablespoons chopped onion
- 1 tablespoon chopped green pepper
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- ⅛ teaspoon pepper
- ¼ teaspoon basil
- 2 tablespoons lard or drippings
- ¼ cup water

Combine flour, salt and pepper. Pound seasoned flour into steak. Cut steak into 5 or 6 servings. Mix together corn, cracker crumbs, onion, green pepper and seasonings. Place ⅓ cup corn mixture on each piece of steak and roll as a jelly-roll. Fasten with wooden picks or skewers. Brown meat slowly in lard or drippings. Pour off drippings. Add water. Cover tightly and cook slowly 1½ hours or until meat is tender. Thicken cooking liquid for gravy, if desired. 5 to 6 servings.

Cereal Breakfast Cookies

Make the birthday child a breakfast-cereal cooky to start his day with a touch of excitement. Puffed rice or puffed wheat, regular or presweetened, work equally well in the recipe for Cereal Molasses Hearts. But, be mindful of the fact that no special treat should be allowed to interfere with breakfast.

Surveys reveal that breakfast cereals are found in over 80 per cent of the homes. On the average morning, about two-thirds of the children eat cereals for breakfast. So, right at your hand is the main dish of an adequate breakfast, the cereal and milk serving. The basic cereal and milk breakfast pattern was established as an adequate breakfast during the course of the Iowa Breakfast Studies on the role of breakfast in the diet regimen. Fruit or juice, cereal, milk, sugar, bread and butter, is the easy-to-serve menu that means your children will have an adequate morning meal.

Cereal Molasses Hearts

- 6 cups puffed wheat or puffed rice, regular or presweetened
- ¾ cup salted peanuts
- ¾ cup light corn syrup
- ¼ cup light molasses
- 2 tablespoons vegetable oil
- 1 teaspoon vinegar
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon vanilla

Pour cereal and nuts in greased bowl; mix. Combine syrup, molasses, oil, vinegar and salt in saucepan and cook to hard ball stage (258°F.) Remove from heat; stir in vanilla. Pour syrup over cereal and nuts; mix until cereal is evenly coated with syrup. Use buttered heart-shaped cutters in sizes 4, 4¾ and 5½ inches to shape hearts. Place cutters on waxed paper; press cereal mixture into cutters. Remove cutters and repeat until mixture is used, making 4 hearts of each size. Cool at room temperature. Yield: 12 heart-shaped cookies.

Florida Perfection Salad

- 2 envelopes unflavored gelatine
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 2½ cups Florida grapefruit juice, divided
- 3 teaspoons non-caloric liquid sweetener
- ½ cup vinegar
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- 1 cup finely shredded cabbage
- 2 cup chopped celery
- 2 pimientos cut in small pieces of ¼ cup chopped sweet red or green pepper

Mix gelatine and salt thoroughly in a small saucepan. Add 1 cup of the grapefruit juice and liquid sweetener. Place over low heat, stirring constantly, until gelatine is dissovled. Remove from heat and stir in remaining 1½ cups of grapefruit juice, vinegar and lemon juice. Chill mixture to unbeaten egg white consistency. Fold in shredded cabbage, celery and pimiento. Turn into a 4-cup mold or individual molds and chill until firm. Unmold on serving plate and garnish with salad greens and citrus sections. Serve with Lo-Calorie Citrus Dressing.

YIELD: 4 to 6 servings.

Creole-Style Flank Steak Is Menu Surprise

When you feel like surprising your family or guests, take a little more time than usual and prepare a real treat . . . perhaps for Sunday dinner, a company meal, or just a weekday supper. Select a well-liked meat, such as flank steak, and you'll surely be proclaimed "best cook."

Flank Steak—Creole-Style is a meat dish that's rolled like a jelly roll with a zesty stuffing of sausage, bread crumbs and parsley. It's braised in a delicious sauce of tomatoes, bay leaf, green pepper and onion.

Flank steaks are usually scored by the meat retailer. If you purchase unscored meat, you can score it easily by cutting diagonal slashes in a crisscross pattern on both sides of the meat. Remember not to cut too deeply.

When the meat roll has finished cooking, remove the string that held it together. A cup of water and 3 tablespoons flour turns the cooking liquid into a flavorful Creole gravy.

Flank Steak—Creole-Style

- 2 small beef flank steaks
- ¾ pound pork sausage
- 1½ cups moist bread crumbs
- 3 tablespoons chopped parsley
- 3 tablespoons lard
- 2 teaspoon salt
- ½ cup chopped onion
- 2 bay leaves
- 1 can (16 ounces) tomatoes
- ½ cup chopped green pepper, if desired
- 1 cup water
- 3 tablespoons flour

Pound or lightly score flank steak on both sides. Combine sausage, bread crumbs and parsley and mix well. Spread sausage mixture on flank steak and roll as a jelly roll. Tie steak with string and brown in lard. Pour off drippings. Add salt, onions, bay leaves, tomatoes and green pepper. Cover tightly and cook slowly 1½ to 2 hours or until tender. Remove steak and bay leaves, pour off excess fat, add water to cooking liquid and thicken for gravy. 8 to 9 servings.

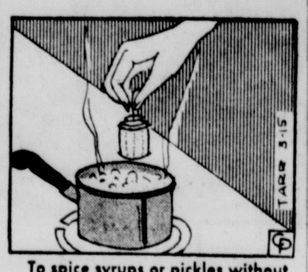
Spicy Ham Balls

- 1 egg beaten
- ½ cup soft bread crumbs
- ½ cup milk
- 1 tablespoon brown sugar
- ⅛ teaspoon cloves
- 1 pound ground cooked ham
- 8 canned peach halves, drained
- Parsley

Combine first six ingredients and mix well. Shape into 8 balls. Place peach halves hollow sides up in buttered shallow baking pan. Place a ham ball in each half. Bake in 350° F. oven about 25-30 minutes. Makes 8 servings. mfw yu upu hrdl unun shrdluu n

Wife Preservers

Have a pot lid with a missing knob? Just put a screw up through the hole and screw on a large cork. It will prevent finger burns and last for some time.



To spice syrups or pickles without adding the whole spice, put spices in a teaball and leave teaball in the boiling mixture the desired length of time.

- ½ cup boiling water
- ½ cup California Burgundy, Claret, or other red dinner wine
- 1 cup canned tomatoes
- 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
- Salt and pepper
- Fine dry bread crumbs

Crumble meat into a mixing bowl. Add potatoes, celery, onion and mix well. Turn into a greased casserole. Dissolve bouillon cube in boiling water; add wine, tomatoes, Worcestershire sauce, salt and pepper. Pour over meat mixture. Cover and bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) for 1½ hours. Uncover and stir hash well; sprinkle with fine, dry bread crumbs. Continue baking, uncovered for ½ hour.

Pork Facts

How long does it take to grow your pork chops? In six months pigs are raised to full-grown hogs, tipping the scales at an average of 220 pounds, reports the American Meat Institute. There are only about 10 pounds of center-cut pork chops in a 220-pound porker, a good reason for investigating other less popular but equally nutritious pork cuts.

Pork Facts

How long does it take to grow your pork chops? In six months pigs are raised to full-grown hogs, tipping the scales at an average of 220 pounds, reports the American Meat Institute. There are only about 10 pounds of center-cut pork chops in a 220-pound porker, a good reason for investigating other less popular but equally nutritious pork cuts.

Luncheon Meat Served Uniquely In Squash Half

Colorful acorn squash suggest a unique manner of serving a main entree. Bake meat balls in the centers of the squash and surprise your family!

The meat used in these meat balls is different, too. It's canned luncheon meat, a flavor that combines well with squash and the sweet brown sugar sauce that's poured over the top.

The luncheon meat may be ground or well mashed with a fork . . . whichever you prefer. A small amount of bread crumbs and an egg help the meat balls hold their shape. The squash is partially cooked, then three meat balls are placed in each. Along with the sauce the dish finishes baking.

Reba Staggs, home economist, says that it's a wise homemaker who utilizes the great variety of convenient, and usually economical, canned meats.

Meat Ball And Squash Bake

- 1 can (12 ounces) luncheon meat, ground or mashed
- 3 medium acorn squash
- 1 egg, beaten
- 2 tablespoons milk
- ½ cup soft bread crumbs
- 1 cup brown sugar, firmly packed
- 1 teaspoon dry mustard
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- 3 tablespoons vinegar

Cut squash in half lengthwise and remove seeds. Place cut side down in shallow baking pan and bake in a moderate oven (375° F.) 30 minutes. Combine egg, milk, bread crumbs and meat. Mix thoroughly. Shape meat mixture into 18 balls using about 1 rounded tablespoon for each. Turn partially-baked squash cut side up and place 3 meat balls in each. Combine brown sugar, dry mustard, salt and vinegar and spread over meat balls in squash. Bake in a moderate oven (375° F.) 30 minutes, or until squash is tender. 6 servings.

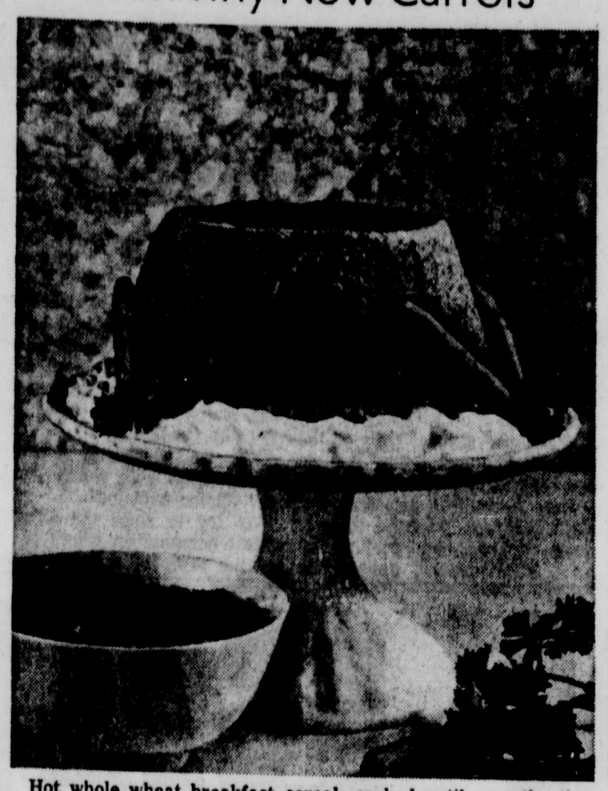
Savory Veal Steak

(Makes 4 or 5 servings)

- 1½ pounds veal steak
- 2 tablespoons flour
- ¾ teaspoon garlic salt
- ¼ teaspoon basil
- 3 tablespoons cooking oil
- ¾ cup California Rose
- ⅓ cup commercial sour cream
- ⅓ cup grated Parmesan cheese

Cut steak into serving pieces; dredge with flour mixed with salt and basil. Brown meat on both sides in heated oil; drain off any excess fat. Add wine to meat, cover and simmer until meat is tender, about 35 to 40 minutes. Combine sour cream and cheese; spoon over meat and continue cooking 5 to 10 minutes longer. Remove meat to serving platter, stir pan juices to blend and serve over meat.

Hot Carrot-Cereal Pudding With Tiny New Carrots



Hot whole wheat breakfast cereal, cooked until smooth; tiny new carrots, cooked, mashed and drained; eggs, milk and seasonings! These are the ingredients of a pudding which is as smooth as custard and as surprising to children as rain on a sunny day! The crisp little carrots used as garnish for our carrot-cereal dessert can, for this once, take the place of a cooky? Breakfast cereals are excellent for ingredient use in recipes because they are inexpensive, convenient, add flavor and texture, and make nutritional contributions of protein, important B vitamins, essential minerals, and food energy.

Golden Wheat Pudding

- ½ cup hot whole wheat cereal, uncooked
- 1¼ cups water
- 1½ cups milk, scalded
- 3 eggs, beaten
- ½ cup brown sugar, packed
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon cinnamon
- ½ teaspoon ginger
- ¼ teaspoon nutmeg
- 1 cup mashed cooked or canned carrots, well drained

Cook cereal as directed on package (in 1¼ cups water). Combine cooked cereal and milk; beat well. Stir in eggs, brown sugar, salt, spices and carrots. Pour into 1½ quart shallow casserole or greased mold. Bake in slow oven (325°F) until set, about 45 minutes. Cool to room temperature. Chill the mold three or four hours before unmolding. Serve with orange preserves thinned with pineapple juice, and whipped cream. Yield: 8 servings.

Bread Accents Italian Meal

To add variety to cold-weather meals, take a taste trip to sunny Italy by planning a complete Italian-style dinner. Serve minestrone soup, spaghetti, of course, with your favorite sauce, and a big tossed salad with an olive oil and vinegar dressing.

To round out the theme, don't forget the hot, Italian bread seasoned with onion or garlic.

Cut a loaf of Italian bread in thick slices, but don't cut all the way through. Brush both sides of each piece with olive oil, using a pastry brush. Sprinkle with garlic salt or instant minced onion. Toast in a 350 degree oven for about 10 minutes, and serve piping hot.

Festive Fruit Cookies

(Makes 3 dozen)

- ¾ cup butter
- ¾ cup light brown sugar, firmly packed
- ½ teaspoon vanilla
- ½ teaspoon rum flavoring
- 1 egg
- 2 cups sifted flour
- 2 teaspoons baking powder
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ¼ cup milk
- 1 cup (8 oz.) finely chopped candied mixed fruit

Cream butter and sugar until fluffy. Add flavorings and egg. Add sifted dry ingredients alternately with milk, mixing well. Stir in fruit. Drop by teaspoonfuls onto greased cooky sheet. Bake at 375° for 10 to 12 minutes.

Lamb Curry Gives Menu Exotic Note

In the exotic cuisine of India, curry is the basic spice. Cooks use it in so many ingenious ways and almost as frequently as some of us use salt and pepper.

For note of the unusual in your meals, borrow the delightful curry flavor and add it to a braised lamb dish. The resulting Lamb Curry is fancy enough to serve your special guests.

This particular recipe is also flavored with cinnamon, cloves, nutmeg, allspice, onion and apples. Serve the meat mixture and its spicy gravy over fluffy white rice. You might want to complete the menu with other typical Indian foods.

Another point in favor of serving Lamb Curry is that it calls for economical boneless lamb.

Lamb Curry

- 1½ pounds boneless lamb
- 1 cup water
- ½ cup diced onion
- 1½ cups sliced tart apples
- 1½ tablespoons curry powder
- ⅛ teaspoon cinnamon
- ⅛ teaspoon ground cloves
- ⅛ teaspoon nutmeg
- ⅛ teaspoon allspice
- ¼ cup butter or margarine
- 6 tablespoons flour
- 2 teaspoons salt
- Few grains red pepper
- 1 to 2 cups milk
- 3 cups cooked rice

Cut lamb into 1-inch cubes. Add water, cover tightly and cook slowly in a slow oven (300° F.) or on top of range about 1 hour. Add onions, apples and spices. Continue cooking 30 to 45 minutes or until done. Remove meat mixture reserving cooking liquid. Melt butter or margarine in saucepan. Stir in flour, salt and pepper. Add enough milk to cooking liquid to make 3 cups. Gradually add liquid mixture to flour mixture, stirring constantly, until thickened. Combine meat mixture and sauce. Heat. Serve on hot rice. 6 servings.

Note: Shredded coconut, chopped peanuts, chutney or raisins may be served as accompaniments.

Low-Calorie Citrus Dressing

- 2 tablespoons flour
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ½ teaspoon dry mustard
- 1½ cups Florida orange juice
- 1½ teaspoons non-caloric liquid sweetener
- 2 egg yolks, beaten

Combine flour, salt and dry mustard in top of double boiler. Gradually stir in orange juice, liquid sweetener and beaten egg yolks. Cook over boiling water, stirring constantly, until thickened. Cool.

YIELD: 1¼ cups. (16 calories per tablespoon)

Capitol Comment

by Rep. Charles Mathias

We celebrate a significant anniversary in Maryland. On Monday, March 25 — Maryland Day, the 329th anniversary of the first founding of the colony of Maryland. The tiny ships, the Ark and the Dove, brought the first Maryland colonists to St. Clement's Island in the Potomac River. Then they landed at St. Mary's to found what has become an historic and a great state.

We should take time in 1963 to consider what the State of Maryland means to us now and what it has meant over the years. Maryland has been a place where great ideas have been developed, where great concepts of government have been tried. When proven they have been handed down to other states and to the world at large. Some of the institutions of Maryland have been preserved in the Government of the United States. And so we have good reason to examine what is great in our own Maryland history.

Last year on Maryland Day we recalled the Act of Toleration. That Act was passed by the General Assembly of Maryland three centuries ago to give all persons in Maryland the right to practice their religion in their own manner. This was religious freedom and individual liberty which was unique in the seventeenth century. We can be very proud of our Maryland heritage for developing a climate of toleration which is now a fundamental part of our constitutional right as Americans.

There were other things which we can remember with great pride. For instance, in 1648 there was the incident in the General Assembly in which a woman claimed for the first time in recorded American history the right to sit as a legislator. The Journal of the General Assembly of Maryland for Friday, January 21, 1648 records:

"Came Mrs. Margaret Brent and requested to have vote in the House for herself and voice also."

On this occasion the Governor denied Mrs. Brent both voice and vote as a Member of the General Assembly of Maryland, but she had asserted for all time the claim that a woman had a right to sit as an equal with other Members of the Legislature. Today, of course, Mrs. Brent's claim has been vindicated. There are women in Annapolis who are valuable members of the General Assembly. And in Washington the Congress, which is in a sense a direct descendant of the General Assembly of Maryland, also has valuable Members who are women. This is a principle which had its birth and its first expression in Maryland. It is another incident of Maryland history which can make us proud of our heritage.

If today we are sometimes discouraged because our political leadership in Maryland seems to be lacking; if we are discouraged because our progress in good government seems to be slow, we can look back to our long and proud history and I think gain good cause for our optimism for the years ahead.

Educators Say School System Needs Revision

By WILLIAM P. GRUBER

CHICAGO (UPI)—The pace of education is being held back for many students by the "rigid and antiquated framework" of instruction binding most schools today, in the opinion of several top educators.

This situation may worsen as the nation's school-age population grows and can be remedied only by a sweeping revision of the educational process and a heavy dose of federal aid, these educators say.

These and other ideas somewhat less extreme came to light in interviews with school officials attending a recent conference on higher education sponsored by the National Education Association.

Dr. Buell Gallagher, president of the City College of New York, said the age-old insistence that high school take four years, with graduation at age 18 and similar requirements for college, makes little sense.

"What is the magic that comes at 18 or with a high school diploma? None that I can see," he said. "The apex of learning varies with every individual."

Gallagher and E. K. Fretwell Jr., assistant commissioner of higher education for New York state, said there have been many changes in education since Russia launched its first Sutnik in late 1957. More are needed, and quickly, lest the nation's schools be drowned in a flood of an exploding populace, they said.

Another expert also advocating an overhaul of the process, Alvin C. Eurich, vice president of the Fund for the Advancement of Education, said more college facilities will have to be built in the next 15 years than ever before in the nation's history, if there are no changes.

"By 1980, on the basis of birth records, the number of youngsters will almost double," he said. "College enrollments are likely to soar. Conservatively speaking, from 250 to 300 per cent."

"We obviously cannot accommodate such numbers within the conventional framework of our educational system," Eurich said.

To give more students an opportunity for schooling, the men said, most institutions probably will discard the old standards of age, courses and periods and give students greater freedom to proceed at their own pace.

Gallagher sees high schools offering special two-year programs "which would solve the drop-out problem and free faster students from being held back by the slow ones."

Colleges also may offer abbreviated plans for those who cannot or do not wish to go further, he said. Earlier enrollments and speedier advancement by means of proficiency exams would be common. This sounds similar to a controversial system installed some years ago at the University of Chicago by then-Chancellor Robert M. Hutchins.

"In this way, college would be available to far more than now. It could also alleviate a critical shortage of technician and engineering assistants," Gallagher said.

The educators also predicted a greater diversification of schools. Not only will there be more technical and liberal arts schools, but others specializing in vocational, academic and commercial fields, they said.

Films Made To Show American Way Of Life

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — George Stevens, Jr., has produced more movies in a single year than his distinguished father has directed in a career spanning 30 years.

George, Jr., an assistant to Edward R. Murrow in the United States Information Agency, was responsible for about 600 movies during 1962, but the odds against his winning an Oscar for them are remote.

Young Stevens is charged with providing filmed propaganda heralding the American way of life and generally showing other countries what a good bunch we are.

With this in mind, USIA, under Stevens' direction, ships out one, two and three-reel documentary movies to 106 foreign countries.

But they are never seen in the United States.

It is sort of a hidden movie industry that appears to thrive on a tiny budget, by movie standards, of $6 million annually.

George's father, winner of two Academy Awards, is spending more than twice as much on his "Greatest Story Ever Told," but then it is being made in Hollywood. Junior never films his stuff in Lotusland.

Neither does George find it necessary to hire expensive actors. His casts are made up of amateurs.

"We shoot about 50 per cent of our footage here in the United States and the rest in various countries," George said. "And our subject matter covers a lot of territory.

"We filmed several reels on the Berlin wall, for instance. But we also concentrate on such subjects as American aid in disasters, our space program, peaceful uses of atomic energy, our position on Cuba, disarmament, the atomic test ban and the progress of the Negro in America."

Junior said the films, most of which run about 10 minutes, can be narrated in 52 languages, although that number rarely is used for a single movie.

"We've found that the 10-minute film is the most effective because it allows theaters time to work them into their programs and still not interfere with the commercial pictures," he said.

This is not to say that the big theaters of Paris, London, Rome and Stockholm sit still for 10-minute slices of American hard-sell right in the middle of an Elvis Presley feature. According to Stevens, Europe is not a fertile field for USIA goodies.

"We are stronger in Asia and Africa, along with South America," Junior explained.

"We try to show the struggle against communism wherever we find the army of a South American country building raods, schools and dams. Well, we film that and send it to other Latin countries, or over to Africa as an example of western democracy at work, helping improve peoples' lives.

"Next year we will have a larger budget to work with. We think our work helps out when compared to the stories that come out of Little Rock and Oxford, Miss. At least we're in there trying."

Paper Firm Official Reassigned

LUKE — The reassignment of L. Paul Haywood from a position as a forester in the Luke mill area of West Virginia Pulp and Paper to the Parkersburg, W. Va., area was announced today by L. D. Peterson, wood procurement manager of the company's Fine Papers Division. Haywood will assume his new duties on April 1.

He will be in charge of all pulpwood shipments to the Luke mill from a 12-county region of West Virginia and Ohio adjacent to the Ohio River in that region.

Prior to his transfer to Parkersburg, Haywood had been serving as a wood procurement forester in the Luke mill's northern truck territory of southern Pennsylvania, Maryland and northern West Virginia.

A native of Piedmont and graduate of Bruce High School at Westernport, Haywood attended the West Virginia University School of Forestry and graduated in 1958 with a Bachelor of Science degree in Forestry.

Before entering the university he worked two years as a laboratory technician at the Luke mill of West Virginia Pulp and Paper. After receiving his degree, Haywood rejoined the company as a forester at the Charleston, S. C., mill. After 1½ years at Charleston he was employed by the W. I. Bivens Company as a forester. He also worked as a licensed consultant forester in the state of South Carolina. In September 1962 Haywood joined the Wood Procurement Department of the Luke mill. He is a member of the Society of American Foresters.

Mr. and Mrs. Haywood presently reside at 626 W. Piedmont Street, Keyser. They will be moving to the Parkersburg area in the near future.

Diary Of Confederate Clerk During Civil War Tells Of Strife And Food Shortages Around Richmond

By MERTON T. AKERS

"The gaunt form of wretched famine still approaches with rapid strides," John B. Jones, the diary-keeping clerk in the Confederate war department in Richmond, Va., wrote on March 30, 1863.

Jones was a white collar worker and was having trouble making ends meet on his salary which was shrinking because of inflation "I am spading up my little garden, and hope to raise a few vegetables to eke out a miserable existence for my family," he wrote the same day, adding "it is strange that on the 30th of March, even in the 'sunny south,' fruit trees are as bare of blossoms and foliage as at midwinter."

The next day, still morose, he noted some prices of necessities, heading the list as "another stride of the grim specter": Corn meal, $17 per bushel; coal, $20.50 a ton; wood, $30 a cord; common tallow candles, $4 a pound.

Affluent Richmond people were having no food troubles. Mary Boykin Chestnut noted in her diary that she received wine, rice, potatoes, ham, eggs, cutter and pickles about once a month from the Chestnut plantation in South Carolina.

Nor was there any dearth of luxury goods in Richmond shops. Stores displayed expensive silks and jewelry, English mutton — iced and run through the blockade—tropical fruits and champagnes.

Few had enough money to buy the luxuries but enough did to make business brisk. Some remarked it seemed strange that luxuries came up from blockade runner ports but staples like bacon, meal and flour, known to be plentiful in North Carolina, did not, the reason being given as the feeble state of the southern railroads.

The rich could buy a good meal for $25 in Confederate money at a first class Richmond hotel but the poor people and low-paid workers found it difficult to get enough bread to live.

A few weeks earlier President Jefferson Davis had proclaimed a day of fasting and prayer. Church services were well attended that day but the sardonic jibed: "Fasting in the midst of famine!"

The stage was set for trouble and it came on April 2, a Thursday.

A crowd of several hundred women and boys gathered early that day in Capitol Square. They were quiet and orderly but determined.

An emaciated girl of about 18 told a bystander, who asked why the crowd was forming, that they were starving and that they were going to raid the bakeries and each seize a loaf of bread.

By 9 a.m., the crowd numbered about 1,000, nearly all women but with a sprinkling of men, boys and free Negroes.

Led by a six-foot woman who wore a white feather in her hat, the crowd marched out of Capitol Square by the west gate, down Ninth Street past the war department and flowed into Main and Cary Streets. Accounts differ about the stalwart leader's name. The Richmond Examiner later said her name was Minerva Meredith and described her as a local character. Other accounts call her Mrs. Mary Jackson, a painter's wife. Whatever her name, she was reported to be armed with a pistol and a bowie knife.

Along Main and Cary Streets the mob smashed show windows and pillaged shops. They impressed drays and carts along the way to haul their loot.

Some seized food but most of the rioters eagerly pillaged shoes, clothing and jewelry. Shoes and clothing were scarce articles in Richmond and jewelry always could be traded off for necessities.

A part of the crowd was diverted to the YMCA where they received food but most of them rejected the offer and remained with the mob.

Gov. John Letcher and Mayor Joseph Mayo met the crowd on Main Street. Neither had any influence with the rioters although the mayor read the riot act to them.

Then a company of state troops was called from the armory and was posted in front of the mob.

President Davis hastened to the scene. He mounted a dray and attempted to speak to the rioters. They threw crusts of bread at him, the leavings from the loaves they had stolen from the bakeries. But in a few minutes they quieted and listened.

The troops were workers at the armory. Some of the women in the mob were wives of the soldiers who stood with loaded muskets awaiting an order to fire on their own people.

The situation was tense, with the soldiers and the president fair targets for any rioter.

But within the five-minute limit Davis had set, the crowd thought better of its spree, and dispersed without the troops having to fire.

Jones said the president "seemed deeply moved; and indeed, it was a frightful spectacle and perhaps an omnious one, if the government does not remove some of the quartermasters who have contributed very much to bring about the evil of scarcity . . .

"All is quiet now (three p.m.) and I understand the government is issuing rice to the people."

He reported that those who received government rice threw it into the streets in disgust.

The riots shook the government.

Secretary of War James A. Seddon "requested" the Richmond newspapers to avoid all reference "directly or indirectly" to the riots for "obvious reasons."

But by Saturday, April 4, the news broke in the Examiner, which opposed Davis, when some of the rioters appeared in police court.

The Examiner laid the riots to "foreigners and Yankees" and criticized the government for not shooting down the mobsters on the spot.

"If the officers of the law, with the ample force and power in their hands, had not enough decision and energy to do more than arrest highway robbers and disperse a mob of idlers at their heels, whose presence there deserved immediate death quite as well, no words or arguments can furnish them with the pluck they need," the Examiner said in an editorial.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD — Burt Lancaster is on his way to Rome, and after the special premiere there of his movie "The Leopard," he will meet with Michael Cacoyannis, producer-director of "Electranz" which is up for best foreign film this year.

Burt's conversation with Cacoyannis will be about "Captain Mihalis," which is one of the five picture deal Cacoyannis has with United Artists. The movie will go before the cameras late this year, and will be filmed on the Island of Crete and in Italy, with Burt as the star. However, he will be back for our academy awards.

Of all the bad luck — Leslie Parrish, feminine lead in Columbia's "The Long Ships" shooting on the Yugoslavian border, has developed such an allergy from local pollen that she has been taken out of the picture!

When her condition became so bad she could hardly breathe and her eyes so swollen she could barely see, doctors diagnosed her ailment as caused by pollen from weeds in the fields they were working in.

Cary Grant filmed "Charades" with Audrey Hepburn in Paris during the most miserable winter the French capital has ever known; went to England to visit his family in time for the "worst" March in years; then flew home to Hollywood, arriving in the middle of a pelting hail storm!

"And I could hardly WAIT to get back to sunny California," laughs Cary.

Hail or no mail, Cary's glad to get home, "although I have never worked with a more entrancing person than Audrey. Because of the weather and other things we had many delays and frustrations on the picture — but this wonderful girl was always cheerful and helpful. All I want for Christmas is another movie with Audrey Hepburn."

Over the weekend, Producer-Director Robert Rossen called Warren Beatty to ask him to fly to London for talks about "Lilith," in which Warren will have the starring role. The picture gets under way in six weeks, and Rossen felt that Warren could help him select the actress who will get the plum role of the beautiful girl who lives in a mental world all her own.

"My TV series "The Patty Duke Show' has been sold," Patty told me excitedly over the long-distance telephone from Detroit. "I don't know if it will be filmed in New York or Hollywood, but isn't it wonderful?"

"What are you doing in Detroit?" I asked.

"I have been visiting clinics, and I'm here for a muscular distrophy benefit. Tomorrow we are having a sock hop."

"What on earth is that?" I asked.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD — Burt Lancaster is on his way to Rome, and after the special premiere there of his movie "The Leopard," he will meet with Michael Cacoyannis, producer-director of "Electranz" which is up for best foreign film this year.

Burt's conversation with Cacoyannis will be about "Captain Mihalis," which is one of the five picture deal Cacoyannis has with United Artists. The movie will go before the cameras late this year, and will be filmed on the Island of Crete and in Italy, with Burt as the star. However, he will be back for our academy awards.

Of all the bad luck — Leslie Parrish, feminine lead in Columbia's "The Long Ships" shooting on the Yugoslavian border, has developed such an allergy from local pollen that she has been taken out of the picture!

When her condition became so bad she could hardly breathe and her eyes so swollen she could barely see, doctors diagnosed her ailment as caused by pollen from weeds in the fields they were working in.

Cary Grant filmed "Charades" with Audrey Hepburn in Paris during the most miserable winter the French capital has ever known; went to England to visit his family in time for the "worst" March in years; then flew home to Hollywood, arriving in the middle of a pelting hail storm!

"And I could hardly WAIT to get back to sunny California," laughs Cary.

Hail or no mail, Cary's glad to get home, "although I have never worked with a more entrancing person than Audrey. Because of the weather and other things we had many delays and frustrations on the picture — but this wonderful girl was always cheerful and helpful. All I want for Christmas is another movie with Audrey Hepburn."

Over the weekend, Producer-Director Robert Rossen called Warren Beatty to ask him to fly to London for talks about "Lilith," in which Warren will have the starring role. The picture gets under way in six weeks, and Rossen felt that Warren could help him select the actress who will get the plum role of the beautiful girl who lives in a mental world all her own.

"My TV series "The Patty Duke Show' has been sold," Patty told me excitedly over the long-distance telephone from Detroit. "I don't know if it will be filmed in New York or Hollywood, but isn't it wonderful?"

"What are you doing in Detroit?" I asked.

"I have been visiting clinics, and I'm here for a muscular dystrophy benefit. Tomorrow we are having a sock hop."

"What on earth is that?" I asked.

Maryland Legislature Enacts Bill To Expand Horse Racing In State

Measure Sent To Tawes For Final Approval

Senate Approves House Amendments By Vote Of 24-2

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—The Maryland Legislature enacted and sent to Gov. Tawes Wednesday a bill to expand horse racing by 12 days each at Bowie, Pimlico, Laurel and Timonium, and close three other tracks.

The senate voted 24-2 to accept house amendments giving six more days each to half-mile tracks at Hagerstown and Marlboro, which were not involved in the consolidation move by the others. Eight extra days each also were given to the three remaining harness tracks.

The bill provides a total of 312 days of horse racing in the state.

Its major purpose was to extend Bowie, Pimlico and Laurel programs to 52 days each in order to enable them to better compete with other eastern tracks for horses.

The remaining harness tracks—Ocean Downs, Laurel and Rosecroft—will have 32 days each.

Two Senators Pass

After accepting house amendments, the senate then enacted the bill 22-4, with two senators passing. Sen. Frederick C. Malkus Jr., D-Dorchester, said it was "legalizing stealing" to let operators of the big tracks buy the days from each other when they really belonged to the state.

"They're selling something which we have given them," Malkus fumed.

He referred to the $3 million dollar deal by which Pimlico, Laurel and Bowie bought the 36 days now assigned to Bel Air half mile track and Baltimore Raceway harness track, and Timonium purchased the 12 days now assigned to Cumberland. The three tracks selling the days will close.

Sen. George Snyder, D-Washington, also referred to the bill as "legislative iarceny." Snyder approved the amendment which gave Hagerstown and Marlboro 6 more days each, at no cost to the tracks, but then voted against the bill because of its consolidation feature for the others.

Congratulates House

He congratulated the House of Delegates on having stood up for the two half mile tracks not involved in the deal.

The vote on the bill came after Malkus got but little support on a motion to postpone it until Thursday when it could be considered side-by-side with the slot machine issue, which also involves legalized gambling.

"I don't think the senate's blood pressure could take these two bills on the same day," Sen. Harry T. Phoebus, R-Somerset, said in opposing the move to defer the race track bill.

Malkus complained that the legislature was attempting to abolish slot machines in four Southern Maryland counties, while adding to another form of gambling in expanding horse racing.

"I've been trying to help reduce gambling in Maryland, but I doubt I'll ever get anywhere," he said. "The answer is in the list of stockholders for the race tracks."

Prominent state political figures are among stockholders or associated with the tracks. U.S. Sen. J. Glenn Beall, R-Md., owns controlling interest in Cumberland, which sold its days to Timonium for $600,000.

U.S. Sen. Daniel B. Brewster, D-Md., is a former president of the State Fair Board which runs Timonium.

Walsh Is Counsel

Former Atty. Gen. William Walsh of Cumberland is general counsel for Bowie Race Track and has been active on behalf of the race track legislation.

Jerold Hoffberger, Baltimore brewer and campaign fund raiser and contributor to Gov. Tawes campaigns, is principal stockholder of Baltimore Raceway, which also owns controlling interest in Bel Air.

George H. Hocker, representative of breweries and close friend and adviser to Gov. Tawes, is a stockholder in Baltimore Raceway.

Baltimore Raceway and Bel Air are receiving $2,350,000 for the transfer of their 36 days to the mile tracks, according to testimony before the legislature.

The deal is to cover a 10-year period.

Eagles Win Shuffle Series From Corner

The Fraternal Order of Eagles won its County Men's Shuffleboard League playoff series from Corner Tavern by the margin of 23 points.

The Eagle shufflers, who took a ten-point lead Monday when the series opened, wound up last night with a total of 139 points to the Corner Tavern's 116.

Camper Ace Scored 530; Paw Paw Star's 25.2 Tops 2nd Year

Steve Vandenberg, Allegany High School's sophomore sharpshooter, scored more points than any high school player in the tri-state area for the regular 1962-63 basketball season and Roland Hamilton, of Paw Paw's Pirates, who played one game less than Vandenberg, posted the highest average of 25.5 points per game.

Steve Vandenberg

Vandenberg collected 530 points in 21 games for Allegany while Hamilton, appearing in 20 contests, was the runner-up with 510 markers. LaSalle's Joe Nolan finished in third place with 493 points and Bobby Robertson of Mt. Savage was fourth with 483.

Trailing Hamilton in the high average department was Vandenberg with 25.2. Third place went to Nolan who posted a 23.5 and was followed by Robertson with 23.0.

Hamilton Repeats

A year ago Hamilton was the point leader with 569 in 20 games and his average of 28.5 also paced the field.

The all-time area scoring records are held by Bill Maphis, former Romney High ace, and now a member of the West Virginia U. varsity quint. Maphis slammed in 652 points in 21 games in 1959 for 31.0. His average of 31.5 in 1960 is tops. That season he rang up 629 points in 21 contests. Maphis is the only player who ever has exceeded 600 points in a regular 21-game season.

Roland Hamilton

Hamilton's 223 field goals was high for the current campaign. Vandenberg was runner-up with 198 and was followed by Nolan with 196 and Robertson with 185.

Vandenberg had more free throws than any other player—a total of 197 — and converted the most charity tosses (134) for an average of 68.0.

Wilson Sets New Mark

Ralph Wilson, Mt. Savage, bettered the previous area foul shooting record by posting an average of 85.2. In sinking 98 out of 115 shots, Wilson topped the 84.1 mark established last season by Dave Vance of Moorefield, who meshed 95 out of 113 free throws. Jim Getty, of Valley, had an 80.3 average (98-122) in 1960 and Scott Ward of Keyser turned in an 81.7 average (107-131) in 1956.

Ralph Wilson

Trailing Wilson in the foul shooting department this season was Dwayne Schinzing of Petersburg High's Vikings with 76.6 on 105 out of 137. Terry Turbin, Keyser, was third (109-143) with 76.2.

Bobby Robertson of Mt. Savage and Bill Kopfle of Bayard scored the most points in a single game—41 each. Vandenberg and Turbin were next with 38 each. The all-time high for a single game was 62 points and was credited to Carl Hartman, of Ridgeley High School, in 1951.

Hoop 12 For 12 Fouls

Robertson and his teammate Wilson turned in the best single game foul shooting performances, each posting 12 for 12. Turbin had a 10-for-10 game.

Robertson's 19 field goals was high for a single contest.

Devon Cagers Rout Trojans In Y Tourney

Snyder's Chips, Misfits Triumph

Defending champion Devon Club crushed the Petersburg Trojans 99-24 last night in a Gold Medal tournament senior unlimited division game at Central YMCA.

Snyder's Potato Chips downed the Moorefield All-Stars, 54-44, in a senior battle, and Kean's Misfits chalked up a triumph over the Pepsi Kids in the 135-pound class.

Four tournament games are scheduled this evening at the Y. The 6 p.m. opener pits the Sharks against Lovers Leap in the 135-pound division, and Boal's Jolly Green Giants will meet Kean's Misfits in a junior unlimited tussle at 7.

At 8 o'clock, Ritter's Tavern faces Snyder's Esso in the senior unlimited class, and a senior game at 9 between the Papermakers and the Sportsman's Club winds up the court activity for the day.

The Devon Club cagers, seeking to repeat as tourney champs, rang up 42 field goals in yesterday's lopsided win. Six Devon dunkers scored in double figures, with Joe Taylor's 24 points leading the pack. Wayne Barr scored ten for the Trojans.

Ellsworth Lambert and Mugford tossed in 14 points apiece to pace Snyder's, as the Potato Chippers led all the way to move into next week's quarter-final round. Bill Bauserman scored 14 for the Moorefield crew.

Kean's Misfits, after trailing for three periods, put on a fourth quarter rally which saw them outscore the Pepsi Kids 19-3. Bob Rinker led the misfits with 14 points, and Spangler scored 11 for the losers.

Musial Gets 'Judgeship'

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (UPI) —Stan Musial, who has trained in St. Petersburg since 1942, was presented a plaque before Wednesday's Cards-Mets game as the first "judge" to be selected for a new supreme court of sports.

Butts Phoned Gamblers Prior To Alabama Game

Numerous Calls Involving Both Coaches Probed

By AL KUETTNER
United Press International

ATLANTA (UPI) — Attorney General Eugene Cook, investigating an alleged Southeastern Conference football scandal, said Wednesday that Wallace Butts telephoned known gamblers shortly before the 1962 football game between Georgia and Alabama.

Cook emphasized there was no evidence that Butts profited from any gambling on the game.

The Georgia attorney general is conducting a sweeping investigation into a story published in the Saturday Evening Post that Butts telephoned secret information about the Georgia team to Alabama coach Paul (Bear) Bryant shortly before the Alabama-Georgia season opened in Birmingham, Alabama, favored by 17 points, won 35-0.

Deny Fix Attempt

Both Butts and Bryant have denied attempting to fix the game.

William Schroder of Atlanta, Butts' attorney, said that he "can not understand how one holding the high position of attorney general of the state of Georgia could in one breath insinuate that he had uncovered evidence which implies that Wallace Butts had gambled and then, in the very next breath, say there is no evidence to support such an insinuation."

Schroder said that Donald F. O'Donnell, chief counsel for the U. S. Senate investigations subcommittee, "has repeatedly stated that he has uncovered no evidence that either coach Butts or coach Bryant had been or were engaged in any gambling activities."

Schroder also said that he has advised the former Georgia athletic director not to submit to a second lie detector test. He wrote Cook that "my advice to my client must be to let us try his case in the court house where it belongs and that he should not go on submitting to lie detector tests at random in spite of his willingness to do so."

Alabama President Frank Rose disclosed in a letter to University of Georgia President O. C. Aderhold that the two football masters made the alleged phone call and discussed plays. He said the call was to clarify some rule changes and that a Southern Conference official was brought in on a conference about the alterations after the call was made.

Cook was making his study with federal officials present, including the chief counsel of the U.S. Senate rackets subcommittee who was trying to determine if U.S. anti-gambling laws were being violated in the case.

The attorney general made the disclosure about the alleged calls by Butts to what Cook referred to as known gamblers after telling reporters there were "many, many" calls to and from Butts and Bryant that were under study. His investigators were going over records obtained under subpoena from the telephone company.

Many Calls Made

Cook said a large number of calls were made including some within 30 minutes of game time of the Alabama-Georgia game last Sept. 22.

Cook told reporters the telephone calls under study were placed to points both in Georgia and to other sections of the country.

Maryland Legislature Enacts Bill To Expand Horse Racing In State

Measure Sent To Tawes For Final Approval

Senate Approves House Amendments By Vote Of 24-2

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—The Maryland Legislature enacted and sent to Gov. Tawes Wednesday a bill to expand horse racing by 12 days each at Bowie, Pimlico, Laurel and Timonium, and close three other tracks.

The senate voted 24-2 to accept house amendments giving six more days each to half-mile tracks at Hagerstown and Marlboro, which were not involved in the consolidation move by the others. Eight extra days each also were given to the three remaining harness tracks.

The bill provides a total of 312 days of horse racing in the state.

Its major purpose was to extend Bowie, Pimlico and Laurel programs to 52 days each in order to enable them to better compete with other eastern tracks for horses.

The remaining harness tracks—Ocean Downs, Laurel and Rosecroft—will have 32 days each.

Two Senators Pass

After accepting house amendments, the senate then enacted the bill 22-4, with two senators passing. Sen. Frederick C. Malkus Jr., D-Dorchester, said it was "legalizing stealing" to let operators of the big tracks buy the days from each other when they really belonged to the state.

"They're selling something which we have given them," Malkus fumed.

He referred to the $3 million dollar deal by which Pimlico, Laurel and Bowie bought the 36 days now assigned to Bel Air half mile track and Baltimore Raceway harness track, and Timonium purchased the 12 days now assigned to Cumberland. The three tracks selling the days will close.

Sen. George Snyder, D-Washington, also referred to the bill as "legislative larceny." Snyder approved the amendment which gave Hagerstown and Marlboro 6 more days each, at no cost to the tracks, but then voted against the bill because of its consolidation feature for the others.

Congratulates House

He congratulated the House of Delegates on having stood up for the two half mile tracks not involved in the deal.

The vote on the bill came after Malkus got but little support on a motion to postpone it until Thursday when it could be considered side-by-side with the slot machine issue, which also involves legalized gambling.

"I don't think the senate's blood pressure could take these two bills on the same day," Sen. Harry T. Phoebus, R-Somerset, said in opposing the move to defer the race track bill.

Malkus complained that the legislature was attempting to abolish slot machines in four Southern Maryland counties, while adding to another form of gambling in expanding horse racing.

"I've been trying to help reduce gambling in Maryland, but I doubt I'll ever get anywhere," he said. "The answer is in the list of stockholders for the race tracks."

Prominent state political figures are among stockholders or associated with the tracks. U.S. Sen. J. Glenn Beall, R-Md., owns controlling interest in Cumberland, which sold its days to Timonium for $600,000.

U.S. Sen. Daniel B. Brewster, D-Md., is a former president of the State Fair Board which runs Timonium.

Walsh Is Counsel

Former Atty. Gen. William Walsh of Cumberland is general counsel for Bowie Race Track and has been active on behalf of the race track legislation.

Jerold Hoffberger, Baltimore brewer and campaign fund raiser and contributor to Gov. Tawes campaigns, is principal stockholder of Baltimore Raceway, which also owns controlling interest in Bel Air.

George H. Hocker, representative of breweries and close friend and adviser to Gov. Tawes, is a stockholder in Baltimore Raceway.

Baltimore Raceway and Bel Air are receiving $2,350,000 for the transfer of their 36 days to the mile tracks, according to testimony before the legislature.

The deal is to cover a 10-year period.

Eagles Win Shuffle Series From Corner

The Fraternal Order of Eagles won its County Men's Shuffleboard League playoff series from Corner Tavern by the margin of 23 points.

The Eagle shufflers, who took a ten-point lead Monday when the series opened, wound up last night with a total of 139 points to the Corner Tavern's 116.

Camper Ace Scored 530; Paw Paw Star's 25.2 Tops 2nd Year

Steve Vandenberg, Allegany High School's sophomore sharpshooter, scored more points than any high school player in the tri-state area for the regular 1962-63 basketball season and Roland Hamilton, of Paw Paw's Pirates, who played one game less than Vandenberg, posted the highest average of 25.5 points per game.

Steve Vandenberg

Vandenberg collected 530 points in 21 games for Allegany while Hamilton, appearing in 20 contests, was the runner-up with 510 markers. LaSalle's Joe Nolan finished in third place with 493 points and Bobby Robertson of Mt. Savage was fourth with 483.

Trailing Hamilton in the high average department was Vandenberg with 25.2. Third place went to Nolan who posted a 23.5 and was followed by Robertson with 23.0.

Hamilton Repeats

A year ago Hamilton was the point leader with 569 in 20 games and his average of 28.5 also paced the field.

The all-time area scoring records are held by Bill Maphis, former Romney High ace, and now a member of the West Virginia U. varsity quint. Maphis slammed in 652 points in 21 games in 1959 for 31.0. His average of 31.5 in 1960 is tops. That season he rang up 629 points in 21 contests. Maphis is the only player who ever has exceeded 600 points in a regular 21-game season.

Roland Hamilton

Hamilton's 223 field goals was high for the current campaign. Vandenberg was runner-up with 198 and was followed by Nolan with 196 and Robertson with 185.

Vandenberg had more free throws than any other player—a total of 197 — and converted the most charity tosses (134) for an average of 68.0.

Wilson Sets New Mark

Ralph Wilson, Mt. Savage, bettered the previous area foul shooting record by posting an average of 85.2. In sinking 98 out of 115 shots, Wilson topped the 84.1 mark established last season by Dave Vance of Moorefield, who meshed 95 out of 113 free throws. Jim Getty, of Valley, had an 80.3 average (98-122) in 1960 and Scott Ward of Keyser turned in an 81.7 average (107-131) in 1956.

Ralph Wilson

Trailing Wilson in the foul shooting department this season was Dwayne Schinzing of Petersburg High's Vikings with 76.6 on 105 out of 137. Terry Turbin, Keyser, was third (109-143) with 76.2.

Bobby Robertson of Mt. Savage and Bill Kopfle of Bayard scored the most points in a single game —41 each. Vandenberg and Turbin were next with 38 each. The all-time high for a single game was 62 points and was credited to Carl Hartman, of Ridgeley High School, in 1951.

Hoop 12 For 12 Fouls

Robertson and his teammate Wilson turned in the best single game foul shooting performances, each posting 12 for 12. Turbin had a 10-for-10 game.

Robertson's 19 field goals was high for a single contest.

Devon Cagers Rout Trojans In Y Tourney

Snyder's Chips, Misfits Triumph

Snyder's Potato Chips downed the Moorefield All-Stars, 54-44, in a senior battle, and Kean's Misfits chalked up a triumph over the Pepsi Kids in the 135-pound class.

Four tournament games are scheduled this evening at the Y. The 6 p.m. opener pits the Sharks against Lovers Leap in the 135-pound division, and Boal's Jolly Green Giants will meet Kean's Misfits in a junior unlimited tussle at 7.

The Devon Club cagers, seeking to repeat as tourney champs, rang up 42 field goals in yesterday's lopsided win. Six Devon dunkers scored in double figures, with Joe Taylor's 24 points leading the pack. Wayne Barr scored ten for the Trojans.

Ellsworth Lambert and Mugford tossed in 14 points apiece to pace Snyder's, as the Potato Chippers led all the way to move into next week's quarter-final round. Bill Bauserman scored 14 for the Moorefield crew.

Kean's Misfits, after trailing for three periods, put on a fourth quarter rally which saw them outscore the Pepsi Kids 19-3. Bob Rinker led the misfits with 14 points, and Spangler scored 11 for the losers.

Butts Phoned Gamblers Prior To Alabama Game

Numerous Calls Involving Both Coaches Probed

By AL KUETTNER
United Press International

ATLANTA (UPI) — Attorney General Eugene Cook, investigating an alleged Southeastern Conference football scandal, said Wednesday that Wallace Butts telephoned known gamblers shortly before the 1962 football game between Georgia and Alabama.

Cook emphasized there was no evidence that Butts profited from any gambling on the game.

The Georgia attorney general is conducting a sweeping investigation into a story published in the Saturday Evening Post that Butts telephoned secret information about the Georgia team to Alabama coach Paul (Bear) Bryant shortly before the Alabama-Georgia season opened in Birmingham, Alabama, favored by 17 points, won 35-0.

Deny Fix Attempt

William Schroder of Atlanta, Butts' attorney, said that he "can not understand how one holding the high position of attorney general of the state of Georgia could in one breath insinuate that he had uncovered evidence which implies that Wallace Butts had gambled and then, in the very next breath, say there is no evidence to support such an insinuation."

Schroder said that Donald F. O'Donnell, chief counsel for the U. S. Senate investigations subcommittee, "has repeatedly stated that he has uncovered no evidence that either coach Butts or coach Bryant had been or were engaged in any gambling activities."

Schroder also said that he has advised the former Georgia athletic director not to submit to a second lie detector test. He wrote Cook that "my advice to my client must be to let us try his case in the court house where it belongs and that he should not go on submitting to lie detector tests at random in spite of his willingness to do so."

Alabama President Frank Rose disclosed in a letter to University of Georgia President O. C. Aderhold that the two football masters made the alleged phone call and discussed plays. He said the call was to clarify some rule changes and that a Southern Conference official was brought in on a conference about the alterations after the call was made.

Cook was making his study with federal officials present, including the chief counsel of the U.S. Senate rackets subcommittee who was trying to determine if U.S. anti-gambling laws were being violated in the case.

The attorney general made the disclosure about the alleged calls by Butts to what Cook referred to as known gamblers after telling reporters there were "many, many" calls to and from Butts and Bryant that were under study. His investigators were going over records obtained under subpoena from the telephone company.

Many Calls Made

Cook said a large number of calls were made including some within 30 minutes of game time of the Alabama-Georgia game last Sept. 22.

Cook told reporters the telephone calls under study were placed to points both in Georgia and to other sections of the country.

He emphasized that Bryant "definitely" was not invol

A BASKETBALL BARGAIN EVENT is now in full swing in Cumberland, but unfortunately not very many cage enthusiasts have been taking advantage of it.

The annual YMCA Gold Medal Basketball Tournament opened Monday for its 18th year. Thirty-two teams were entered, with the senior unlimited division drawing a particularly strong field.

There are, perhaps, reasons for the lack of spectator interest in this tournament. No doubt the primary factor is that the average fan has seen all of the basketball he cares to for one season.

With the exception of the National Basketball Association playoffs, and some tournaments here and there, the 1962-63 basketball season has come to an end.

YOU'D HAVE A HARD TIME, though, convincing participants in the Gold Medal tourney that it's all over for another year. The caliber of play has been excellent, and the players are going at it in spite of the empty house.

Certainly it's not the admission price that is discouraging attendance. Adult tickets for one night cost just forty cents, and the student fare is only a quarter.

Three or four games are played every night of the tournament, which means that you can see good basketball for a mere dime per contest.

While a state ruling several years ago clamped down on high school players where post-season tournaments are concerned, and thereby weakened the junior unlimited division, the "cream of the crop" of area college and amateur players is still available for the senior unlimited class.

For example, the entire starting five from Frostburg State's highly successful 1963 team is playing under the banner of Clise's Service Station. They scored an easy win on Tuesday, and will play again in the quarter-finals on Monday.

ANYONE WHO MISSED SEEING this classy quint during the campaign should make it a point to take in Monday's game.

Numerous topflight individual performers can be found on the rosters of teams entered in the senior unlimited division. Dave Marple, who was named the tournament's outstanding player three different years, and two-time winner Don Moran are both back for a shot at the trophy this year.

Gold Medal officials are hopeful that the crowds will increase as the field of teams decreases. Quarter-final and semi-final rounds begin on Monday, with the finals in all four divisions slated a week from tonight.

If you like basketball at its best, may we suggest that you sit in on the remainder of the Gold Medal tourney games at the Central YMCA gymnasium.

Pepitone Paces Yanks To Win Over Minnesota

Angels, Mets Lead Exhibition Races

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Pepitone, who has succeeded Moose Skowron at first base for the world champions, hit his first homer with two on in the second inning. In the sixth, with the Twins ahead 6-5, he connected for the clincher with Hector Lopez on base.

Eddie Sadowski's ninth inning homer gave the Los Angeles Angels a 4-3 triumph over Boston at Scottsdale and first place in the American League exhibition standings.

The New York Mets went to the top in the National League standings on Charley Neal's ninth inning double that beat St. Louis 6-4. Frank Thomas' two-run homer in the eighth had tied the score for the Mets at St. Petersburg.

Early Wynn and Ed Fisher combined for a two-hitter as the Chicago White Sox shut out Washington 3-0 at Sarasota. The veteran 42-year-old Wynn, who hopes to win his 300th game this season, yielded only a single in three innings. Fisher did likewise in the last six. A triple By Nellie Fox in the first inning off Dave Stenhouse drove in the only run the Sox needed.

Marcelino Lopez pitched two-hit ball for six innings and contributed a two-run homer for Philadelphia in a 9-2 trouncing of Kansas at Bradenton.

In other games, Cincinnati blanked the Los Angeles Dodgers 6-0 at Vero Beach, Milwaukee whipped Detroit 6-1 at West Palm Beach, the Chicago Cubs outslugged Cleveland 12-11 at Tucson and Tacoma of the Pacific Coast League came up with seven runs in the ninth to beat San Francisco 10-9 at Casa Grande.

Jim O'Toole of the Reds extended to 14 his string of scoreless innings with a four-hitter against the Dodgers for the six innings he pitched. Rookie John Flavin hurled hitless ball in the last three to complete the shut out.

Lew Burdette held the Tigers to four hits and one run in the six innings he pitched for the Braves. The veteran right-hander now has worked 23 innings with an earned run average of 0.39.

Tigers' Rookie Patterns Style After The Famous Bob Feller

By WALTER JOHNS
Central Press Sports Editor

LAKELAND, Fla. — Bill Faul's baptism of major league fire last autumn was something to forget, for the young right hander gave up four hits, three bases on balls and six earned runs in two innings for a 27.00 earned-run average!

However, the 22-year-old former University of Cincinnati star, signed by the Detroit Tigers after spirited bidding from all but a couple of major league teams, still looks like a good bet for future stardom.

And Bill's only pro experience outside of that one major league appearance was good enough for a good look here this spring. After signing, following graduation last summer, for a $50,000 bonus, Bill went to Knoxville and in 13 games won six and lost two, pretty good for a youngster just starting out.

One of Bill's supporters is Tom Ferrick, the Tiger pitching coach. Tom says that "Bill has an excellent chance to be a major league pitcher. He has a good fast ball and is working on the curve ball now."

Bill began his baseball career in the Knothole League and even as a kid patterned his patching after Bob Feller having avidly read a pitching book by the one-time Indian great.

At Cincinnati, where Bill set a record of 24 strikeouts in one game against the Air Force, the young right-hander helped pitch his team to the Missouri Valley championship twice. And, in doing so, he made the All-American team.

Rec Leagues End Regular Season

Regular season play will end tonight in both the high school and men's divisions of the City Recreation Basketball League.

Three games, all at Fort Hill, will wind up the campaign. Roseland meets Fort Hill Hi-Y at 7 p. m., and Allegany Hi-Y takes on Kean's Misfits at 9 in a pair of high school contests.

The Basketeers and Marine Reserve will clash at 8 in a special playoff for the fourth place spot in the men's league. The game between Peskin's and Shelley's Big Five has been cancelled by mutual agreement.

Azalea Open Attracts Golf's Lesser Lights

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — Professional golf's have-nots get another chance to ring the cash register in the $20,000 Azalea Open Tournament starting Thursday.

While many of the game's more successful coin collectors, among them Arnold Palmer, Gary Player and Jack Nicklaus, elect to sit out this one to prepare for next week's Masters at Augusta, Ga., the lesser lights stage a scramble for prize money here.

As an incentive and reward for those favoring their competition, tournament sponsors have posted $5,000 in addition to the basic $20,000. A pro-amateur Wednesday was worth $2,500 and a similar amount will be split, in sums ranging from $200 to $800, in the next four days for the leaders each of the first three rounds and the low score each of the last three days.

The professional tour has included 11 major weekly tournaments to date this year. Peerless Palmer has won three, but the remaining eight have been spread among as many players.

Only two men who have won on the tour this year are in the field of about 150 pros and 10 amateurs playing here over the sandy layout of the Cape Fear Country Club, a 6,651 yarder with par of 72.

The winners of the last two tour events are here. Raymond Floyd of Fayetteville, N.C., 20-year-old in his fifth month as a pro, won the St. Petersburg, Fla., open two weeks ago and is here to show fellow Tar Heels his game.

Also on hand is Dan Sikes, 32, of Jacksonville, Fla., who scored his first major victory last Sunday when he grabbed $9,000 top money in the Doral open at Miami, Fla.

Celtics, Idled Ten Days, Host Royals Tonight

BOSTON (UPI) — The aging Celtics, making one last bid for all the professional basketball marbles, host the Cincinnati Royals Thursday night in the start of another Boston playoff campaign.

The defending champions, idled for 10 days during the preliminary playoffs, fought overconfidence going into the National Basketball Association's Eastern playoff finals.

Boston whipped the Royals nine times in a dozen regular season meetings but had experienced much more difficulty with the Nationals and had been mapping defenses for the Syracuse club during recent workouts.

Ramsey suffered a hamstring muscle injury in the next-to-last game of the regular season and has been undergoing two - a - day treatments ever since. However, he performed at near - maximum speed in a long Tuesday drill and showed no ill-effects in Wednesday's session.

Jet Traffic Scores Upset By Winning Bay Shore Stakes

NEW YORK (AP) — Jet Traffic, a Canadian-bred colt owned by Russell A. Firestone Jr., of Chicago, jolted the New York 3-year-old ranks Wednesday when he led throughout to upset favored Bonjour and capture the $28,050 Bay Shore Stakes at Aqueduct.

Jockey Bobby Ussery sent Jet Traffic flying away from the gate and the Kentucky Derby candidate reported home in a blazing 1 minute, 34 1-5 seconds for the mile on a fast track under 120 pounds. Three-year-olds don't run any faster at this time of the season.

It was only three-fifths of a second off the Aqueduct record held by three older stars—Bald Eagle, Beau Purple and Carry Back.

Patrice Jacobs' Bonjour, the 4-5 favorite of a stunned crowd of 26,107, didn't even take second place as George D. Widener's Top Gallant came from last place in the field of six to be the runner-up.

Jet Traffic won by three lengths, with Top Gallant second by the same margin over Bonjour. It was another 10 lengths back to Pumpkin Hill, the fourth to finish. Senator B., who whipped Jet Traffic in the Francis Scott Key and George Washington Stakes at Bowie in February, finished fifth and Irish-bred El Seraglio brought up the rear.

White Sox Hire Boggess As Scout

Fisher Says 'Lack Of Work' Reason For Poor 1962 Showing

Jack Blames Self, Holds No Grudge Against Hitchcock

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—Lack of work, says Jack Fisher, was the reason for his poor 1962 season at Baltimore. But the big pitcher who was traded to San Francisco last winter holds no grudge against Oriole manager Billy Hitchcock.

"Hitchcock did a good job despite the team's seventh place finish," Fisher said. "It was not his fault that the whole team went bad. Never saw it happen to a whole club before. The only guys who had good seasons were Brooks Robinson and Jerry Adair.

"It was an awful thing. Nothing went right. Every move we made backfired in our face. All the pitchers had a terrible time."

What happened to the Orioles' great young pitching staff? Experts predicted that Baltimore's big four of Milt Pappas, Steve Barber, Chuck Estrada and Fisher would be big winners for many seasons. Not one of the big four won more than a dozen games last year. Fisher's record was only 7-9 with a horrible 5.09 earned run average.

"Nobody is to blame for my bad year but me," said the 24-year-old Frostburg right-hander. "But the truth is I didn't get enough work. For that matter, neither did any of the other guys. If we got hit hard at one particular outing. The chances were we missed our next turn. The trouble with me is I got hit pretty hard pretty often."

What happened to such established stars as Jim Gentile and Jackie Brandt? Gentile, who slammed 46 home runs and drove in 141 runs in 1962, dropped 50 points in batting, hit 13 fewer homers and drove in 54 less runs in '62. Brandt's extra base hit output didn't fall off but his average dropped from .297 to .255.

"Gentile is a great ball player with tremendous desire, but he gets mad at himself when he does not do the job," said Fisher.

"He has an inferiority complex. After a bad day, he'd talk to himself, calling himself names berating himself. 'You're no good,' he'd say. 'You can't hit, you'll never be a ball player.' He started the season great. hit 25 homers by mid-season. Then he went into a slump and he worried the rest of the way.

"Brandt? I don't think I've ever met a flakier guy but he's wonderful just the same. You never know what he'll do next. He's a real good ball player. People just expect too much from him. They expect him to be great. He's not great, just a darn good ball player."

The criticism of Hitchcock was that he was too easy going. Was that true?

"I don't think so," Fisher answered. "Billy handed out more fines than Richards did and Paul was considered a tough manager. The big difference between the two, the way I see it, is that Richards remained aloof from the players. He never said much except when you did something wrong. Hitchcock tried to be more friendly.

"Billy's biggest mistake, I think, was that he started out by treating everybody alike. You just can't do that. Everybody has a different personality."

Sport Talk with Troxell by Ted

A BASKETBALL BARGAIN EVENT is now in full swing in Cumberland, but unfortunately not very many cage enthusiasts have been taking advantage of it.

The annual YMCA Gold Medal Basketball Tournament opened Monday for its 18th year. Thirty-two teams were entered, with the senior unlimited division drawing a particularly strong field.

However, players have practically outnumbered the fans in attendance at games played the first three nights.

There are, perhaps, reasons for the lack of spectator interest in this tournament. No doubt the primary factor is that the average fan has seen all of the basketball he cares to for one season.

With the exception of the National Basketball Association playoffs, and some tournaments here and there, the 1962-63 basketball season has come to an end.

YOU'D HAVE A HARD TIME, though, convincing participants in the Gold Medal tourney that it's all over for another year. The caliber of play has been excellent, and the players are going at it in spite of the empty house.

Certainly it's not the admission price that is discouraging attendance. Adult tickets for one night cost just forty cents, and the student fare is only a quarter.

Three or four games are played every night of the tournament, which means that you can see good basketball for a mere dime per contest.

While a state ruling several years ago clamped down on high school players where post-season tournaments are concerned, and thereby weakened the junior unlimited division, the "cream of the crop" of area college and amateur players is still available for the senior unlimited class.

For example, the entire starting five from Frostburg State's highly successful 1963 team is playing under the banner of Clise's Service Station. They scored an easy win on Tuesday, and will play again in the quarter-finals on Monday.

ANYONE WHO MISSED SEEING this classy quint during the campaign should make it a point to take in Monday's game.

Numerous topflight individual performers can be found on the rosters of teams entered in the senior unlimited division. Dave Marple, who was named the tournament's outstanding player three different years, and two-time winner Don Moran are both back for a shot at the trophy this year.

Gold Medal officials are hopeful that the crowds will increase as the field of teams decreases. Quarter-final and semi-final rounds begin on Monday, with the finals in all four divisions slated a week from tonight.

If you like basketball at its best, may we suggest that you sit in on the remainder of the Gold Medal tourney games at the Central YMCA gymnasium.

Fisher Says 'Lack Of Work' Reason For Poor 1962 Showing

Jack Blames Self, Holds No Grudge Against Hitchcock

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—Lack of work, says Jack Fisher, was the reason for his poor 1962 season at Baltimore. But the big pitcher who was traded to San Francisco last winter holds no grudge against Oriole manager Billy Hitchcock.

"Hitchcock did a good job despite the team's seventh place finish," Fisher said. "It was not his fault that the whole team went bad. Never saw it happen to a whole club before. The only guys who had good seasons were Brooks Robinson and Jerry Adair.

"It was an swful thing. Nothing went right. Every move we made backfired in our face. All the pitchers had a terrible time."

What happened to the Orioles' great young pitching staff? Experts predicted that Baltimore's big four of Milt Pappas, Steve Barber, Chuck Estrada and Fisher would be big winners for many seasons. Not one of the big four won more than a dozen games last year. Fisher's record was only 7-9 with a horrible 5.09 earned run average.

"Nobody is to blame for my bad year but me," said the 24-year-old Frostburg right-hander. "But the truth is I didn't get enough work. For that matter, neither did any of the other guys. If we got hit hard at one particular outing. The chances were we missed our next turn. The trouble with me is I got hit pretty hard pretty often."

What happened to such established stars as Jim Gentile and Jackie Brandt? Gentile, who slammed 46 home runs and drove in 141 runs in 1962, dropped 50 points in batting, hit 13 fewer homers and drove in 54 less runs in '62. Brandt's extra base hit output didn't fall off but his average dropped from .297 to .255.

"Gentile is a great ball player with tremendous desire, but he gets mad at himself when he does not do the job," said Fisher.

"He has an inferiority complex. After a bad day, he'd talk to himself, calling himself names berating himself. 'You're no good,' he'd say. 'You can't hit, you'll never be a ball player.' He started the season great. hit 25 homers by mid-season. Then he went into a slump and he worried the rest of the way.

"Brandt? I don't think I've ever met a flakier guy but he's wonderful just the same. You never know what he'll do next. He's a real good ball player. People just expect too much from him. They expect him to be great. He's not great, just a darn good ball player."

The criticism of Hitchcock was that he was too easy going. Was that true?

"I don't think so," Fisher answered. "Billy handed out more fines than Richards did and Paul was considered a tough manager. The big difference between the two, the way I see it, is that Richards remained aloof from the players. He never said much except when you did something wrong. Hitchcock tried to be more friendly.

"Billy's biggest mistake, I think, was that he started out by treating everybody alike. You just can't do that. Everybody has a different personality."

POMPANO BEACH, Fla. (UPI) —The Washington Senators Wednesday sold Joe McClain, 29-year-old right-handed pitcher, to the Richmond Virginians of the International League.

Pepitone Paces Yanks To Win Over Minnesota

Angels, Mets Lead Exhibition Races

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Joe Pepitone drove in five runs with two homers Wednesday, leading the New York Yankees to a 7-6 victory over Minnesota in exhibition baseball.

Pepitone, who has succeeded Moose Skowron at first base for the world champions, hit his first homer with two on in the second inning. In the sixth, with the Twins ahead 6-5, he connected for the clincher with Hector Lopez on base.

Eddie Sadowski's ninth inning homer gave the Los Angeles Angels a 4-3 triumph over Boston at Scottsdale and first place in the American League exhibition standings.

The New York Mets went to the top in the National League standings on Charley Neal's ninth inning double that beat St. Louis 6-4. Frank Thomas' two-run homer in the eighth had tied the score for the Mets at St. Petersburg.

Early Wynn and Ed Fisher combined for a two-hitter as the Chicago White Sox shut out Washington 3-0 at Sarasota. The veteran 42-year-old Wynn, who hopes to win his 300th game this season, yielded only a single in three innings. Fisher did likewise in the last six. A triple By Nellie Fox in the first inning off Dave Stenhouse drove in the only run the Sox needed.

Marcelino Lopez pitched two-hit ball for six innings and contributed a two-run homer for Philadelphia in a 9-2 trouncing of Kansas at Bradenton.

In other games, Cincinnati blanked the Los Angeles Dodgers 6-0 at Vero Beach, Milwaukee whipped Detroit 6-1 at West Palm Beach, the Chicago Cubs outslugged Cleveland 12-11 at Tucson and Tacoma of the Pacific Coast League came up with seven runs in the ninth to beat San Francisco 10-9 at Casa Grande.

Jim O'Toole of the Reds extended to 14 his string of scoreless innings with a four-hitter against the Dodgers for the six innings he pitched. Rookie John Flavin hurled hitless ball in the last three to complete the shut out.

Lew Burdette held the Tigers to four hits and one run in the six innings he pitched for the Braves. The veteran right-hander now has worked 23 innings with an earned run average of 0.39.

After striking out three times, Ernie Banks hit a home run for the Cubs' victory.

Tigers' Rookie Patterns Style After The Famous Bob Feller

By WALTER JOHNS
Central Press Sports Editor

LAKELAND, Fla. — Bill Faul's baptism of major league fire last autumn was something to forget, for the young right hander gave up four hits, three bases on balls and six earned runs in two innings for a 27.00 earned-run average!

However, the 22-year-old former University of Cincinnati star, signed by the Detroit Tigers after spirited bidding from all but a couple of major league teams, still looks like a good bet for future stardom.

And Bill's only pro experience outside of that one major league appearance was good enough for a good look here this spring. After signing, following graduation last summer, for a $50,000 bonus, Bill went to Knoxville and in 13 games won six and lost two, pretty good for a youngster just starting out.

One of Bill's supporters is Tom Ferrick, the Tiger pitching coach. Tom says that "Bill has an excellent chance to be a major league pitcher. He has a good fast ball and is working on the curve ball now."

Bill began his baseball career in the Knothole League and even as a kid patterned his patching after Bob Feller having avidly read a pitching book by the one-time Indian great.

At Cincinnati, where Bill set a record of 24 strikeouts in one game against the Air Force, the young right-hander helped pitch his team to the Missouri Valley championship twice. And, in doing so, he made the All-American team.

Rec Leagues End Regular Season

Regular season play will end tonight in both the high school and men's divisions of the City Recreation Basketball League.

Three games, all at Fort Hill, will wind up the campaign. Roseland meets Fort Hill Hi-Y at 7 p. m., and Allegany Hi-Y takes on Kean's Misfits at 9 in a pair of high school contests.

The Basketeers and Marine Reserve will clash at 8 in a special playoff for the fourth place spot in the men's league. The game between Peskin's and Shelley's Big Five has been cancelled by mutual agreement.

Azalea Open Attracts Golf's Lesser Lights

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — Professional golf's have-nots get another chance to ring the cash register in the $20,000 Azalea Open Tournament starting Thursday.

While many of the game's more successful coin collectors, among them Arnold Palmer, Gary Player and Jack Nicklaus, elect to sit out this one to prepare for next week's Masters at Augusta, Ga., the lesser lights stage a scramble for prize money here.

As an incentive and reward for those favoring their competition, tournament sponsors have posted $5,000 in addition to the basic $20,000. A pro-amateur Wednesday was worth $2,500 and a similar amount will be split, in sums ranging from $200 to $800, in the next four days for the leaders each of the first three rounds and the low score each of the last three days.

The professional tour has included 11 major weekly tournaments to date this year. Peerless Palmer has won three, but the remaining eight have been spread among as many players.

Only two men who have won on the tour this year are in the field of about 150 pros and 10 amateurs playing here over the sandy layout of the Cape Fear Country Club, a 6,651 yarder with par of 72.

The winners of the last two tour events are here. Raymond Floyd of Fayetteville, N.C., 20-year-old in his fifth month as a pro, won the St. Petersburg, Fla., open two weeks ago and is here to show fellow Tar Heels his game.

Also on hand is Dan Sikes, 32, of Jacksonville, Fla., who scored his first major victory last Sunday when he grabbed $9,000 top money in the Doral open at Miami, Fla.

Celtics, Idled Ten Days, Host Royals Tonight

BOSTON (UPI) — The aging Celtics, making one last bid for all the professional basketball marbles, host the Cincinnati Royals Thursday night in the start of another Boston playoff campaign.

The defending champions, idled for 10 days during the preliminary playoffs, fought overconfidence going into the National Basketball Association's Eastern playoff finals.

Boston whipped the Royals nine times in a dozen regular season meetings but had experienced much more difficulty with the Nationals and had been mapping defenses for the Syracuse club during recent workouts.

Coach Arnold (Red) Auerbach staged another full-fledged practice on the Boston Garden boards and concentrated on heavy - duty work for top reserve Frank Ramsey, the "best sixth man in the league."

Ramsey suffered a hamstring muscle injury in the next-to-last game of the regular season and has been undergoing two - a - day treatments ever since. However, he performed at near - maximum speed in a long Tuesday drill and showed no ill-effects in Wednesday's session.

Jet Traffic Scores Upset By Winning Bay Shore Stakes

NEW YORK (AP) — Jet Traffic, a Canadian-bred colt owned by Russell A. Firestone Jr., of Chicago, jolted the New York 3-year-old ranks Wednesday when he led throughout to upset favored Bonjour and capture the $28,050 Bay Shore Stakes at Aqueduct.

Jockey Bobby Ussery sent Jet Traffic flying away from the gate and the Kentucky Derby candidate reported home in a blazing 1 minute, 34 1-5 seconds for the mile on a fast track under 120 pounds. Three-year-olds don't run any faster at this time of the season.

It was only three-fifths of a second off the Aqueduct record held by three older stars—Bald Eagle, Beau Purple and Carry Back.

Patrice Jacobs' Bonjour, the 4-5 favorite of a stunned crowd of 26,107, didn't even take second place as George D. Widener's Top Gallant came from last place in the field of six to be the runner-up.

Jet Traffic won by three lengths, with Top Gallant second by the same margin over Bonjour. It was another 10 lengths back to Pumpkin Hill, the fourth to finish. Senator B., who whipped Jet Traffic in the Francis Scott Key and George Washington Stakes at Bowie in February, finished fifth and Irish-bred El Seraglio brought up the rear.

Loan Approved For Low Rent Homes In City

Will Be Used For Preliminary Work

Sen. Daniel B. Brewster announced yesterday he had been informed of the approval by the Public Housing Administration of a $35,000 loan to the Housing Authority of Cumberland for preliminary planning for construction of 200 new low-rent homes.

Cumberland now has 235 such homes in three projects.

Of the 200 additional homes, 100 are to be built for the elderly, the first such project in the Cumberland area.

While the construction will be put out to bids, James B. Raines, executive director of the Housing Authority of Cumberland, indicated that the project is certain to have significant impact on the local economy and probably will provide about 100 jobs during the peak contstruction period.

In announcing the award Sen. Brewster congratulated the city of Cumberland its housing authority for their past achievements and continuel initiative in the area of public housing. "I am particularly gratified by Cumberland's recognition of the needs of its senior citizens," Sen. Brewster said.

Last Tuesday Rep. Charles McC. Mathias announced the approval by Housing Administrator Robert C. Weaver of the city's workable plan for community improvement.

Formal approval of the program was required before the city became eligible to receive federal aid in the form of loans and grants for urban renewal projects, for low-rent public housing and for more liberal FHA mortgaging to assist in the redevelopment of project areas and for relocating displaced families.

Ready For Concert

Paper Machine Start-Up In Luke Delayed

Stockholders Get President's Report

The start-up of the second of two new paper machines recently installed at the Luke mill of West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company has been delayed for a few months by a temporary slowdown in demand during the winter, said David L. Luke III, president.

He indicated that the company did not participate any serious or protracted start-up expenses in connection with this unit, although he said some temporary costs might be incurred in the transfer of business to the newer facilities.

During the annual meeting in New York this week, stockholders were reminded that although encouraging signs of basic improvement have already begun to appear, prices of many paper products are "distressingly low" while costs of wages, Social Security and other benefits continue to rise.

While sales of $88,672,000 for the period ended February 28 surpassed by $2,000,000 the volume for the corresponding four months last year, earnings declined from $2,724,000, equal to 51 cents a share to $2,153,000, or 40 cents a share.

With over 90 per cent of the outstanding shares of common stock represented, the 16 incumbent members of the board of directors were re-elected.

Amendments liberalizing employe benefits under the company's pension and retirement plans at an additional cost of nearly a half million dollars a year were approved, with holders of only about one per cent of the outstanding shares dissenting.

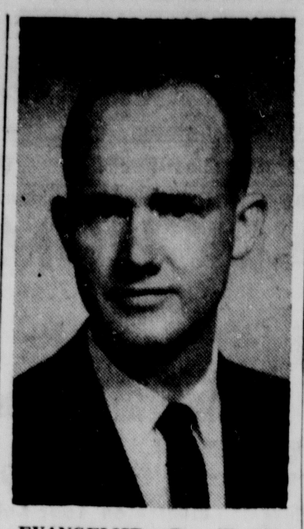
The president announced that the management had been authorized by the board of directors to buy "modest amounts" of the company's common stock for appropriate corporate purposes, such as fulfillment of obligations under stock option plans as well as possible future acquisitions.

He also reported that the Navy and Air Force are "looking seriously" at 50,000 to 60,000 acres of the company's managed forestlands in Dare County, North Carolina, as a site for a bombing range.

"Naturally, we hope that it will not be necessary for these services to insist on taking this productive acreage," he said. "But if the national interest demands it, we are hopeful that the government will agree to an arrangement which will adequately compensate the company for use of the lands."

Against a background of fundamental improvement in the industry's capacity-demand relationship projected by the chairman of the board, David L. Luke III, the president, said he regarded his company's prospects with confidence.

"We are now very nearly at the end of the period of extensive rebuilding which has added to operating expenses and for several years has been a drag on our earnings," the president said. "By the end of the year we expect that the major cost of this program will be behind us. In fiscal 1964 we expect to feel more of the contributions of this rebuilding."



EVANGELIST — Rev. Warren O. Shields, pastor of First Baptist Church, Romney, will be the evangelist for a revival which will open Sunday evening at Grace Baptist Church on Greene Street. The revival will continue nightly through April 7.

Castelle Boy Wins Allegany Speech Contest

Five Finalists In Competition

Clarke Castelle, a sophomore, won the annual Allegany High School speech contest yesterday in the school auditorium.

Young Castelle, the son of a dentist, spoke on "Fluoridation." He was presented a gold medal for winning top honors from among five finalists in the contest.

Second place and a silver medal were awarded to Marjorie Smith, a senior, whose subject was "Our Heritage As Graduates of Allegany High School." She commented that this will be the 75th graduating class of Allegany and she traced developments chronologically since the first class of 1889 on Union Street.

The other finalists were Anne Avirett, a senior, whose topic was "And So They Built A Wall;" John Eyler, a senior, "Increasing Executive Power," and Beverly Smith, a sophomore, "The Worst Of Women."

Seven others had participated in the semi-final round of the contest. They included Harold Yankelevitz, Sharon Widmyer, Kitty Brown, John Koegel, Bill Stover, Richard Paulman and Connie Brings.

Miss Betsy Ross Rankin, an English teacher at Allegany, explained that the contest culminated a six-week phase of the English program during which public speaking has been emphasized.

There were eliminations in the individual classrooms and then the field was reduced to 12 semi-finalists, five seniors, four juniors and three sophomores.

Judges were T. Donald Shires, city editor of the Evening Times and a member of the Allegany County Board of Education; Miss Mary G. Walsh, county librarian, and Rev. Russell E. Fink, pastor of St. John's Lutheran Church.

$45,000 Spat Holding Up State Budget

$606 Million Bill Awaits Enactment

By GEORGE BOWEN

ANNAPOLIS (AP) — A $45,000 spat developed Wednesday between the Maryland House and Senate over the $606 million budget.

One of the two sore spots was an effort by the 29 senators to obtain part time secretarial help for themselves between sessions of the legislature.

The other was attempted senate restoration of eight additional automobiles for the Department of Motor Vehicles.

The delegates refused to concur in either amendment and a conference committee was named to fight it out.

The three members from each side made no progress on an agreement at their first meeting, which means it will be at least Thursday before the budget can be enacted.

Friday Is Deadline

The constitution requires the budget to be finally through the legislature three days before the scheduled end of the session. That would be Friday on the calendar.

The house accepted a third amendment put on after it had passed the budget bill Monday. The addition of $10,000 will raise the daily expense allowance from $20 to $35 for the Legislative Council and its committees.

Both delegates and senators serve on the council. During sessions of the legislature they receive $20 a day expenses and their yearly salary is $1,800.

Each senator has a secretary at $12 a day during the legislature. They are seeking $1,000 each for 28 senators and $2,000 for the president to pay for help while at home in the interim.

Majority house leader W. Dale Hess, D-Harford, told the delegates its Ways and Means Committee had twice rejected the recess secretarial help for the senators in conferences on the budget.

No More Cars?

He said it also had adopted a policy of allowing only three state agencies to buy additional automobiles during the next fiscal year.

The Department of Motor Vehicles was among those whose request for eight more was denied.

The State Police, Department of Parole and Tidewater Fisheries Commission were authorized to purchase more cars for law enforcement purposes.

Hess said the Ways and Means Committee wants to hold the line on the number of state autos while a study is made to determine if it might be cheaper in some instances to pay employes a mileage allowance for using their own cars.

Scouts Win Skating Badge

Some 45 intermediate scouts of West Side Neighborhood Girl Scouts of the Shawnee Council, will receive skating badges at a ceremony and show Saturday at 1 p.m. at Moon Glo Skating Rink.

The theme for the show is "Futurama," marking a change from the old to the new in the Girl Scout program.

The intermediate scouts began work on the skating badge in January. Under the direction of Paul W. Weisenmiller, each has learned to skate efficiently. In addition the girls have made an article of clothing such as skating skirts, tie, scarfs, beanies or purses.

The skating badge program began in 1957 under Mr. Weisenmiller's direction, at the Old Armory Roller rink, on South Center Street. Since that time, 426 scouts have received the badge. The course is sanctioned by the Roller Skating Rink Operators Association of America.

Miss Anita Gilbert will be mistress of ceremonies for the program. Mrs. Leo Brannon is chairman of arrangements, assisted by Mrs. Brant, Troop 23, Mrs. Davis, Troop 9, Mrs. Boden, Troop 7, Mrs. Sell, Troop 151 and Mrs. Gilbert Troop 22.

Naturalization Hearing Set For Friday

The semi-annual naturalization hearing will be held at the Allegany County Court House at 2 p. m. Friday.

Six candidates for United States citizenship are expected to be recommended for citizenship by an examiner for the Immigration and Naturalization Service of the U.S. Department of Justice.

They will receive their oath of allegiance to the United States from Joseph E. Boden, clerk of Circuit Court, and Chief Judge Morgan C. Harris will deliver a patriotic lecture on the importance of the step being taken.

COLLECTION DAY TODAY

Credit Bill May Wait For Study

By TOM SEPPY

ANNAPOLIS (AP) — Prospects grew stronger Wednesday that the highly controversial proposal to regulate the credit operations of retail stores will be shunted off to the Legislative Council.

One member of the House Judiciary Committee which is currently studying the bill said he would ask Thursday that the senate-passed bill be sent to the between-sessions arm of the General Assembly.

He also believed that enough members of the committee wanted to have more information on the subject which in its present form would limit to 1 per cent the amount retail stores could charge for servicing revolving credit accounts.

The bill would also allow merchants to charge only $10 for servicing installment accounts up to $1,000 and $8 for those over $1,000.

Say Rates Too Low

Merchants are opposed to the present form of the bill because they say they will be unable to operate the credit accounts at such low rates.

That proposal would have allowed merchants to charge 1½ per cent on revolving credit accounts and $12 and $10 on installment plans.

The delegate who wants the Legislative Council to study the bill said privately that the senators reduced the allowable rates "just to make it look like they're watching out for the consumers."

"They knew the stores couldn't operate at that low rate but they wanted us to restore the increase," he said. "We'll look like we're favoring the big businessman."

Representatives of the retail industry urged the committee Wednesday to send the bill to the Legislative Council or to a governor's commission for further study.

A report by a governor's commission which studied credit accounts during 1961 served as the basis for the bill currently before the General Assembly.

"Learned Much"

Frank A. Kaufman, representing the Maryland Council of Retail Merchants said "we are not against the bill but we want to work for a better measure.

"During the past few weeks (that the bill has been before the legislature) we have learned much," he said. "We feel that the bill in its present form is unfair and unworkable."

Kaufman said a year's delay would not harm the public.

"There have been only a few complaints and we've done business with credit accounts for years," he said.

Committee Chairman Del. Thomas Hunter Lowe, D-Talbot, said there are two ways for his group to kill the bill—give it an unfavorable report or send it to the Legislative Council.

"Giving it an unfavorable report will shoot it first before we bury it," he said "sending it to the Legislative Council will bury it alive."

Lenten Service Set

St. Luke's Lutheran Church, 1601 Frederick Street, will hold a Lenten service Wednesday, April 3, at 7:30 p. m., according to Rev. Vernon I. Naugle, pastor. The topic will be "Buried With The Wicked And The Rich."

To Confer Degree

Permit Issued For New Glass Plant Building

A building permit and zoning certificate for the new float glass building at Works 7 of the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company have been issued by C. Lee Renaud, Allegany County planning director.

In its application for the building permit, the Turner Construction Company of Philadelphia, the prime contractor, listed the cost of the big project at $1,000,000.

The reinforced concrete building will be 100 by 1100 feet in size and will cover only one floor. It will be steam-heated from a coal-fired furnace. Flooring will be concrete. A gravel and tar roof will cover this new building at North Branch.

Groundbreaking for the new structure was staged on March 18. Equipment was moved in soon afterwards for excavation for the new melting tank foundation.

$70 Stolen From Lodge

Someone broke into the Eagles home in Cresaptown early yesterday morning and took approximately $70 from some machines on the premises which were pilfered.

A spokesman for the organization said the breaking and entering, destruction of the property and theft occurred after the club was closed on Tuesday night.

A rear window was broken by the intruder who left the premises through the rear door. State police received a report of the incident about 7 a. m. yesterday.

Local police are continuing an investigation into the theft of about $1,000 from the Eagles Home on North Mechanic Street early Monday morning.

Damage Suit Settlement Filed

A so-called friendly damage suit and its settlement for $150 were filed together yesterday in Allegany County Circuit Court.

Richard C. Sheets, an infant, by Leo M. Sheets and Stella E. Sheets, his parents and next friends, 14 North Lee Street, filed the action against Mark Lee Lazarus III, 919 Camden Avenue, and Kermit Lyle Wilkins, 422 Greene Street. The Sheets boy was a passenger in an automobile driven by young Lazarus and owned by Wilkins which struck a tree in Constitution Park last December 7. He complained of head, neck and back injuries.

The $150 settlement was signed by Ronald C. Brubaker, as attorney for the plaintiffs, and C. William Gilchrist as defense attorney.

Few Liquor Renewals Received

Fewer than half of the license holders in each classification have filed for renewal of their liquor licenses in the license year starting May 1, according to Mrs. Shirley Nolan, clerk to the Allegany County Board of Alcoholic Beverages License Commissioners.

The best record is among holders of Class D beer, wine and liquor licenses, where 26 of the 60 have filed for their new licenses. Only 14 clubs have applied for Class C beer, wine and liquor licenses out of 46 now holding licenses. Three of the eight Class A beer, wine and liquor license holders for off-premises consumption have filed for renewals.

There are 26 establishments now holding Class A beer licenses for off-premises consumption and only nine of them have taken the necessary steps for renewal.

Twenty-nine of the 116 holders of Class D beer licenses have filed for renewals. There are only eight holders of Class A beer and wine licenses and three of them have applied for renewals. Six of the 16 holders of Class D beer and wine licenses have sought renewals.

They have been advised that they must have their applications in by next Friday, April 5, to assure that they are advertised in time for renewal when the new license year starts May 1.

Loan Approved For Low Rent Homes In City

Will Be Used For Preliminary Work

Sen. Daniel B. Brewster announced yesterday he had been informed of the approval by the Public Housing Administration of a $35,000 loan to the Housing Authority of Cumberland for preliminary planning for construction of 200 new low-rent homes.

Cumberland now has 235 such homes in three projects.

Of the 200 additional homes, 100 are to be built for the elderly, the first such project in the Cumberland area.

While the construction will be put out to bids, James B. Raines, executive director of the Housing Authority of Cumberland, indicated that the project is certain to have significant impact on the local economy and probably will provide about 100 jobs during the peak contstruction period.

In announcing the award Sen. Brewster congratulated the city of Cumberland its housing authority for their past achievements and continuel initiative in the area of public housing. "I am particularly gratified by Cumberland's recognition of the needs of its senior citizens," Sen. Brewster said.

Last Tuesday Rep. Charles McC. Mathias announced the approval by Housing Administrator Robert C. Weaver of the city's workable plan for community improvement.

Formal approval of the program was required before the city became eligible to receive federal aid in the form of loans and grants for urban renewal projects, for low-rent public housing and for more liberal FHA mortgaging to assist in the redevelopment of project areas and for relocating displaced families.

Selections from Mozart's "Impresario" will be sung by a trio, Edna Barbero, Betty Verdery and Edward Enderle. Folk and popular music also will be on the program. Tickets are available at Vandegrift's Music Store, Bowman's Market and from members of the choral society.

Paper Machine Start-Up In Luke Delayed

Stockholders Get President's Report

The start-up of the second of two new paper machines recently installed at the Luke mill of West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company has been delayed for a few months by a temporary slowdown in demand during the winter, said David L. Luke III, president.

He indicated that the company did not participate any serious or protracted start-up expenses in connection with this unit, although he said some temporary costs might be incurred in the transfer of business to the newer facilities.

During the annual meeting in New York this week, stockholders were reminded that although encouraging signs of basic improvement have already begun to appear, prices of many paper products are "distressingly low" while costs of wages, Social Security and other benefits continue to rise.

While sales of $88,672,000 for the period ended February 28 surpassed by $2,000,000 the volume for the corresponding four months last year, earnings declined from $2,724,000, equal to 51 cents a share to $2,153,000, or 40 cents a share.

With over 90 per cent of the outstanding shares of common stock represented, the 16 incumbent members of the board of directors were re-elected.

Amendments liberalizing employe benefits under the company's pension and retirement plans at an additional cost of nearly a half million dollars a year were approved, with holders of only about one per cent of the outstanding shares dissenting.

The president announced that the management had been authorized by the board of directors to buy "modest amounts" of the company's common stock for appropriate corporate purposes, such as fulfillment of obligations under stock option plans as well as possible future acquisitions.

He also reported that the Navy and Air Force are "looking seriously" at 50,000 to 60,000 acres of the company's managed forestlands in Dare County, North Carolina, as a site for a bombing range.

"Naturally, we hope that it will not be necessary for these services to insist on taking this productive acreage," he said. "But if the national interest demands it, we are hopeful that the government will agree to an arrangement which will adequately compensate the company for use of the lands."

Against a background of fundamental improvement in the industry's capacity-demand relationship projected by the chairman of the board, David L. Luke III, the president, said he regarded his company's prospects with confidence.

"We are now very nearly at the end of the period of extensive rebuilding which has added to operating expenses and for several years has been a drag on our earnings," the president said. "By the end of the year we expect that the major cost of this program will be behind us. In fiscal 1964 we expect to feel more of the contributions of this rebuilding."

EVANGELIST — Rev. Warren O. Shields, pastor of First Baptist Church, Romney, will be the evangelist for a revival which will open Sunday evening at Grace Baptist Church on Greene Street. The revival will continue nightly through April 7.

Castelle Boy Wins Allegany Speech Contest

Five Finalists In Competition

Clarke Castelle, a sophomore, won the annual Allegany High School speech contest yesterday in the school auditorium.

Young Castelle, the son of a dentist, spoke on "Fluoridation." He was presented a gold medal for winning top honors from among five finalists in the contest.

Second place and a silver medal were awarded to Marjorie Smith, a senior, whose subject was "Our Heritage As Graduates of Allegany High School." She commented that this will be the 75th graduating class of Allegany and she traced developments chronologically since the first class of 1889 on Union Street.

The other finalists were Anne Avirett, a senior, whose topic was "And So They Built A Wall;" John Eyler, a senior, "Increasing Executive Power," and Beverly Smith, a sophomore, "The Worst Of Women."

Seven others had participated in the semi-final round of the contest. They included Harold Yankelevitz, Sharon Widmyer, Kitty Brown, John Koegel, Bill Stover, Richard Paulman and Connie Brings.

Miss Betsy Ross Rankin, an English teacher at Allegany, explained that the contest culminated a six-week phase of the English program during which public speaking has been emphasized.

There were eliminations in the individual classrooms and then the field was reduced to 12 semi-finalists, five seniors, four juniors and three sophomores.

Judges were T. Donald Shires, city editor of the Evening Times and a member of the Allegany County Board of Education; Miss Mary G. Walsh, county librarian, and Rev. Russell E. Fink, pastor of St. John's Lutheran Church.

$45,000 Spat Holding Up State Budget

By GEORGE BOWEN

ANNAPOLIS (AP) — A $45,000 spat developed Wednesday between the Maryland House and Senate over the $606 million budget.

One of the two sore spots was an effort by the 29 senators to obtain part time secretarial help for themselves between sessions of the legislature.

The other was attempted senate restoration of eight additional automobiles for the Department of Motor Vehicles.

The delegates refused to concur in either amendment and a conference committee was named to fight it out.

The three members from each side made no progress on an agreement at their first meeting, which means it will be at least Thursday before the budget can be enacted.

Friday Is Deadline

The constitution requires the budget to be finally through the legislature three days before the scheduled end of the session. That would be Friday on the calendar.

The house accepted a third amendment put on after it had passed the budget bill Monday. The addition of $10,000 will raise the daily expense allowance from $20 to $35 for the Legislative Council and its committees.

Both delegates and senators serve on the council. During sessions of the legislature they receive $20 a day expenses and their yearly salary is $1,800.

Each senator has a secretary at $12 a day during the legislature. They are seeking $1,000 each for 28 senators and $2,000 for the president to pay for help while at home in the interim.

Majority house leader W. Dale Hess, D-Harford, told the delegates its Ways and Means Committee had twice rejected the recess secretarial help for the senators in conferences on the budget.

No More Cars?

He said it also had adopted a policy of allowing only three state agencies to buy additional automobiles during the next fiscal year.

The Department of Motor Vehicles was among those whose request for eight more was denied.

The State Police, Department of Parole and Tidewater Fisheries Commission were authorized to purchase more cars for law enforcement purposes.

Hess said the Ways and Means Committee wants to hold the line on the number of state autos while a study is made to determine if it might be cheaper in some instances to pay employes a mileage allowance for using their own cars.

Credit Bill May Wait For Study

By TOM SEPPY

ANNAPOLIS (AP) — Prospects grew stronger Wednesday that the highly controversial proposal to regulate the credit operations of retail stores will be shunted off to the Legislative Council.

One member of the House Judiciary Committee which is currently studying the bill said he would ask Thursday that the senate-passed bill be sent to the between-sessions arm of the General Assembly.

He also believed that enough members of the committee wanted to have more information on the subject which in its present form would limit to 1 per cent the amount retail stores could charge for servicing revolving credit accounts.

The bill would also allow merchants to charge only $10 for servicing installment accounts up to $1,000 and $8 for those over $1,000.

Say Rates Too Low

Merchants are opposed to the present form of the bill because they say they will be unable to operate the credit accounts at such low rates.

They prefer, instead, the rates which were in the bill before it was amended in the senate.

That proposal would have allowed merchants to charge 1½ per cent on revolving credit accounts and $12 and $10 on installment plans.

The delegate who wants the Legislative Council to study the bill said privately that the senators reduced the allowable rates "just to make it look like they're watching out for the consumers."

"They knew the stores couldn't operate at that low rate but they wanted us to restore the increase," he said. "We'll look like we're favoring the big businessman."

Representatives of the retail industry urged the committee Wednesday to send the bill to the Legislative Council or to a governor's commission for further study.

A report by a governor's commission which studied credit accounts during 1961 served as the basis for the bill currently before the General Assembly.

"Learned Much"

Frank A. Kaufman, representing the Maryland Council of Retail Merchants said "we are not against the bill but we want to work for a better measure.

"During the past few weeks (that the bill has been before the legislature) we have learned much," he said. "We feel that the bill in its present form is unfair and unworkable."

Kaufman said a year's delay would not harm the public.

"There have been only a few complaints and we've done business with credit accounts for years," he said.

Committee Chairman Del. Thomas Hunter Lowe, D-Talbot, said there are two ways for his group to kill the bill—give it an unfavorable report or send it to the Legislative Council.

"Giving it an unfavorable report will shoot it first before we bury it," he said "sending it to the Legislative Council will bury it alive."

Permit Issued For New Glass Plant Building

A building permit and zoning certificate for the new float glass building at Works 7 of the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company have been issued by C. Lee Renaud, Allegany County planning director.

In its application for the building permit, the Turner Construction Company of Philadelphia, the prime contractor, listed the cost of the big project at $1,000,000.

The reinforced concrete building will be 100 by 1100 feet in size and will cover only one floor. It will be steam-heated from a coal-fired furnace. Flooring will be concrete. A gravel and tar roof will cover this new building at North Branch.

Construction is expected to be completed in one year.

Groundbreaking for the new structure was staged on March 18. Equipment was moved in soon afterwards for excavation for the new melting tank foundation.

$70 Stolen From Lodge

Someone broke into the Eagles home in Cresaptown early yesterday morning and took approximately $70 from some machines on the premises which were pilfered.

A spokesman for the organization said the breaking and entering, destruction of the property and theft occurred after the club was closed on Tuesday night.

A rear window was broken by the intruder who left the premises through the rear door. State police received a report of the incident about 7 a. m. yesterday.

Local police are continuing an investigation into the theft of about $1,000 from the Eagles Home on North Mechanic Street early Monday morning.

The Sheets boy was a passenger in an automobile driven by young Lazarus and owned by Wilkins which struck a tree in Constitution Park last December 7. He complained of head, neck and back injuries.

The best record is among holders of Class D beer, wine and liquor licenses, where 26 of the 60 have filed for their new licenses. Only 14 clubs have applied for Class C beer, wine and liquor licenses out of 46 now hoiding licenses. Three of the eight Class A beer, wine and liquor license holders for off-premises consumption have filed for renewals.

There are 26 establishments now holding Class A beer licenses for off-premises consumption and only nine of them have taken the necessary steps for renewal.

Twenty-nine of the 116 holders of Class D beer licenses have filed for renewals. There are only eight holders of Class A beer and wine licenses and three of them have applied for renewals. Six of the 16 holders of Class D beer and wine licenses have sought renewals.

Some 280 licenses are now in effect throughout the county and less than 100 holders have applied for renewals.
